'Local Level' Emphasized

In a talk heavily laced with witticisms, Dr. Tennyson Guyer of Findlay Friday night urged Columbiana County Republicans to begin the "march back to national power on the local level."

Speaking to more than 200 at the annual GOP kickoff dinner held by the Wellsville Republican Club at the Riverside United Presbyterian Church in Wellsville, Dr. Guyer said everyone should be concerned about government on the local level because it most directly concerns the people and projects to the national level.

Directing his remarks to candidates seeking office in November, he said "you can't go into the elections impersonally." He urged each candidate to "treat the people right" because "people have long memories and will remember what you have done."

Speaking briefly on national politics, Dr. Guyer, a former Ohio senator, said the "eyes of Washington" are on Ohio, claiming the state Republicans surprised President Kennedy. He said he does not believe there is going to be a war and that the American worker wants a job, not just checks for doing nothing.

Returning to the local level, Dr. Guyer urged the candidates to utilize good communications and get the point across. He said "politics is a messy business, but it is the door through which you must go to enter public service."

"You have to like people. If you don't like people, you shouldn't be in politics. There's no good way to be a heel," he said.

He urged those present to work to get the people to the polls.

Dr. Guyer, who is known as "Ohio's Ambassador of Good Will," is a public relations director with the Cooper Tire & Rubber Co.

Mayor Shoub was toastmaster. He introduced the guests, including Mrs. Guyer, Miss DeBolt, Whitacre, Charles Pike, vice chairman; Robert Bell of Steubenville, 18th Congressional District committeeman, and Atty. James McSweeney, former Wellsville chairman and a member of the Board of Elections.

Shoub also introduced city and county candidates and chairwomen from various cities.

Also recognized was William Pacey, 1728 Maple Ave., who at 95, was appropriately termed "the senior GOP citizen of Wellsville."

Mrs. Louise Brookman Taylor led group singing and Mrs. Jayne Kata sang three solos. Mrs. Louise Lawton was the pianist.

Mayor Bids Spark City's Campaigns

Month Remains For Candidates To Wind Up Appeals

Democrats and Republicans will trot out the two oldest political warhorses in their stables Nov. 7 in the race to win the East Liverpool mayor's office for the two years beginning Jan. 1.

Bert H. Goodballet, the Democratic incumbent, and O. Earl Greenawalt, the Republican contender, each has more than a generation of political experience.

Their battle for votes will highlight a general election in which East Liverpool voters also will name a Council president, treasurer, solicitor, three councilmen-at-large and four ward councilmen.

2 Posts Skipped

Only the offices of municipal judge and city auditor are not at stake. Judge Samuel M. Chertoff was named in 1959 for a six-year term and Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate was chosen at the same time for a four-year term.

Candidates are preparing to unlimber campaigns in earnest, as the election is just a month from today. The men who comprise the fields of the two major parties were chosen from among a total of 37 in the May primaries.

The primaries went a long way toward setting the pattern of Council membership for the new biennium. Six of the eight incumbents in the all-Democratic Council failed in bids for renomination, which means there will be a wholesale change in the membership at the end of 1961 regardless of the outcome of the election.

Mayor Goodballet is running for his second term. He was elected in 1959, defeating Fred P. Lawrence, Republican, who served one term. The mayor's public service dates back to the late 1930's, when he first was elected First Ward councilman. Later, he served several terms as Council president.

Served 5 Terms

Greenawalt, an insurance agent, has served five terms as mayor, leaving office last in 1947. In the early 30's, he served a term as Council president. Greenawalt also served 10 years as bailiff for former Municipal Judge George L. Brokaw.

Greenawalt won the GOP nomination in May in a three - way race. Goodballet won a two-man confest.

Safety-Service Director Robert Owen will wear two hats in the campaign, as he also is his party's

FREIGHT IS 'KNIFE'. Wheels of a tractor-trailer rig drape the front of this Pennsylvania Railroad freight train after it "sliced" the vehicle on the Port Homer crossing of Route 7 during the dense fog this morning. The Conway-bound train cut through the aluminum trailer and spilled hundreds of cases of empty whisky bottles being delivered to a distillery. Neither the driver nor his assistant was hurt. This mishap preceded another in which four trucks and an auto piled up at the Route 213 intersection, also without injury.

Rig 'Sliced' By Train In 2nd Wreck

2 LaCroft Women Injured In Another Accident In 'Mist'

A tractor - trailer truck was sliced by a southbound freight train about 9 this morning at the Port Homer crossing on Route 7 and about 90 minutes later four trucks and an auto piled up in a spectacular crash during the heavy fog at the intersection of Routes 7 and 213 at Yellow Creek. Two LaCroft women were hurt in another mishap blamed on the heavy mist.

The driver of the rig hit by the train and his companion and occupants of the vehicles in the Rt. 213 accident miraculously were uninjured.

Wellsville police dispatched a cruiser to the Yellow Creek scene to lend aid and the patrolman radioed back, asking for more help.

Traffic was literally tied up for miles in both directions on Route 7 and on Route 213 toward Irondale as a result of the crashes and dense fog which was lifting only slightly near noon.

Wellsville police said they radioed the message of both crashes to Jefferson County authorities. The Wintersville State Highway Patrol said extra men were called out to help in the investigation and to clear the traffic congestion. The Jefferson County Sheriff's office also sent men to both places.

A Bedford motorist who witnessed the mishap at Port Homer notified police at Wellsville. He told officers the trailer was completely ripped apart.

He said the impact of the southbound freight easily cut through the aluminum trailer, loaded with empty whisky bottles.

The train-truck crash occurred about 7:43 a. m. The driver was Charles R. McAllister of Barbersville, W. Va., and his passenger, a co-driver, was L. D. Handley of Huntington, who also was unhurt.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Railroad said the engineer was W. M. Reed of Columbus. The train was traveling about 25 to 30 miles per hour and the lights at the crossing were working, the railroad said.

The train was headed from Cincinnati to Conway.

The Route 213 "chain" accident apparently occurred when a truck driven south in the passing lane by George Frederick of Youngstown hit the rear of a flatbed truck of the Wellsville Quality Feed Co., which had pulled out of Rt. 213 into the passing lane.

The other two trucks then collided with a 1947 Ford pinned in between. An East Liverpool man was driving the car.

The cab of the Youngstown Isaly Dairy Co. truck was smashed.

Reds' Softer Tactics Raise Berlin Hopes

Mr. K, Mikoyan, Ulbricht Statements On Treaty Cited

BERLIN (AP) — An apparent switch from the hard to the soft sell by Communist leaders boosted hopes today for an easing of tension and possible postponement of an East-West showdown on Berlin.

Statements by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan and East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht all pointedly avoided reference to a signing this year of the Communist bloc's planned peace treaty with East Germany.

The phrase "this year" so often mentioned by Red chieftans in connection with the treaty plans was shelved in favor of vague terminology. All three statements, issued on the 12th anniversary of East Germany's Communist government, also avoided belligerent phrases.

Western sources speculated that the change in tactics of the time element may have been more than coincidental, in view of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's meetings with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Berlin.

Khrushchev had repeatedly warned that a Soviet treaty with East Germany would be signed before the year is out.

Sunny, Warm Seen For Series Today

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Sunny and warm weather was forecast today for the third game of the World Series—the first series game played here in 21 years.

The Weather Bureau, however, said wind of about 8 miles per hour and gusts of up to 15 are expected out of the southwest. At Crosley Field, that would have the wind blowing directly from home plate to the center field fence 387 feet away.

British Plane Missing With 34 Aboard

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — Wreckage of a plane—apparently a British airliner missing with 34 persons aboard—was found today in mountains near Prades, about 30 miles from Perpignan, police at Prades announced.

The wreckage was spotted by residents in the area of the Canigou Peak of the Pyrenees at an altitude of some 6,000 feet.

Weather in the area was reported bad. Mt. Canigou, which is mined for iron ore, rises to 9,137 feet.

The British plane, a Dakota, dropped from sight on a flight from Gatwick Airport near London to Perpignan, a regional commercial center of 65,000 in southern France about 10 miles from the Mediterranean and 20 from the Spanish frontier.

A spokesman for Derby Aviation, owners of the missing plane, said there were 31 passengers and 3 crew members aboard.

The passengers were flying to France to begin a bus tour of the Costa Brava in Spain after landing.

It was believed all aboard were British.

At Perpignan, a team of 35 mountain climbers waited in case word came that plane wreckage had been found.

President Will Spend Weekend At Newport

Kennedy planned to fly by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base where he will board a jet for a midmorning flight to Quonset Point Naval Air Station, R.I.

Mrs. Kennedy and the two Kennedy children already are at hhe home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, where they will remain for the weekend. Kennedy will return to Washington Monday.

Friday night, the President attended a state dinner at the embassy of Sudan, given by President Ferik Ibrahim Abboud. Abboud was to end his state visit today and fly to Los Angeles.

Red Boycott Threatened In U.N. Decision

Will Act Against Any Chief Not OKd By Security Unit

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union will boycott any interim U.N. secretary-general who may be chosen without the consent of the Security Council.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin told reporters at a Sudanese reception here Friday night that if the General Assembly picks a successor to the late Dag Hammarskjold without the council's prior recommendation, "Life will go very hard for that man."

He explained that the new man would have the same trouble as Hammarskjold, boycotted by the Russians from last February until his death Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

No serious man, Zorin said, would take the job under those circumstances.

His remarks came after one correspondent had said the United States or its friends would propose that the assembly alone name a temporary secretary-general unless there was U.S.-Soviet agreement that would permit veto-free action first in the council.

Loss Of $218 Listed After Jewelry Theft

Loss totaling $218.90 was reported to police Friday afternoon by the management of the Shaw Jewelry Store as a result of a theft of four wrist watches early yesterday morning from a display window that was smashed with a brick.

The inventory disclosed the "smash-and-grab" thief took two men's watches worth $59.50 each and two women's watches valued at $49.95. All bear the Bulova trademark.

The watches were taken by a burglar who smashed a plate glass display window about 2:18 a.m., then fled on foot. The exact loss could not be listed until store personnel made an inventory.

U.S. Might Send Troops To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is considering sending U.S. troops to help South Viet Nam fight off Communist attacks, expected to grow stronger when the rainy season ends later this month.

U.S. officials consider South Viet Nam the main target of the Communist drive in Southeast Asia. If the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem should fall, they say, Thailand, Malaya, Burma and Cambodia would be dangerously weakened.

High State Department sources revealed privately Friday that sending troops to South Viet Nam was under consideration.

Press officer Joseph Reap, while not specifically confirming this, did not rule it out.

In answer to questions, Reap said: "In view of the serious situation there, due to increasing Communist attacks against government defense units, we are considering various means of assisting the Viet Nam government against Communist efforts to take over the country.

U.S., Soviet 'Far Apart' In Berlin Issue

Kennedy, Gromyko Make No Formal Statement On Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a two-hour conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the United States and the Soviet Union were reported still far apart today on ways of negotiating a peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Informed officials here consider the East-West dispute over Berlin still extremely dangerous. At the same time hope persists that a solution short of a military showdown will be found to end the crisis.

Kennedy and the Soviet foreign minister discussed the situation in the Oval Room of the White House late Friday and wound up their talks shortly after 7 o'clock without issuing any kind of formal statement.

As he climed into his limousine to return to the Soviet Embassy on nearby 16th Street, Gromyko told newsmen the conversation had been "useful". Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who sat in on the discussion, merely called it "interesting."

Kennedy was understood to have told Gromyko in calm but very emphatic terms that the United States and its Western Allies are fully determined to defend West Berlin against Communist pressures, to preserve their right to maintain troops in the city, and to keep open the supply lines from West Germany.

Gromyko told reporters that the conversation had touched "several important matters" bearing on U.S.-Soviet relations and added: "Of course, as far as the position of the Soviet government is concerned, we stressed first of all the importance of the question of the peace treaty with Germany."

It appears that the conference at the White House covered much of the same ground that had been covered by Gromyko and Rusk in a series of three meetings in New York in the previous two weeks.

Cancer-Hit Sam Rayburn Takes Food

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cancer-stricken Sam Rayburn took nourishment Friday and a doctor said the House speaker was resting comfortably.

Dr. Ralph Tompsett said Rayburn, 79, much thinner than his colleagues in Washington remember him, had some soup and tea.

Rayburn had not eaten since surgery was performed Thursday to remove a lymph gland from the groin area. Since then he has received blood transfusions and intravenous feedings.

A biopsy, doctors said, showed that the politically powerful and beloved Democrat has an incurable cancer.

Rayburn's administrative aide, John Holton, said Rayburn's family had not disclosed whether the speaker had been told the extent of his illness.

There was still no word when—or if—Rayburn would return to his home in Bonham, Tex., 75 miles northeast of here.

Hancock Tax Deputy Injured In Collision

WEIRTON — John B. Camilli, state tax deputy for Hancock and Brooke Counties, is hospitalized today with injuries received in a traffic mishap Friday night at 10:15.

Camilli's auto was struck in the rear by Fred A. DeEllis, 19, of Steubenville on Pennsylvania Ave police said.

The tax official is in "satisfactory" condition today in Weirton General Hospital and was scheduled to undergo X-rays. He complained of injuries of the neck and chest pains, the hospital reported.

Police cited DeEllis on charges of failure to have his vehicle under control and driving with an expired license. He posted $62 bond for a hearing Monday in Police Court.

Camilli was appointed to a four-year term as state tax deputy for the two counties Aug. 5 by West Virginia Tax Commissioner C. Howard Hardesty.

Razing Offer Seen Snag To Parking Plan

Ceramic Removal Cost Would Exceed $60,000 Available

Plans to convert the Ceramic Theater site into a municipal parking lot ran into at least a temporary snag Friday afternoon because the lone bid of $16,630 for razing the structure submitted to the Board of Control would push the total cost of the project over the $60,000 authorized by Council.

The Cleveland Wrecking Co. of Cincinnati filed the only offer with Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Robert Owen, who comprise the board.

Here's the financial picture in a nutshell:

Council voted a $60,000 self - liquidating bond issue to cover purchase of the building, razing it, preparing and blacktopping the lot and installing meters. The city paid $45,000 Sept. 21 to heirs of the Tallman Estate, acquiring the building for the previously-stipulated price.

The $16,630 bid for razing would push the cost to $61,630 — over the amount provided — and the lot still would not be ready for use.

Asked for an off-the-cuff estimate yesterday, City Engineer George Bloomgren said about $6,000 more would be required — including around $2,500 for blacktop, an estimated $2,000 for meters and $800 for walks between the parking lanes.

Reserving action, the mayor and the director decided the bid would be "received and filed for further study."

Mayor Goodballet pointed out the board could not accept the bid as matters now stand because state law requires the funds to cover the cost in such a case must be "on hand or in the process of collection" before a contract can be signed.

The mayor and director said they will seek a conference with Council, early next week if possi-

Warm Weather May Last Over Weekend

It's not Indian Summer but that fine weather may continue over the weekend with clear skies throughout, according to the Ohio weatherman.

Temperatures will remain mild with today's high range expected to reach 75 to 80 and tonight's low 48 to 55.

The downtown had a foggy low of 47 this morning.

The Stratton Dam reported a high Friday of 74 degrees and an overnight low of 52.

True Indian Summer follows an extended freeze or frosty period and is usually the last warm spell before the unbroken cold of autumn descends with the approach of winter. "The beautiful weather is just a bonus — true Indian Summer still lies ahead of us," the U. S. Weather bureau said.

Months ago, it was reported a wrecking concern had made a $10,000 estimate on the theater razing, but the price included the right to salvage valuable equipment such as the air conditioning and heating installations, the projection machines and the seats — all of which were removed before the city acquired ownership.

The mayor expressed surprise at the amount of the lone bid and said he was disappointed because more concerns did not file offers.

In its bid, the Cincinnati concern said it was to receive title to all salvage. It said it would carry insurance covering liability up to $250,000 and property damage up to $300,000.

The firm enclosed a brochure showing photos of some of the large buildings it has razed from coast-to-coast. It listed 11 branch offices located in cities as far west as San Francisco.

The city's plan calls for establishment of an off-street lot with spaces for about 40 cars. Parking revenue is expected to retire the bond issue over a 10-year period.

Fall Supplies Look Good

Homegrown Vegetables Less Plentiful On Market

Produce counters continue to offer a good variety of fresh vegetables — both Ohio grown and from other areas, reports Richard Skinner, Marketing Agent with the Co-operative Extension Service in Canfield.

Local supplies of sweet corn, tomatoes and most green leafy vegetables are in most cases off the market with the arrival of freezing temperatures.

This means that Southern and Western producing areas will become more important vegetable supply sources in coming weeks, especially for the more tender vegetables. Supply prospects for fall look fairly good.

Commercial production of all fall vegetables in the United States is expected to be only slightly below last year and the 10-year average. Smaller crops of carrots and lettuce are forecast but it is too soon for an accurate estimate.

At present, produce counters continue to offer a good variety of fresh vegetables — both Ohio-grown and from other areas. Much of our supply of green beans, cabbage, beets, carrots, potatoes, squash and cauliflower are from local fields.

The cabbage clan is now "in season" and easy on the food budget, flavorful, nutritious and low in calories. Cabbage, the "head" of the family, is available year'round but the locally grown fall varieties are now in season. Choose cabbage that has a reasonably solid head and is heavy for its size. The leaves should be fresh and crisp and firmly attached at the core.

Cauliflower, the family "aristocrat", will be in good supply during October and November. Choose a head which is white or creamy white and heavy for its size. The flower clusters should be compact. The jacket or outer leaves should be fresh and green. The size has little relation to quality. Large or small heads, equally mature, are equally good.

Broccoli, the "flower of the flock" will increase in supply during October with price reaching the low point near the end of the month. Look for broccoli with dark green or purplish green color with compact, unopened bud clusters. Buds opened enough to show yellow color are past their prime. Since the whole stalk (stem, leaves and flower clusters) is eaten, tenderness is necessary for quality.

Brussel sprouts, the "baby" of the family, will be in good supply from October through January. These miniature cabbages are best when they are compact or firm and fresh appearing with good green color. Puffy brussels sprouts are edible, but are usually of poor quality and flavor.

Chinese cabbage is a member of the mustard family rather than the cabbage family, but you may find it on some area markets. It is cylindrical in shape with heads 18 to 20 inches tall and about 4 inches thick. Chinese cabbage may be labeled celery cabbage. You'll find it has a flavor all its own.

Locally grown potatoes are of excellent quality and in good supply at local markets. Also potatoes sold in larger units usually cost less per pound than those in smaller amounts. The most popular sizes are five and ten pound bags. However during this period of harvest you will also find them for sale in 15- 25- and 50-pound bags.

Store potatoes at about 50 degrees basement temperatures. They will sprout at this temperature, but cooking quality will be at its maximum. Store potatoes on a platform to prevent spoilage.

3 Killed And 5 Others Hurt In Car-Truck Crash

LEWISBURG, W. Va. (AP)—A couple from the Portsmouth, Ohio, area and a Kentucky man were killed Friday when their auto attempted to pass another vehicle at the crest of a hill and collided with a panel truck.

All five persons in the truck, including one Ohioan, were injured in the accident on U.S. 60 about five miles west of here.

Dead are Howard L. Truitt, 54, and his wife, Garnet Louise, 48, both of Rt. 1, Wheelersburg, Ohio, and Cecil Q. Boswell, 51, of York, Ky. The driver of their car was not determined.

The truck was operated by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. Among the five federal employes injured, four were admitted to Greenbrier Valley Hospital at Ronceverte, including Harry Lippincott, 25, of Star Route, Pomeroy, Ohio, and one was treated and released.

Postponement Slated For Pre-Natal Clinic

LISBON—Columbiana County's eighth pre-natal clinic will not begin as scheduled on Thursday, because of the legal holiday and the Courthouse will be closed, according to Mrs. Violet Peterson, county health nurse and instructor of the class.

The class will begin on Oct. 19. At present only five are signed up, and any person wishing to attend these six pre-natal classes should contact the county health department at once, Mrs. Peterson said.

The intersection has been the scene of many spectacular crashes with some fatalities.

The area was very foggy. Motorists coming off Route 213 and heading north must cross the two southbound lanes of the four-lane road.

The dense fog, which blanketed the Tri-State district was blamed for a Lisbon St. collision in which two LaCroft women were hurt, police reported.

The crash involved an eastbound car operated by Linda Rae Evans, 19, of LaCroft Ave. which was hit in the rear by a 1958 sedan driven by Raymond E. Rudibaugh, 42, of Boring Ln., police said.

Miss Evans said she was headed east in the 1900 block of Lisbon St. about 10 to 15 miles an hour when struck in the rear by Rudibaugh.

Both drivers said the fog was so dense they were unable to see taillights on cars ahead. Patrolman Orin C. Smith, who investigated, said he would have driven past the mishap if he hadn't noticed the flashing red light on an ambulance.

Miss Evans' mother, Mrs. Ethel Evans, and the driver's wife, Mrs. Mary Rudibaugh, 36, were taken to City Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Evans suffered neck and head injuries and Mrs. Rudibaugh received injuries of the knee and head.

Rudibaugh was cited into Municipal Court for failing to stop in the assured clear distance.

Negotiators Study Bid In Bus Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Negotiators for the Transport Workers Union and Columbus Transit Co. (CTC) meet again today to mull over a new union wage proposal. If it's accepted, said J. Robert Tipton, Local 208 president, strike-idled buses "could be operating Sunday morning."

Tipton indicated he was optimistic. He called for a meeting tonight of the 550 union bus drivers, mechanics and maintenance men.

Candidates

candidate for Council president. He is running against Samuel B. Webber, 1730 Idaho Ave., GOP Fourth Ward councilman in 1958-59.

An East End hardware proprietor, Owen was named director after the death of Lee Copenhaver in mid-August. Owen won the Democratic nomination in May over Charles N. Edwards, the incumbent.

2nd Terms Sought

Two Democratic councilmen who survived the primaries are seeking second terms.

In the Second Ward, the incumbent is John F. Kelly, 1029 Vine St., employed 20 years at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. His GOP opponent is Kenneth C. Berg, 730 Bradshaw Ave., an employe of the Homer Laughlin China Co. who is making his first political bid.

In the Third Ward, Councilman Donald E. Smith also is seeking a new term. A Crucible employe, he resides on Woodbine Ave., Gardendale. Smith's GOP opponent is S. James Welch, 1008 St. John St., an employe of the Edwin M. Knowles China Co. Welch served as Third Ward councilman in 1938-39.

In the races for the five other Council seats, it's a case of Republican veterans running against Democratic newcomers. Virtually all the GOP nominees served on the 1958-59 Council, which was unseated in a clean sweep by the Democrats.

GOP Veterans In Field

GOP veterans comprise the field for three Council-at-large seats. They are Robert W. Sample Jr. of McKinnon Ave., finishing mill employe at Crucible, who previously served four terms; William Y. Orr of Princeton Ave., a Moore Furniture Co. employe who served six years in the Second Ward seat, and George E. Willshaw of Idaho Ave., a Standard Oil Co. employe who served three terms.

The Democratic candidates for the at-large seats are Frank Duffy of Holliday St., a Harker Pottery Co. employe and a leader in the Trades and Labor Council fight against city income taxes; James Moore of Lisbon St., a Crucible electrician and diner operator who ran for mayor in 1959, and Albert R. Sayre of Sophia St., a Crucible employe.

The winners in the six-way race will take the seats now occupied by Councilmen Norman Bucher, Donald S. Hancock and John Melvin.

Candidates for the First Ward seat are Floyd L. Murray of Etruria St., an expediter at the Crucible finishing mill, the Democratic nominatte, and Howard A. Tullis of Michigan Ave., the GOP aspirant. Tullis, also a Crucible employe, served as First Ward councilman in 1958-59, losing a bid for Council president in the 1959 primary.

Incumbent Is Candidate

In the Fourth Ward, the race will be between Edward B. Massey of W. Fourth St., Democrat, and Robert G. Duncan of Williams Ave., Republican. Massey is a millwright at Crucible, where he has been employed 19 years. Duncan, also a Crucible employe, served two terms in the Fourth Ward and was defeated in the 1957 primary in a bid for an at-large seat.

The two veteran members of the City Hall official family also have opposition. They are Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, Democrat, asking his sixth term, and Treasurer Bert A. Dawson, Republican, running for a 10th term.

UAW Local 600 Key To Ford Truce

DETROIT Mich. (AP) — Local 600 of the United Auto Workers Union—often called the biggest union local in the country—appeared today to hold the key to settlement of the UAW's strike against Ford Motor Co.

The strike began Tuesday and has idled 120,000 production workers at 88 plants in 26 states.

Local 600 represents more than 30,000 of the strikers at the Rouge industrial complex in Dearborn, Mich. It contains 17 of the 85 bargaining units are among 36 as yet not settled.

"Without the Rouge, nobody works," said one union man. "We have to wrap it up there."

The union reported what it called substantial progress within Local 600 Friday when it reached agreements with three units at Ford's steel division—the blast furnaces and coke ovens, the open hearth and the rolling mill.

Among other vital locations still unsettled are the Cleveland, Ohio, foundry and engine plants and the Canton, Ohio, forge plant. A strike at Canton once forced a virtually complete shutdown of all Ford assembly.

Negotiations resumed on a national level Friday, with a three-hour session, the first extended get-together since the strike began.

Talks continue today.

Both sides have indicated they will seek final settlement at both national and local levels before trying to resume production. Agreement was reached on an economic package just prior to the walkout Tuesday.

Wellsville Club Scholarship Aid Given Linden MacLean

The first grant from the Wellsville Kiwanis scholarship fund has been made by the Board of Directors to Miss Linden Lee MacLean, Miss Wellsville Jaycee of 1961, who has entered the Theater School at Pittsburgh.

The program was started about two years ago but this is the first scholarship granted. The program is in charge of the vocational guidance committee.

She graduated in June from Wellsville High School. Sponsored by the Wellsville Jaycees, Miss MacLean won the state title of Ohio Junior Miss of 1961 and represented Ohio in a national "American Junior Miss" contest at Mobile, Ala.

Agreement On Attitudes

Not even the most sincere booster of Chester can honestly state that the community attitude toward slot machines and liquor violations has been unrelenting condemnation.

Nor can the harshest critic of the city administration honestly claim that the task of halting these practices is made easy by the nature of state laws.

The appearance of a delegation at Chester Council's meeting this week to question the stand on gambling shows there is positive concern about the matter.

Such concern over increased gambling operations and illegal liquor sales and the accompanying decline of community standards in the Panhandle, as stricter Ohio laws drive operations across the river, is justified.

More than a few people in Hancock County feel strongly that West Virginia must act to curb such illegal activities before its growing reputation as a semi-haven for unsavory "expatriates" outbalances what progressive strides have been made culturally and economically.

State police already have said action will be taken to curb gambling in the Northern Panhandle, where more than a third of the 1,259 West Virginia gambling stamps located. Thursday night's raid in Newell shows Hancock County authorities are becoming sensitive on the matter.

But growing gambling and increased liquor by the drink sales call for a whole reappraisal of state standards and laws, by the legislature, by state and county leaders and by the citizens.

In Chester itself, there can be a crackdown on whatever activities are regarded as illegal and offensive — when the mayor, council, police and the community in general all agree on just what is offensive and illegal.

Sam Rayburn Played His Part

Partisanship fades away at the news from Texas that Sam Rayburn, who would have been 79 next Jan. 6, is gravely ill.

Most of us knew him only as a face in the news and as one of the personalities that flit across the country's television screens. Yet all of us who have wondered how representative democracy works have looked for the answer in the personality and know-how of men like Sam Rayburn.

In actual fact, he represents a district in Texas with less than a quarter of a million people — the Fourth District. But the influence he had earned by integrity, experience and comprehension of practical politics in one of the federal government's most sensitive spots, made Rep. Rayburn as speaker of the House of Representatives one of the strongest men in the nation.

If there were to be a disaster affecting both the president of the United States and the vice, the speaker of the House would become chief executive—and while Sam Rayburn was in Washington that made sense to everybody who knew first-hand about his devotion to the government. It was his life.

HE LEARNED the legislative trade first under Speaker Champ Clark when Texas sent him to Washington in 1913. That redoubtable leader of the House was to give way to Frederick H. Gillett, then to Nicholas Longworth, John Garner, Henry T. Rainey, Joseph W. Byrns and William B. Bankhead before Sam Rayburn and Joseph W. Martin, his bachelor counterpart on the Republican side, took over.

What has been their secret?

How do such men make representative democracy work?

They have single-minded devotion to the principle that civilization is a good relationship of individuals—an agreement among men to abide by rules that have been tested and judged satisfactory. Only with good reason are the rules ever changed, because they embody practices that have made it possible for honorable men to make honorable commitments. And they are never changed without notice.

SUCH MEN attract followers in spirit. They become rallying points for men who think as they think, who believe as they believe. And so they accede to leadership, not because they aspired to have power but because, being strong, power is bestowed on them in recognition of their right to hold leadership.

Rep. Rayburn has been that kind of a man. He has made representative democracy work in the only way it can be made to work—through faith in men who seek dignity under its banner and whose natural dignity gives dignity to the nation.

Gunplay At The Barricades

When does a cold war turn hot?

How many bullets can whizz back and forth across that line marked in the soil of Berlin before someone gives an order to step up the pace?

Who is going to be held responsible if a trigger-happy kid in the East German "police force" draws a bead on an American G.I. and shoots to kill?

This is not a potential skirmish between residents of a divided city—a municipal civil war. The Kremlin has declared that violation of the sovereignty of its satellite state in East Germany will be construed as an attack on the Soviet Union.

This is solidly established in the circumstances that have grown out of tension in Berlin as solidly as the policy of the United States, which has given notice that any violation of the sovereignty of West Berlin or of the access route to the city will be construed as an overt military move.

Would-be negotiators have that the United States and its allies could veer off this collision course with the Soviet Union and that Premier Khrushchev, in turn, would avoid a collision. But when bullets whizz across the Berlin barricades, the most hopeful negotiators must get shaky.

The matter is being taken out of the negotiators' hands by men with the guns and mobs with stones.

It is close to the point at which one full clip of bullets in an automatic pistol might speak louder than diplomacy.

Boys are holding in their careless hands the potential fate of nations. Some of them may be trigger-happy. All of them are subject to the terrible tensions they have been put under by the decisions of their governments.

May they find more wisdom than has been found so far by their elders.

Willingness To Pay The Price

College officials say they don't know why half the young men and women who start to college drop out along the way.

"We have been writing and talking about this for 40 years," said Blanchard L. Rideout of Cornell University in a speech to the American Council on Education, when it held its annual meeting in Washington last week," and we still do not have the answer."

The obvious reasons for dropping out of college cannot account for the high rate of falling by the wayside. Some students can't hold the academic pace. Some run into money difficulties they can't surmount. Some lose their health.

But what about all the others? What accounts for the ones who say they are bored, the students who decide to ditch it because they get married, the ones who never give college an honest try and finally are asked to leave?

In an era when there is universal agreement on the importance of a college education in terms of lifetime earning power and lifetime satisfaction, why do half of the young men and women lucky enough to start to college fail to finish?

That proportion, incidentally, does not hold true in all colleges and universities. Institutions that screen students closely before they are allowed to enter college have relatively few dropouts. Usually, they are caused by health or money. It is chiefly in institutions which do not practice advance screening that mass dropouts occur.

And that is where the answer is to be found.

Students screened in advance must show they possess a strong sense of purpose. They must prove by their own previous performance that they are willing to pay the price of being educated; that they are willing to put education first and other things second. It's that simple.

An applicant who never has done anything of note in high school doesn't have a chance to make the grade in a college or university that aims to graduate all but a handful of the freshmen students it accepted.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

A "Children's Hour" TV program as suggested by Newton Minow will be tried out by a major network. Longfellow's famous poem may have to be rewritten:

Between the school and the sunset
When the night is beginning to lower
Comes a switch in TV programming
Introducing The Children's Hour.

II

A short look and then a silence—
I'm filled with a certain dread:
The moppets will be unhappy
When no one is left for dead.

III

The TV is soon deserted —
The kiddies have fled for sure;
A show with the cast unbattered
Is something they can't endure.

IV

They chase me around the household
And stir up a fearful fuss;
Grave Alice and Dick start screaming,
"No show can do this to us!"

V

The others show great displeasure—
They jeer and they boo and hiss,
And cry loudly "Down with Minow!
He can't get away with THIS."

VI

I flee to my bombproof shelter
And hide in a spot well picked;
(A protest I'll make to TV . . .
I KNOW WHEN A FATHER'S LICKED.)

Maris home run total will be worth about $300,000 for extra commercials and appearances, it is estimated. His indorsements should include one for a wax to polish off pitchers and a vitamin that provides "that extra bang."

'All Ashore That's Going Ashore!

Logan Tree Still Stands

By Gunner Mussleman

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio Unofficial estimates indicate that the famous Logan Elm was visited during the past summer season by more persons than ever before.

Oh, yes, that historic old tree still lives in a small state park south of Circleville.

This is true in spite of headlines last spring which reported: "Raging storm claims famed Logan Elm" and "historic Logan Elm is felled by vicious winds." And it is true despite the mantle of authority given a highway department handyman who was quoted as saying the old tree was "destroyed" and that "There is nothing left to do but cut it up for souvenirs."

True, the mighty elm is a far cry from being a perfect specimen of plant life. But, like a gnarled and stooped old man, it revels in its remaining life and is anxious to stand witness to its colorful past.

And, like the old man, Logan Elm has left progeny which, in a sense, will cause it to live forever.

Mac E. Noggle, historian for Pickaway County, scoffs at "death reports" of Logan Elm. He points out that many of the smaller elms in the state park built around Logan Elm, sprang from the great tree's own seed. A state nursery near Columbus raises thousands of elms from Logan Elm seedlings.

ONE GROWS on the statehouse lawn in Columbus and another in Washington, D. C. And an entire New Orleans city preserve is covered with trees which originated in Logan Elm.

And an official of the Ohio historical society declared that as Logan Elm leafs out in spring, the venerated shrine will be spared from the woodsman's ax. Richard Fatig of Columbus, superintendent of properties for the historical society, inspected the great old tree and decreed that "it shall remain standing."

But when the time comes that this natural shrine no longer is able to withstand the force of the storm and fails some spring to send out that life—revealing sprig of green, there will still remain an enduring monument to the man whose name the great tree bears: the eloquent speech of the Mingo Indian chief, Logan.

That speech, which Thomas Jefferson said invited comparison with anything from Cicero or Demosthenes, still is recited by school children and has been translated into several languages.

STUDENTS of Mingo lore contend Logan's oratorical masterpiece was more than a speech—it was the passionate, immortal cry straight as an arrow from the heart of a noble savage.

Torn with anguish, Logan cried: "I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him not meat; If ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not. During the course of the last, long and bloody war, Logan remained idle in his cabin, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed as they passed and said, 'Logan is the friend of the white men.' I had even thought to live with you but for the injuries of one man. Last spring Captain Cresap, in cold blood and unprovoked, murdered all the relatives of Logan, not sparing even his women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country, I rejoice at the beams of peace. Yet do not harbor the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

The speech was recorded by a British army colonel, John Gibson, an aide to Lord Dunmore, governor of Virginia. And Gibson had more than a sympathetic ear to Logan's anguished appeal — his squaw was Logan's only sister and a victim of the massacre attributed by the Mingo chief to Captain Cresap.

It had been Gibson's assignment to seek out Logan to join other Indian chiefs in a final peace treaty with the whites. Following a decisive battle at Point Pleasant on the Ohio River, the Indians—with the exception of the Mingo—were ready to call a halt to hostilities.

THE INDIANS had been summoned together on the Pickaway plains by the Shawnee chieftan, Cornstalk. They included the Delawares, Miamis, Ottawas, Wyandottes, Cayugas. Their great war chieftains included Red Hawk, Black Hoof, Blue Jacket, Red Eagle, Cheeskau, Chiywee, Scrappathus and Cornstalk's son, Elenipsico.

While they were reluctant to lay down their tomahawks despite the whipping at Point Pleasant, the Indian chieftains agreed with Cornstalk that peace should be made with the whites.

But Lord Dunmore had great respect for the missing chieftain, Logan, and was convinced no treaty would be of value unless the Mingo's signature was present.

For that reason, Gibson was dispatched to confer with Logan. And their meeting 187 years ago next Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1774, was under a large elm tree on the banks of Scippo Creek in the heart of the Pickaway Plains. It is this tree which now appears to be slowly losing its battle against time.

When that last sprig of green fails to appear, and when only a withering stump remains — only a stump remains?—why, no, there still will remain that enduring monument — Logan's immortal speech.

No Argument

By Truman Twill

I do not want to get mixed up in the argument over whether a man who has built a bomb shelter for his family's security should share it with others in the event of nuclear attack.

The proposition is too iffy.

I think anyone who lets himself be trapped into saying he wouldn't share his bomb shelter under any circumstances is a fool. He is asking for trouble, because if word ever got out that he feels that way he might as well move out of the neighborhood as far as ever borrowing another lawn mower is concerned.

But the debate brings up a point about the possibility of nuclear attack that intrigues all of us who live outside the closely built-up areas of cities.

We know what would happen. Everybody in town would have the same thought — get out of town. There would be a rush to the country by all people still alive to make the move. Even if it were no more than a rumor of nuclear attack, people would get out of target areas.

That's what intrigues all of us with homes in the country.

We'd be swamped with uninvited guests. Some would not ask for what they wanted. They would take it. They would have brought along firearms to aid them in a dog-eat-dog operation.

We would have the wells, the houses and the food supply. We'd have the medicine and the creature comforts. They would size up our livestock, including cats and dogs, with hungry eyes.

They would show the same consideration for our property rights that they show each year when they go hunting.

We are not talking about all of them, only about the plug-uglies and terrorists who would take over if civil discipline broke down. We have them here the same as they have them everywhere else. They believe might makes right and they're in no mood to argue.

They would take over, because that is the way they think. Taking over is their predictable reaction. There would be a time of terror, and they would be the terrorists, pending oblivion for all of us or restoration of civil discipline.

The terrorists would know exactly what they intended to do, you see, and we wouldn't. They'd have the drop on us, because their plan would include knocking us off without compunction and we can't knock off anything without compunction, not even a chicken.

And that is what the big international issue's all about—people without compunction threatening to knock off everybody with compunction and it doesn't matter what particular name you give the terrorists, Communists or otherwise.

Come the blast and welcome to everything I have in RFD. I'll just be one of the dispossessed.

Seminars And Politics

By Duane Croft

Gov. DiSalle's Briefing Given Analysis

Looking back on Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's recent seminars for newsmen on state financing, one conclusion stands out above all others from the mass of facts and figures, charts and diagrams:

It comes from the politicians themselves who, being human, sometimes weary of their front-line battles in the halls of government.

And it comes from their constituents who, as individuals, flounder in seas of confusion over which side is telling the truth or, as members of organized pressure groups, find themselves allied against the side that happens to be in the political majority at the time.

But it is doubtful that any discussion, study or report on state financing could be really "nonpolitical." That's so whether the research took the form of a concentrated briefing—like the governor's seminars—or a protracted investigation directed by the Legislative Service Commission—as has been proposed by Republican leaders of the Ohio General Assembly.

THE REASON is that 15 people (or any other number) looking at the same set of facts and figures can come up with 15 different ideas on what they mean in terms of desirable political action.

It's a fact that while the dollar cost of the state school subsidy program climbed phenomenally, the state's share of the total cost of public education dropped from 46.4 per cent in 1948 to 33.3 per cent in 1960. This means local taxpayers have been picking up a bigger part of the tab through their votes on levies.

Is that bad? Many people—the governor and educators included—think so. They argue that many Ohio boys and girls still are not getting good enough training to serve them or their society in the future, that local taxpayers are burdened enough and that the state has an obligation to raise its ante.

But many other people believe it's a good trend, reflecting stronger local control of public programs and an increasing awareness by the citizenry of its collective responsibilities.

It's a fact that the state universities derive only about one-third of their income from taxes. The rest is supplied by student fees, gifts and relatively small federal grants.

Is that bad? Many people—the governor and university officials included—believe so. They contend students are tapped for more than they should be in an "equal opportunity" program and that the universities are nearing the limit of the burden they can carry by their own devices.

But many other people see nothing derelict in a political philosophy that demands a two-thirds contribution from the individual who wants to enjoy the benefits of a college education. And they challenge the wisdom of making it physically and financially possible for every child to go to college whether he's equipped for it or not.

THE SAME SORT of divergence between fact and conclusion can be found in virtually every phase of Ohio's $1 billion-a-year government.

The figures may be cold and unchallengeable (even that is not always true in government financing), but opinions on what they mean are always subject to challenge and the challenging process can get mighty heated.

That's politics. It's the process of making decisions through the political medium of the ballot box.

The governor's seminars were valuable as "background" because he and his top administrators did a highly creditable job of presenting the facts and figures.

But the seminars did not solve the political argument that has been raging in Ohio for these last several years and will range for many more to come.

It would have been impossible for the governor to keep attempts at political persuasion out of his seminars. It's equally impossible for his opponents to avoid attem at counteracting his persuasive efforts.

That's the way they strive for the "truth" in the argument—the majority decision of the electorate on which side is right.

Sherman's Ghost

By Raymond Moley

The minds of most politicians are eerie attics haunted by illogical and nonsensical superstitions. I illustrate by portraying the horns of a dilemma presented to Richard Nixon by some of his friends and numerous enemies. Find consistency in them, if you can: "He must run for governor to make himself available for a presidential nomination in 1964." And: "A governor elected in 1962 must serve as such for four years."

The first of these propositions has been and is questionable in Nixon's case. The second is a superstition largely created and believed in by politicians.

This question arose in 1942 when Thomas E. Dewey said, in accepting the nomination for governor of New York: "For my part, let me say right now that I shall devote the next four years to the service of the people of New York."

That has a large escape hatch through which the governor emerged without a scratch and without meeting criticism.

In January 1944, when the Dewey bandwagon was rolling along, I asked Gov. Dewey to explain the "inconsistency."

He called attention to the words "for my part" and then approved the following explanation, which I wrote in a magazine article:

"Even if he has pledged his service to the state of New York, as Dewey has done, the greater authority of the nation can break such a pledge. In short, the nation overrules the state and it also overrules Mr. Dewey, the servant of the state."

DEWEY SOUGHT the nomination openly and won it over opposition. I don't believe his course lost him a single vote in New York.

Gov. Rockefeller has said, with respect to the bearing of his own candidacy for governor on the presidential nomination in 1964: "I fundamentally don't believe in that kind of pledge." That makes a lot of sense. And I believe most voters also believe it makes sense.

After all, John F. Kennedy in 1960 had four more years to serve Massachusetts as its senator. But the people of his state voted for him as a presidential candidate.

Nixon's statement differed materially from that of Dewey in 1942. He made it perfectly clear that he would not in any way seek the 1964 nomination.

Dewey did not say that, and he did seek the nomination.

Nixon's statement should be accepted by the people of California without further qualification.

In 1884 Gen. Sherman was 65 years old and retired from the Army. James G. Blaine, the logical candidate, was reluctant to run because he believed he could not carry New York. He asked Sherman to take the nomination. Sherman replied as follows:

"I will not, in any event, entertain or accept a nomination. . . . I would account myself a fool, a madman, an ass, to embark anew, at 65 years of age, in a career that at any moment may be tempest tossed by the perfidy, the defalcation, the dishonesty or neglect of one of a hundred thou-unknown to the president of the United States, not to say the eternal worriment of a vast horde of impecunious friends and old military subordinates."

Later Sherman nailed the issue by a telegram to the convention saying: "If I am nominated I will not accept, and will not serve if elected."

THE DECISIVE differences are that Sherman was 65, he had no experience in civil government, and the time was the eve of the convention and not three years before. And he had only a few years to live.

The nation's interests would be poorly served to limit the choice of a presidential candidate to those in office whose terms expire in 1964 or to fellows named Joe who have no office at all.

The issue in California is Nixon or Brown, not Gen. Sherman. That should be enough to concern the people of that fine, big, and highly literate state.

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH

Dr. Franklin Clark Fry

"The Lord, Church, his family and the N. Y. Yankees," are, in that order, the great loves of Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, leader of more than 50 million of the world's Lutherans.

The son of a minister, who always knew he would be a minister, nevertheless, inwardly struggled during his seminary days to face and think through for himself questions of faith.

His resultant spiritual strengthening speaks for itself: Aside from his Lutheran positions and activities, his interest in overseas relief, he is Chairman of the Policy and Strategy Committee of the National Council of Churches and Chairman of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches.

The six-day series will end Sunday, Oct. 15, at 4 p.m. when the supervisor will give a public talk on "Where May Real Security Be Found." Bible study, using the Watchtower magazine, and final remarks by Weidner, will close the week's activity.

A public talk will be given tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Kingdom Hall, followed by a Watchtower study at 5:15.

"We do Remember You"

As if in shame, nature soon covers the unmarked grave. Have you forgotten someone? Yes, our loved ones want to be remembered with a true Memorial, not simpy labeled. It is possible for any family to express its sentiment adequately, eloquently, and yet, economically with a Graham and Wagner Monument, which says, "We Do Remember You."
If your family cemetery lot still lacks a Monument, why not consult us today, you still have time to erect a Memorial this year.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

This is the best bubble he has ever blown, big and shiny and full of rainbow lights that shimmer gaily as he blows . . . and blows . . . and blows . . .

Inevitably, there will come the moment, when he will blow too hard and the bubble will burst. And then what was a thing of bewitching beauty will have vanished into air.

Some of the brightest-appearing things in life are no more stable than bubbles. They can shatter in an instant. But there are values that endure . . . the kind of values we learn in Church. The Church can help us achieve something solid and real, and the faith it teaches us is in no danger of disappearing today . . . tomorrow . . . or ever.

Canton Central Grinds Out 34-0 Victory Over Potters

Wellsville Surprised By New Philly In 14-6 Reversal

Victor's Ground Game Nets 379 Yards; EL Drops 3rd

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Canton Central's crushing Crusaders netted 379 yards on the ground to pile up a 34-0 shutout over the East Liverpool Potters before some 4,000 fans Friday at Patterson Field.

You have to have the ball to score and Central saw to it that the East Liverpool Potters didn't get their hands on the pigskin too much last night.

East Liverpool ran only 26 plays from scrimmage as Canton Central controlled the ball and the clock in recording its fourth victory in five starts.

Coach John McVay brought a big husky Crusaders eleven to Patterson Field and with an offensive and defensive line going close to the 200-mark, any East Liverpool effort became futile.

Besides opening gaping holes for their "grinding machine" backfield, the Central defensive forces held the Potters to a net of 66 yards rushing and four first downs. Central moved the chains 22 times.

EAST LIVERPOOL didn't get inside the Central 40-yard line all night in dropping its third game in four starts.

Quarterback Tom Becherer triggered the Central attack. The 155-pounder scored two touchdowns and threw for two other six-pointers.

Jim Blubaugh, a ponderous 200-pound fullback, scored one touchdown and picked up a good share of the Crusaders' yardage.

Halfback Paul Penny was on the receiving end of one of Becherer's touchdown passes which came from the one-yard line and end Jim Proebstle, a 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, took a 43-yard scoring pass in the fourth period.

IT TOOK Central 11 plays to cover 64 yards after taking the opening kickoff. The big gainer in the drive was a 24-yard sprint by Blubaugh.

Becherer climaxed the march with 6:55 remaining in the first quarter when he plunged over from the two and Blubaugh tacked on the conversion.

The Potters gained a first down on their initial play from scrimmage when Tom Kraft smashed through a tackle slot for 10 yards. The drive was short-lived, however, and Kraft punted.

CANTON moved to its own 49 where Becherer, faking to his fullback, decided to keep the ball and rambled 51 yards for the TD with 3:37 still showing in the first quarter. A run for the conversion was stopped.

East Liverpool's deepest penetration of the evening came early in the second period when John Sparks, back in action after being sidelined with an injury, recovered a Canton fumble on the Potter 46.

On the first play Chuck Baker, the most outstanding performer for the Potters Friday night with his all-around play, scooted 16 yards to the Central 43. Len Oliver picked up three to the 40, but then Baker's long pass was intercepted on the one-yard line by Penny to end the threat.

In fact, the Potter line led by Captain Jim Ferello and big Jeff Hayes, did such a good job that the Crusaders were forced to throw a fourth down pass from the one yard line to score.

That went from Becherer to Penny on the right side with only four seconds to go in the half.

CANTON completely dominated the third quarter. Starting a drive on their own 34, the Crusaders chewed up the yardage and held on to the ball for 16 plays with Blubaugh hitting over the left side from one yard out with 1:44 remaining in the third quarter.

After the Potters successfully got a quick kick away in the fourth period, Central came marching back and scored with 6:13 remaining in the game on the 43-yard pass play from Becherer to Proebstle.

East Liverpool's Ferello, the senior tackle, turned in a strong performance against the big Central line and battled until he had to be taken out of the game in the last few minutes with cuts around the eyes. Stitches probably will have to be taken to close the wounds.

San Diego Faces Boston In Bid For 5th Victory

By The Associated Press

San Diego makes its second straight trip into the East Saturday to get the American Football shortened schedule on the way.

The Chargers, only unbeaten club in the league, will be after their fifth victory, with Boston the proposed victim.

There are only three games on the schedule this weekend, with New York, secure on top of the Eastern Division, and Oakland, in a tie for last in the Western Division, taking a rest.

Dallas journeys to Denver, and Buffalo Invades Houston for Sunday afternoon games.

San Diego went into the East last week and ran into a hornet's next at Buffalo. The Chargers, slowed to a walk by Buffalo's tenacious defense, had to rely on defense and kicking to win 19-11.

Boston may offer about the same problem. The Patriots haven't been winning much more than Buffalo, but they have been giving the opposition plenty of trouble. New York edged Boston 21-20 and 37-30, and the Patriots crushed Denver 45-17 and nosed out Buffalo 23-21.

Clay Faces Miteff In TV Bout Tonight

That question will be answered tonight when the 19-year-old Louisvillian meets Argentina's rugged Alex Miteff in a scheduled 10-round nationally televised (ABC TV, 10 p.m. EDT) boxing match at Freedom Hall. Clay is rated the 2-1 favorite.

Both heavyweights are expected to be in peak condition for the bout. Clay, who won the Olympic light heavyweight title last summer at Rome, will weigh in at about 192 against Miteff's 205 pounds.

Clay has an 8-0 record as a professional. The 26-year-old Miteff has compiled a 24-10-1 mark. He has kayoed 14 of his victims.

'Pressure' Now On Yanks

Palestine Scores In 4th Period

Stubborn Lisbon Finally Falls To Bulldogs, 14-6

East Palestine High continued unbeaten in the Tri-County League Friday night in squeezing by stubborn Lisbon, 14-6, with a final quarter touchdown.

Palestine turned a blocked punt into a touchdown to break a 6-6 final quarter deadlock and gain its fourth victory in five games.

The winners recovered the blocked punt at the Lisbon 44 and drove the distance for the deciding score. Bob Chaplow registered the decider on a three-yard buck, and Dave Smith plunged for the conversion.

Coach Bud Bucher's Blue Devils drew first blood in the second quarter after a long punt return to midfield. A penalty moved the Devils 15 yards to the Palestine 35. Gary Perchutti capped the series of plays with a three - yard buck. A run for the conversion failed.

East Palestine tied the score at 6-6 on Dave Smith's three - yard run in the second quarter. A pass operation covering 40 yards gave Palestine the scoring opportunity. Guy passed to Gary Norton for 14 yards, and Dave Smith broke loose to the Lisbon three, scoring from there moments later. A placement failed on the conversion try.

Then the Bulldogs blocked the Lisbon punt and wrapped up the game on Chaplow's short run.

Though the final score was close, East Palestine was on the Lisbon four - yard stripe when the final whistle ended the action.

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A shoeless quarterback, a major upset, a disabled referee, and an odd injury served to introduce the season's third big college football weekend Friday night.

Navy's hard-charging Middies not only ripped Miami's offensive patterns at key moments en route to a 17-6 upset but also piled up a referee so badly he had to leave the game.

Penn State quarterback Pete Liske, who inherited the No. 1 job only this week, ably directed the Nittany Lions to a first-half lead and capped his effort by literally running out of a shoe on a 33-yard touchdown that capped State's 32-0 conquest of hapless Boston University.

Florida used the old sleeper play and a second-string quarterback to engineer a second-half comeback and a 14-3 victory over winless Tulane.

Fired-up Navy gave halfback Jim Stewart beautiful downfield blocking as he swept 83 yards on a swing-pass play that accounted for a 7-0 second-quarter lead over two - touchdown favorite Miami. Navy defenders made the lead stand up, charging so hard they not only rocked the Miami runners but also put Referee John Lynch out of the game after he had got in the way of a Navy back.

Bobby Dodd Jr., son of the Georgia Tech football coach, directed Florida's second-half rally that overcame Tulane's 3-0 lead.

In major games today Iowa, top-ranked in the current Associated Press poll, may face a threat against Southern California. The Hawkeyes will play without the services of Larry Ferguson, a regular starting halfback who is out for injuries in the nationally televised game.

Reds Scent Victory In Third Game

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The World Series plunged into its third game today with the New York Yankees fretting over the landscaping of compact Crosley Field and the steamed-up Cincinnati Reds scenting a second successive series victory.

Despite their 2-1 betting edge, the pressure definitely was on the aching Yankees as the series, after a one-day layoff, resumed in perfect weather before an overflow crowd of 32,000 mainly wild-eyed Redleg partisans.

Starting time is 2 p.m. EDT, with the game to be telecast and broadcast nationally by NBC.

Compared with New York where neither of the first two games drew capacity, the series fever is burning at terrific pitch in this Ohio River metropolis.

Gaudy and giant signs everywhere exhort a Redleg victory, and the man in the street is a red-hot baseball fan. Tickets are going at scalpers' prices, one businessman being arrested for exacting $600—$50 a ticket—for a dozen $7.50 seats.

A typical series touch appeared in a downtown restaurant window. It read: "Special today: Roast crow for our N.Y. friends."

Both clubs were down to their No. 3 first-line pitchers—Cincinnati's Bob Purkey, 32, a knuckleballer, facing New York's Bill Stafford, who just completed his first full major-league season. Purkey had a 16-12 regular season mark, and Stafford, also a right-hander, had 14-9.

In Friday's workout in freshly, all-white painted Crosley Park, the Yankees were obviously concerned over the lush infield grass and the sharply-terraced outfield perimeter which, it is said, is mounded over utility pies.

It was reported the quite high infield grass, which would slow down rollers considerably, would be trimmed before game time. Consensus is that the Yankees have a better defensive infield than the Reds and would profit less from any grassy assistance.

This is a game in which the benched Mickey Mantle could turn the tide for the Yankees, who have had absolutely no help from their famed and fabled M&M home-run combination. Roger Maris, who set the all-time season homer mark of 61, has yet to hit the ball out of the infield in this series.

Maris failed to reach the Crosley Field 360-foot right-field bleacher mark in Friday's batting drill. But Mantle, who missed the two New York games because of an infected hip, swung an explosive bat in practice. He boomed four balls into the right-field stands, two into the center-field stands—batting left handed—and lofted two over the left-field wall at the 340-foot mark hitting right-handed.

Yankee Mgr. Ralph Houk said he would not decide on whether Mantle could start until today's pregame batting drill, but added: "Although I'm not ready to say he'll play, it looks less doubtful now."

Quakers Net 1st Win; Ours Injured In Second Half

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Underdog New Philadelphia turned the tables on the oddsmakers to stun Wellsville High, 14-6, for its first victory of the season Friday night at Nicholson Stadium.

A crowd of 1,400 looked on in cool, foggy weather to see Wellsville's football fortunes tumble with costly fumbles and an offensive attack that sputtered throughout.

A two - touchdown underdog, New Philly turned two Wellsville fumbles into touchdowns, then snuffed out the Tiger attack after regular quarterback Roger Ours was shelved by an injury a little more than a minute after the second half kickoff.

Ours was cut down by a downfield blocker at 11:28 of the third period and watched the remainder of the action from the bench.

His absence weakened the Tiger offense considerably and they were never able to get back into contention to overcome New Philly's 14-6 third quarter lead.

Coach Ken Woods' Tigers returned to the losing side of the ledger with a 2-3 mark after impressive wins over Toronto and Ashland.

Wellsville drove 64 yards on the opening kickoff for a touchdown, but was turned into a fumbling opponent shortly thereafter.

The Quakers pushed 25 yards in eight plays with 8:56 left in the second period to score after taking possession on a fumbled pitchout by a Wellsville halfback.

A fumbled punt deep in Wellsville territory presented another opportunity late in the third quarter, and the Quakers also made good on this one for a touchdown.

Christopher had lots of praise for his defensive unit which he declared was much - improved over the last game.

"Our defense was a lot better, and Jerry Holtzworth, 157-pound senior linebacker, did an especially nice job for us," the young coach said. "Also, this was the first time that our offense really got moving," he added.

Philly's defensive unit held Wellsville to only two first downs in the second half.

Wellsville started off the game by driving 64 yards and scoring at 5:58 of the opening quarter on halfback Alvin Thompson's eight-yard skirt of right end. A pass by Ours to end Andy Dash was unsuccessful for the conversion.

Philly recovered a badly-tossed pitchout by Ours near the end of the first period and marched 25 yards spanning the quarter break to score on fullback Bob Snyder's one - yard crash over center. Halfback Harold Edwards swept end for the two - points conversion.

Early in the third period, Wellsville halfback Frank Luckino fumbled a New Philly punt at the Wellsville 10, and the visitors needed only three plays to score on Miller's buck over the center. A run failed for the conversion.

Sub quarterback Jim Reed, 140-pound sophomore, took over the Wellsville controls for Ours but couldn't whip up an effective attack as the Tigers commenced to play some ragged football.

However, Wellsville guard Mike Thompson, rugged 190-pounder, never let up for a moment and was the game's standout on defense.

Wellsville stuck to a strict diet of end sweeps and tackle slants and gained no yardage through the air.

Fullback John Euill led the Tiger ball carriers with 50 yards in 11 cracks at the quick-hitting New Philly line. Halfback Alvin Thompson gained 46 yards in 14 carries, while Ours picked up 43 in nine attempts.

Edwards accounted for 73 yards in rushing in 13 carries for New Philly. Snyder gained 50 yards in 17 carries.

The Quakers also used punting to their advantage when Wellsville failed to drop receivers deep enough in the secondary on two occasions. With no runbacks, the Tigers had to struggle a little harder to get out of their own territory.

Luckino made two dandy runs for Wellsville, but his longest of 27 yards was nullified by a penalty. He also intercepted a New Philly aerial when Euill rushed hard on the Philly quarterback.

Besides the well - conditioned Thompson, end Jack Culp helped out on the Tiger forward wall with numerous tackles. Tackle Alvin Jackson boomed one kickoff a yard inside the New Philly end zone.

Wellsville surprised the Philly defense for a 19-yard gain in the first half when Ours broke loose on a fake punt maneuver handled flawlessly by Dan Corbisello.

Panthers Drop 3rd Tilt

Chester's homecoming was dampened when Warwood came to town and walked off with a 30-6 victory Friday night at City Park.

The visitors grabbed a 30-0 lead at the end of three quarters and didn't allow Chester to cross the goal until the last 11 seconds of the contest.

The loss put Chester below the .500 mark, leaving Coach Dom Amedeo's team with a 2-3 record.

Warwood received a break early by recovering a fumble on the Chester 28. Annett went 14 yards for the TD with 4:36 remaining in the first quarter.

The second TD came on a 63-yard drive climaxed by a pass from Kota to Ruthers with 1:53 left in the half. But before the half ended, only three seconds showed on the clock when Annett hit Dunlevy on a pass play covering 41 yards.

The final TD was set up on Ruthers' 38-yard punt return with Plummer smacking over from one yard away.

Chester marched 81 yards for its lone touchdown and just got in under the wire. With 11 seconds to go, Don Reese took a 15-yard pass from Gary Mayhew for the score. The touchdown had been set up on a Reese-to-Bob Myers aerial good for 22 yards.

2 More Cards Crippled For Giants Game

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals, known as "the incredible cripples," will have two more players watching from the sidelines Sunday when the Redbirds play the New York Giants in a game that should help to unscramble the five-way tie for first in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

The game will open the Cardinals' home schedule. The latest injured Cardinals are offensive end Hugh McInnis and a flashy punt return specialist, rookie Pat Fischer.

McInnis injured his left knee, and Fischer suffered a shoulder separation in last weekend's 30-27 upset of the world champion Philadelphia Eagles.

Two other Cardinals, fullback Frank Mestnik and defensive end Joe Robb, may see only limited action. Mestnik has a sprained arch and Robb a sore foot.

The Cardinals and the Giants both have 2-1 records along with the Dallas Cowboys, the Eagles and the Cleveland Browns.

Vaughn, Trbovich Spark Ground, Aerial Attack

By ANDY NUZZO

Behind the running of fullback Earl Vaughn and the passing of quarterback Steve Trbovich, the Midland Leopards rolled over the Monaca Indians, 31-0, before some 2,500 fans at Midland Friday night.

Vaughn bulled his way for 113 yards in nine carries and three touchdowns, while Trbovich hit five out of six passes for 119 yards and one TD as the Leopards registered their second victory.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt as the Leopards hopped on a Monaca fumble on the Monaca 43 and proceeded to score in six plays.

Midland moved for one first down and had a third down situation on the Monaca 30, when Trbovich faded back and hit halfback Rich Lake with a TD pass. Epley's placement was good, but Midland was offside and guard Mike Swager blocked Epley's second try.

Midland came right back after taking a Monaca punt and moved from the Monaca 38 to paydirt in four plays. On the first play, Trbovich hit Vaughn with a screen pass for 22 yards and moved the ball to the 16. Epley went over from the one three plays later. His try for placement was wide and Midland led, 12-0, with 5:25 remaining in the first quarter.

Midland scored its third TD of the game as the first quarter ended. It was set up when center Paul Anthony fell on Jerry McIntosh's fumble on the Monaca 37.

With a second and 12 situation on the Monaca 39, Trbovich was spilled for a nine-yard loss to the 48. Here Trbovich again hit Lake with a pass, this one covering 47 yards, moving the ball to the one. Vaughn scored his first TD of the night on the next play. Epley's kick was wide and Midland led, 18-0, at the end of the first quarter.

Midland wasted no time in scoring its fourth TD of the night. After stopping a Monaca drive at the Monaca 37, the Leopards went 63 yards in six plays, the clincher being Vaughn's 25-yard jaunt off tackle. Trbovich's pass for the extra point fell incomplete.

Monaca had its most-serious drive of the night stopped by an interception. Monaca had a fourth and goal on the Midland 14 when end John Girting intercepted Bergiel's aerial on the four, and lateraled to Rich Spanik who brought it out to the 25.

Midland's last TD was a real crowd pleaser. The Leopards took the second half kick-off and looked as if they were on their way for another score. Trbovich hit end Paul Cacic for a 13-yard pass play to the Monaca 38, but Cacic fumbled when he was hit and Monaca recovered.

Monaca could not move the sticks and punted. Spanik took the punt on his 27 and returned it to the 30. On the first play, Vaughn scampered up the middle, bouncing off would - be - tacklers, and went 70 yards for his third TD and Midland's final one. Epley converted and Midland led, 31-0, with 8:15 left in the third stanza.

Coach Charles Polce substituted freely the rest of the game and the Midland reserves threw back Monaca's last two attempts to score.

Midland ran up 201 yards rushing and 119 passing for a total of 320 yards. Helping Vaughn with the ball carrying chores was Lake, who ran up 60 yards in eight carries. He also was Trbovich's main target gathering in two passes for 77 yards.

Monaca managed 91 yards on the ground and 58 in the air.

Highly - impressive was the play of Midland's front line, led by Anthony, Bob love, Girting, and Ted Vaughn.

Regulars Henry Tookes, Lou Kruel and Tom Flasco dressed but did not see any action due to injuries.

Next Friday night the Leopards wil entertain the Rochester Rams.

Wells, 501 Jefferson St., she was crowned at halftime ceremonies of the Wells High-South Side football game. The 16-year-old senior was selected by the football team. Other queen candidates were Sue Robinson and Karen Simmons, while attendants were Susan Ward and Jennifer Allison. A dance in the high school followed the football game which Newell lost, 27-7.

Coach Dave Nichol's squad came out for the second half and pushed across 13 points in the third quarter and seven more in the fourth.

Newell came back when Dave Bell intercepted a pass in South Side territory and halfback Keith Wilson raced 10 yards for the TD. Tom LeMasters' placement was good and the game was deadlocked, 7-7.

Opening the second half, nifty quarterback Chuck Schmidt threw a 17 - yard scoring pass to end Bob Malone to climax a 70-yard drive. The same combination hooked up for the conversion.

Late in the same period Curt Clay bulled over from four yards out to end a 75 - yard march.

The Rams were on the move again in the fourth quarter when a 70-yard drive ended with Kenny Rosak plunging over from the one - yard line, then kicked the extra point.

Minerva opened up its offense in the second period to cross the Leetonia goal three times.

By The Associated Press

College football deaths this year already have exceeded the total for the entire 1960 season with William Foster, 20-year-old guard for Johnson C. Smith University, the fourth player to die due to injuries attributed to the sport.

In addition, 11 high school players have died of injuries suffered on the football field, or from indirect causes. Two deaths on the semi-pro level also have been recorded during the early part of the 1961 season.

Foster, a native of Indianola, Pa., who was a third-stringer for the Golden Bulls, died Thursday, 10 days after he was kicked in the stomach while making a tackle during a practice session at the Charlotte, N.C., school.

Monday, John Zola, 20, Lebanon Valley College player, died after undergoing an emergency operation for removal of a blood clot in the brain. Zola collapsed after a game against Drexel Tech, but the cause of death was never determined officially.

The other two collegians who died, both after sustaining injuries in practice sessions, were Donald G. Foley, 19, of Pasadena, Tex., a member of Navy's junior varsity, and Howard Kauwe, a 17-year-old freshman from Hilo, Hawaii, who played for Iowa Wesleyan.

Titan Missile Fired Successfully Again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force sent its Titan intercontinental range missile winging to its eighth straight success on a 5,000-mile test flight down the Atlantic range Friday night.

The flight further confirmed reliability of the Titan and edged it nearer combat readiness. The first nine-missile squadron is slated for deployment at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., late this year.

The success was the third this week for a long - range U.S. missile. Earlier, two Atlases hit targets 5,000 and 9,000 miles away.

The Titan was steered by a self-contained inertial guidance system designed for use in later, more powerful Titan I missiles.

Autoist Hurt On Route 170

An area motorist was hospitalized with injuries suffered in one of three accidents on Route 170 Friday night and early today.

Joseph Jack Reese, 31, of the Fredericktown Rd. is in "fairly good" condition at City Hospital with injuries received when his car overturned on Route 170 about two miles north of Route 30 this morning at 3:35.

Officers at the Lisbon barracks of the Ohio State Highway Patrol said Reese was headed north when his car went off the right side of the highway, struck a fence and then upset.

Cars driven by Don S. Sowards, 39, of R. D. 2 and Cleason Woodford, 61, of R. D. 2 collided on Route 170 about a mile north of Route 30 Friday at 6:45 p. m.

Woodford drove onto Route 170 from County Rd. 43 and into the path of Sowards, the patrol said. Moderate damage resulted to both vehicles. Woodford was arrested for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Arthur L. Felger, 24, of East Palestine escaped injury when his car overturned on Route 170 just south of Route 14 at 3:20 a. m. today, officers said.

Felger apparently fell asleep at the wheel. The car went off the left side and then rolled over. Felger was cited for driving left of center, the patrol said.

Library Has Film On 'White House' In Travel Series

A 15-minute color feature on the "White House, Past and Present" leads the list of a dozen new travel films at the Carnegie Public Library.

The camera takes its audience into famous rooms and offices seldom seen by the public. From the original plans to the expanded and remodeled mansion of today, the film traces the story of the famous building and the residents for whom it has served as home and office.

Other American subjects among the travelogues are a 13-minute color study of the "St. Lawrence Seaway," and a 19-minute portrayal of the splendor of "Yosemite."

A free trip around the world is possible through the fine array of foreign travel subjects: "Report on Puerto Rico," "Serenal" (a West Indian idyll), "The Amazon," "Germany," "The Middle East," "People of the Netherlands" and "India-Pakistan."

A fine basis for scout programs and the entertainment of young children is found in the excellent selection of nature films:

"In the Forest," a new short in which animals play "Drop the Kerchief;" "Grass Blade Jungle," "Kangaroos," "Monkey Who Would Be King," "Animals of the Indian Jungle" and an outstanding 15-minute study of "Reptiles."

Curiosity about early man can be solved by viewing the "Cave Dwellers of the Stone Age." Their weapons and tools exhibited in a museum can make an informative program.

For the space age fans, there is "Understanding Our Universe," concerning the solar system, the Milky Way and countless galaxies.

Rayburn Had No Rival Faction

Majority Leader Looms As Next House Speaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sam Rayburn's long, unchallenged reign as speaker of the House of Representatives apparently has cleared the way for an orderly succession by Majority Leader John W. McCormack to Rayburn's seat of power—at least temporarily.

The grip of the strong-willed, but kindly Texan on the speakership has been so strong no rival faction ever developed. And his tenure has been so long the ambitions of any potential rivals have cooled with age.

So, it would seem almost certain at this point that McCormack, a Bostonian, would follow the traditional upward path and ascend to the speaker's chair when Congress convenes Jan. 10 for the second half of its current session.

McCormack, 69, is already speaker pro tem by formal vote of the House. He was elected late last month when Rayburn was forced by illness to return to his home at Bonham, Tex. Rayburn is gravely ill with cancer and aides say his days may be sharply limited.

No predictions of harmony and order would be valid beyond the next session, however. McCormack, despite 21 years as Rayburn's lieutenant in the House Democratic leadership, has nothing like the solid support that made Rayburn speaker more than twice as long as any other man.

The dreams of power so long suppressed by strong and capable members of the House while Rayburn ruled the roost seemed bound to burst into reality. And a many-sided struggle for the job whose holder is third in line for the presidency should soon develop.

A possible obstacle to McCormack may be supplied by the White House. But, the possibility of President Kennedy intervening is considered a long-shot possibility at this point.

Kennedy and McCormack have been at political odds in the past in Boston, their home city. And, in the last session, McCormack antagonized the administration by insisting that parochial schools have some share in proposed federal aid to schools.

McCormack's view, shared by some other congressmen, was a key factor in helping cut the heart from Kennedy's ambitious school aid legislative program.

McCormack's chief challengers at the moment would appear to be the handful of men who help run the House—the chairmen of the important committees: the party whip, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla.; his assistant, Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La.; the astute and greatly liked Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., who has indicated he may retire; Rep. Albert Rains, D-Ala., a Southerner with strong Northern backing, and Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., widely regarded as Rayburn's choice for a successor. One of the committee chairmen considered a possibility is Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

Whether McCormack can be toppled, however, is another matter. To his basic training in the tough school of Boston politics he has added 33 years in the House, two-thirds of them as his party's floor leader, and whatever happens he won't be taken by surprise.

Most Eligible Ohio Counties Slow To Take Economic Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the 20 Ohio counties eligible for economic aid from the Area Redevelopment Administration have been slow to take advantage of the new federal program.

Only Scioto County has submitted an over-all economic development plan. This is the first step in seeking low interest loans, grants and technical assistance from the administration.

"The thing that's been tough is to get the communities to plan their future," one agency spokesman said.

Redevelopment officials indicated the action of the Ohio Legislature in slashing the budget of its state industrial development department was partly responsible for the slow response to the federal program.

Federal spokesmen emphasize the importance of community and state cooperation to develop a blueprint of economic recovery for the designated areas of low income and high unemployment.

The program bars any assistance until a designated area submits a comprehensive redevelopment plan.

The Ohio Industrial Development Department was given only $200,000, compared with more than $3 million that similar departments in Pennsylvania and New York received from their legislatures, federal spokesmen said.

Redevelopment officials also attribute the slow response in most of the Ohio counties to early misconceptions that the program "is a quick way out of their problems." Some apparently lost interest when they discovered it is not.

"This is no quick deal," one spokesman said. "Area leaders must first come to grips with community problems before obtaining federal funds."

McCloy Quits Disarm Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — John J. McCloy has turned in his final report as presidential disarmament adviser.

He quit Friday and received President Kennedy's thanks for the work he had done.

"You have made a notable contribution to the country and to the world in this most important area," Kennedy told him in a letter.

The White House said McCloy's advice in the disarmament field will continue to be available, perhaps in some formal position.

A new law created an arms control and disarmament agency, and Kennedy named William C. Foster to head it.

McCloy, Kennedy's special adviser on disarmament since Jan. 27, had a hand in formulating the legislation that established the new agency.

In a letter to Kennedy, he said that with the passage of the legislation, the conclusion of some negotiations with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin regarding a forum for disarmament talks, and the presentation of a U.S. disarmament plan to the United Nations, he considered his mission completed.

A 24-hour broom sale is planned tentatively in April or early May, he announced.

Others Stand By Nasser

70% Of Syrians Happy To Be Out Of UAR Rule

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—About 70 per cent of Syria's people are glad to be out from the oppressive rule of President Nasser and his United Arab Republic, informed sources say.

The people were sick of the stiff import restrictions, crippling economic decrees, the secret police, terror and unheard-of income taxes imposed by Cairo.

The remainder of the population still stands by Nasser, these informants say. A small but vocal segment of Syria's 4½ million people, it consists of rabid Arab nationalists and Nasser-worshiping students.

Whether the revolutionary regime of Premier Mamoun Kuzbari can command the loyalty of the Nasser-hating majority is another question.

Composed of known rightists and professional men, the revolutionary cabinet may prove not revolutionary enough for some Syrians, possibly even for some segments of the army that installed it.

Despite the regime's neutral policy, 11 of Kuzbari's 12 ministers lean clearly to the West. Syrians are sensitive to accusations of imperialism or capitalism.

Kuzbari's cabinet faces troubles from Egypt, its partner in the U.A.R. until last week's military uprising dissolved those ties.

Nasser is expected to pour in money and agents to whip up dissent and work on Syrian feeling for Arab unity. Damascus once was the capital of Islam and these feelings may be even deeper in Syria than in the rest of the Arab world.

Nasser's powerful propaganda has lost some of its effectiveness in the last three years, however, and closer Syrian ties with neighboring Iraq and Jordan might be enough to offset it.

Two patrolmen coaxed Watson down after he took off his clothes and waved his arms while the New York Yankees worked out after arriving at Cincinnati for the third World Series game. Police said a friend of Watson's told them the young man was an outpatient at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

CONCRETE JUNGLE GYM

The facial expressions appear more menacing than the guns as a cop and a robber argue about who outgunned other.

Aiming as if his life depended on it, sidewalk sportsman prepares to "erase" a competitor who has landed in a high scoring box. Boys also use bottlecaps.

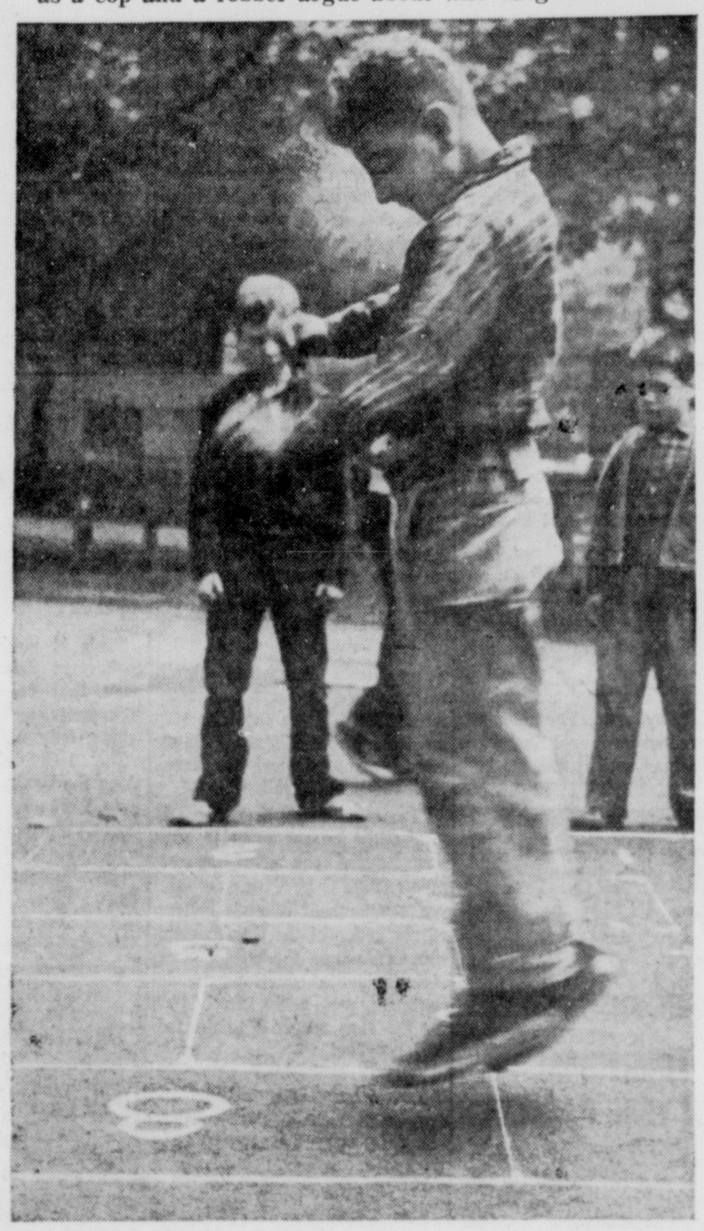
On the Surface It's All Fun Even If It Is Really Cement

TO A CITY youngster the world is the block on which he lives. His playground is a concrete jungle gym that can offer much for those whose lives are governed by the rules of "Potsie," cops and robbers, stickball and bottle caps.

The local playground, with its swings, overhead ladders, slides and seesaws, permits young Tarzans to give vent to their inexhaustible energies. The city boy's playworld is built of concrete. Grass to him is only a place to put signs reading "Keep Off."

The sidewalk is still the favorite playground for most. Here he can frighten unwary pedestrians as he careens by in a makeshift wagon whose wheels never have been formally introduced. Its power is solely dependent on the frayed clothesline of a neighbor who still believes it to be holding the day's wash.

Lost completely in the pursuit of fun, city children love the block on which they live. While most will agree that living on a farm would be nice, cows and horses can't replace the gang when it comes to making a soapbox wagon or a scooter from discarded roller skates. Besides, who ever heard of playing cops and robbers in a cornfield?



Under the critical eye of two non-blinking playmates, "Potsie" expert shows skill. Each playground has a champion.

The playground slide is still a favorite among the kids. It is shined daily by the pants of users.

Two daring young ladies on the flying trapeze. Soaring higher and higher, the girls find the swing never loses its magic.

Crew Asks $300 For 'Spray Job' On Newell Home

The Chamber of Commerce today repeated its standard warning to householders, "Investigate before you invest," after an elderly Newell woman complained she was charged $300 by an itinerant crew that sprayed aluminum paint on the roof of her home.

The woman complained to the Chamber she was approached a few days ago by a man who said his Pennsylvania crew "just happened to be passing by from another job and noticed your roof was in bad shape."

He offered to "fix it up" by spraying the roofing with aluminum paint and assured the woman that it "won't cost you very much," she said.

When the job was finished, the crew presented a bill for $300. The bill is unpaid. The woman referred the crew to her son, explaining that he takes care of all her large accounts.

The Chamber reiterated its warning that householders approached by itinerant workmen and vendors should consult reputable local tradesmen and obtain estimates of the needed work.

D. 1, recently participated with other personnel from the 26th Artillery in Checkmate, a NATO tactical training exercise in Germany. An operations sergeant in the artillery's Battery A in Aschaffenburg, he entered the Army in 1943 and was stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla., before arriving overseas in August 1958. His wife, Lotte, is with him in Germany.

Hearing Due Monday For Boy In $15 Theft

A 15-year-old Railroad St. boy accused of stealing a piggy bank with $15 from an East End home is scheduled for a hearing Monday at 10 a. m. before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin.

The court appearance was set Friday afternoon when the youth appeared at City Hall before Probation Officer Chris Pusey. The boy's parents were instructed to attend the hearing before Judge Tobin.

The youth was taken into custody Wednesday, accused of stealing the bank Saturday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Charles Bayer, 1009 Monaca St. The housewife said a thief entered via an unlocked door and took the bank from the diningroom table.

Householders Report Pranks On Telephone

Householders in the Minerva St.-Avondale St. district complained today they have been bothered for a week by a series of mysterious telephone calls apparently placed by thoughtless pranksters.

Women particularly have been subject to quizzing by the unidentified callers, who ask: "Are you alone?" or "Is your husband at home?"

Householders said the calls generally are placed after nightfall, leading some to suspect would-be burglars are checking to find unoccupied houses.

COMMUNITY

PRIDE IS ADMIRABLE, as is this lovely home in Calcutta—very admirable! Words can not describe it fully enough to be appreciated. A few words, if we were to try to describe it, would be—4 bedrooms, 2½ baths (one with vanity), custom kitchen with built-in oven, laundry (with washer and dryer), and mud room off the spacious kitchen, sliding glass doors to the outside from the dining room, phone jacks in all rooms, radio and intercom system through out the house—Phew! I'm out of breath. Call us for more details on this exquisite home.

GLENMOOR—Remember 3 or 4 weeks ago when we advertised the beautiful property with the colonial three bedroom home and nearly three acres of landscaped grounds.
At that time, we turned away some people who were interested in the home and part of the grounds. We are now offering it with a sizable landscaped lot at only $17,500—more or all of the ground available if desired.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Child Must Be Taught Table Manners

It's wonderful when, as a rule, in a family of several children over four or five, all remain leisurely at the table in companionable conversation until the last person has finished eating. Such desirable ways may not be easily attained. One or more children may be eager to hurry off to play. They may even prefer to pass up dessert. Of course, if they leave the table before dessert is served, they might well be told they can't come back for it later. While I was discussing this matter with a certain father, he referred to a daughter, 14, who lately has been working hard to reduce her excessive weight.

Dr. Garry Meyers

"IT SEEMS easier for her to cut down on food if she leaves the table rather early," he said.

I conceded that he had a good point.

Then, too, the tot three or four may get pretty tired waiting at the table after he has finished. But there comes a time, say at eight or ten, certainly at 12 or 14, when he should learn to wait for a reasonable time after he has finished eating.

The desirability of his doing so becomes apparent when the family eats out together or when there are dinner guests. When, for example, you parents and your children eat at a public place and the child older than six or eight, or as old as 14, insists on leaving the table and roaming about, he seems pretty immature. There's value in some wholesome self - discipline here.

You might well consider announcing to the children over three or four that they shall remain at the table until a certain time you will state — at the end, say, of 20 minutes. In the home, a clock may be set to ring at this time in the interest of certainty.

FOR THE CHILD over six or eight who inclines to bolt his food so he can hurry out to play, a definite time limit adhered to may have desirable effect. This is far better than nagging at him constantly to eat more slowly.

Seeing that he must wait till a certain time to leave the table anyway, he will naturally come to the conclusion that he might as well not hurry.

The foregoing does not take account of the child commanded to remain at the table until he has finished the food served him. There's hardly a justifiable excuse for such a case.

This problem may be avoided as follows:

Don't serve the child of any age an unreasonable amount of food. Let him decide how much of any food he is served. Even let him serve as small a portion as he chooses, so long as the amount is visible.

My bulletins, "Eating Problems II" and "The Very Selfish Child," may be had by sending a self - addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Port Homer Group To Discuss New PTA

Plans for organizing a new Parent-Teacher Association unit will be discussed at a meeting of parents from Empire, Stratton and Port Homer Monday night at 7:30 in the new Edison Elementary School.

Previously, Port Homer was the only community of the three riverfront towns in the Stanton Local School District with a PTA unit.

The new consolidated Edison school serves the three communities. It opened Sept. 15.

Mrs. Eleanor Hartford of Toronto will speak on PTA activities and organization. Darrell Furbee, president of the Port Homer PTA, will act as chairman.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Happy Dieter Finds Life 'Fun'

Stretch your mind with a habit-changing idea. Instead of looking upon your favorite fattening foods as adding to your pleasure in life, regard the excess pounds as standing in your way of feeling young and having fun. This shift in emphasis can be unexpectedly energizing. Enthusiasm is contagious, so read on!

Ida Jean Kain

"I can't believe it is me riding a bike, or swimming or playing ball and badminton. I'm havnig fun again!"

This line was included in a triumphant report from a young woman who, in the summer of 1960, couldn't get into a size 52 bathing suit. She weighed 250 pounds. As she struggled with the suit, she sensed that the summer ahead would be no fun at all, for she had allowed eating to crowd out all other pleasures.

SUDDENLY a new resolve was born in her heart. Out came the calorie chart from its hiding place and she began. Here is her mid-summer report of 1961.

"On July 4th we had a party, not only to celebrate our country's independence, but my independence from 100 excess pounds. I feel like a new person. People do not even recognize me this summer. Who can blame them? Last summer I wore size 52 and now I am wearing size 18. I'm getting closer to that prize size 16 all the time.

"When I see someone who is fat, as I was, I don't tell them to diet because that won't help. Every one would tell me, 'You're an R.N., you should know the danger of overweight.' It's true, I knew. My 10-year old daughter didn't want me to visit her school and I knew why...even though she didn't say.

"I really feel like a crusader and wish I could help others. I realize, however, that the incentive must come from within. But this I can promise...when you finally decide to slim down, and keep your mind on your goal, you can do it.

"Even my doctor is surprised at my will power. I no longer look 50 years old. Now I look more like my 36 years. I still want to shed 20 pounds but I am no longer anxious. By next summer I should be the size 16 I want to be and I will stay there forever.

"Now that I have lost all this weight I am able to exercise to improve my figure.

"I feel so wonderful. One hundred excess pounds seems almost impossible to lose. But if I could do it, I know every overweight can. I was just a sucker for chocolate cake and pudding and all the fatteners. I know now that nothing is better than having enough energy to live life fully.

"I HAVE GONE back to nursing again now, for R.N.'s are scarce. I had planned to report earlier, but this summer I have been so busy having fun and trying to make up for the lost years.

"One day soon I will send you some before and after pictures. They really tell more than words can ever say."

Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for "Revised Calorie Chart." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this newspaper. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

Mainz, Germany, the cradle of modern printing, will celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of its founding in 1962.

Midland NAACP Plans Trip For President

The Midland branch of the NAACP decided Wednesday evening it will send Will T. Leavell, president, to the Pennsylvania State convention Nov. 3-5 at Easton.

Plans were also made for a "Halloween Folly" for members and guests, Tuesday, Oct. 31, at the Masonic Hall on Ohio Ave. There will be dancing, games and refreshments. Mrs. Martha Gray is chairman.

Wandering Girls' Parents Hearing Set

LISBON — The hearing for parents of two Salem girls found playing alone in a downtown department store in Youngstown last Saturday was continued until Oct. 16, at 1:30 p. m. by Judge Louis Tobin Thursday afternoon.

Atty. R. E. Coe requested the continuance so that the grandmother where the girls were supposed to stay, can appear to testify.

Authorities said the girls, one 5 and other 8, were sent unaccompanied to Youngstown last Friday by bus to visit their grandmother. They were not met at the bus station but they found the grandmother's home. They spent Friday night there and when they awoke Saturday morning they found they were alone. They got their own breakfast as their grandmother had gone to work. They then wandered downtown and were found playing with dolls in the store after police were called by the store owner.

Meet Miss Somebody from Iowa

Photos and Text by OZZIE SWEET

An artist needs a model, and Jo Ann, 18, finds Mary Jean a wonderful one—"so patient" (beautiful, too).

BIG SISTERS don't always come highly recommended by little sisters. An exception is the Miss Somebody I found in Davenport, Iowa. Mary Jean Bartosch is just as nice as she looks, say her four sisters—Jo Ann, 18, Inga, 15, Kris, 12, and Gretchen, 9. Each can give reasons for saying so.

"She's a wonderful model for my art work—so patient," explains Jo Ann, the "talent" of the family. Mary Jean, who is 19, hopes she can save enough money from her job as head cashier at an apparel shop to help Jo Ann through art school.

Inga is outgrowing that sloppy teen-age stage, and her older sister's clothes-sense and popularity among boys give her valuable tips on growing up. Mary Jean, she says, doesn't give the "nagging" kind of advice, but the "suggesting" kind.

Kris' favorite occupation is making dresses—for herself and her dolls. Mary Jean, an accomplished seamstress, lends a hand whenever she has time. "We learn a lot from each other," Kris says.

Gretchen is something of a tomboy, and Big Sister knows what that's like, too. In her "youth" at Davenport High School, Mary Jean played basketball and was a softball star as well.

There are some natural frictions, of course. Mary Jean and Jo Ann are the same size and often wear each other's clothes. "The fastest dresser is the best dresser," Jo Ann says.

Mary Jean also is "first sergeant" in the household of Ernest and Edith Bartosch. Hers is the thankless job of making sure each girl does her chores. "She does more than her share," Mrs. Bartosch says, "so there aren't any resentments."

Mary Jean's family lives in an old, comfortable frame house which Mr. and Mrs. Bartosch, both handy with tools and ideas, have remodeled from kitchen to staircase. Mr. Bartosch, an electrician, also has fixed up the basement for the girls, and it serves as a romantic spot for entertaining beaus one night and a raucous playroom for Gretchen's tribe the next.

Mary Jean's dreams include traveling ("An airline stewardess' job would be wonderful!") and, afterward, marriage and a home life like her parents'. She enjoys swimming and golf; in the evenings, good music and dancing—"no, not with anybody special, not yet."

MYSTERY

The Case of the Doomed Innocent

ILLUSTRATION BY NORMAN BAER

By WILLIAM T. BRANNON

ON A BALMY NIGHT in June, 1956, Charles Drake, an elderly merchant, was watching television when a man broke into his home near Jefferson, Ga. Drake resisted the intruder and was fatally shot. The killer searched his victim's pockets but found only $10, which he took.

The telephone wires were then pulled out of the wall so Mrs. Drake was unable to notify the police immediately. By the time the sheriff arrived, the killer had vanished.

Tearfully, Mrs. Drake described the robber as a man in his 40s, short and stocky, with dark curly hair and dark piercing eyes. The sheriff ordered the description broadcast and roadblocks set up on all roads leading out of the county. Several suspects were picked up and cleared. A few hours after the murder, a man named James Foster, 40, was stopped at a roadblock. Though he was not stocky, his hair was dark and his eyes were dark and fiery.

Mrs. Drake positively identified him as the killer. Foster went on trial for murder. Three friends testified that they had been with him throughout the evening and that they had never been closer than seven miles to Jefferson. But Mrs. Drake pointed out Foster as the killer. He was convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

"I didn't do it!" Foster cried. "I didn't!"

His lawyers, James H. Wood and Floyd Hoard, believed him. So did many other Jefferson people, who raised a defense fund. The attorneys requestioned Foster's three companions, who insisted they had told the truth. The attorneys retraced the steps Foster and his friends said they had taken; several people thought they had seen the four, but were unwilling to swear they had.

Months passed while Wood and Hoard questioned thousands of people. They tried, unsuccessfully, to find the .38 caliber revolver that had fired the fatal shots. The date of execution was postponed several times as the lawyers filed more appeals.

Then, as their efforts began to appear hopeless, they were called to a South Carolina prison, where a convict told them he knew the identity of the Drake killer. He said a man named Charles P. Rothschild, who owned a .38 caliber revolver, had been tipped off that Drake regularly carried $5,000 in cash; that was why he had shot the elderly man.

Before Mrs. Drake could phone the police, the killer pulled out the wires and fled.

The attorneys knew about the money. It had been sewed into Drake's shirt pocket, where it was found intact after he was killed.

Charles P. "Rocky" Rothschild had been convicted on a burglary charge and was in prison in Columbia, S. C. The lawyers questioned him, but he denied any knowledge of the murder of Drake. Then they arranged to have Mrs. Carmina Drake look at him.

"That's not the man who killed Charlie," she said.

WHAT COULD the lawyers do against the positive testimony of Mrs. Drake? They didn't question her integrity, but they were convinced she was mistaken. More than two years had passed and their last appeal had been denied. Foster again was in the shadow of the chair; a new date for the execution was only a few weeks away.

Then, on July 4, 1958, Rocky Rothschild confessed that he had killed Charles Drake. He had gone to the merchant's home looking for the $5,000.

Foster was freed, and at a brief trial Rothschild was convicted of murder. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

In a public statement, Rothschild revealed why he had confessed, even after Mrs. Drake had mistakenly vindicated him:

"The killing has been constantly on my mind, and I have read the Bible. One verse from the Bible convinced me I should tell the truth: 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.'

"Foster was definitely persecuted. May he have a long and happy life."

Pass the Peanut

By Ida M. Pardue

Give each player a paper or plastic picnic spoon.

Make up two teams. Teams line up in two rows. The first player in each line has a peanut, and at the word GO puts it into the spoon and passes it to the next player.

No fair using hands. If the nut is dropped, it must be picked up with the spoon only.

The peanut should make the round trip—down the line and back to the starting player. The team to finish first wins.

"We Were Human Guinea Pigs"

A young doctor was on the threshold of a vaccine for hepatitis, one of our fastest-spreading diseases, but only these convicts could prove his experiment —at danger to themselves

By JACK RYAN

WILL PHILLIPS tossed restlessly on his cell bunk in the Illinois State Penitentiary in Joliet last winter. Unable to sleep, he fitted earphones over his blond, wavy hair and turned on the prison radio. He caught the last strains of some music and a prison "commercial."

"Inmates interested in participating in a medical experiment in hepatitis report to the blood-donor bank tomorrow."

Phillips didn't know what hepatitis was. He didn't know that it is one of the few infectious diseases on the rise in this country; that more than 41,000 cases were reported last year; that an estimated 60,000 will be reported this year; that while the vast majority recover from the inflammation of the liver, some die and others suffer permanent damage to the body's most important chemical factory; that until recently it was difficult to diagnose because nobody was quite sure what viruses cause hepatitis.

"Hear that announcement?" Phillips asked his cell mate. "I'm going over there tomorrow just to see what they got to say."

His cell mate gave the 22-year-old the sour look of an older, wiser man. "Better ask the prison barber about it, too. He shaved the guys that volunteered for the first tests. Says they were a mess—yellow and always sick."

At first Phillips was only curious. Inmate George Sanders' motive for attending the morning briefing session on the experiment was more positive. "I have two kids on the outside," he said. "One got real sick, and the doctors thought it was hepatitis. Instead, it was polio. So I figure if the doctors get to know more about hepatitis, they won't make this mistake and maybe, like polio, they'll even find something to keep kids from getting it."

No Special Promises to Volunteers

About 50 inmates showed up in the oppressive, hand-hewn brownstone hospital the next morning. Like most, laconic Charlie Yeagley and intense Benny Cotter were interested because "human guinea pigs" allegedly got a "good word" with the parole board. Dr. Joseph Boggs, director of laboratories at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago and chief of the experiment, set the record straight:

"I will write a letter to your parole board saying you cooperated in a potentially dangerous medical experiment. The letter will say nothing else. It may help you; it may not. You'll get a nominal sum of money, too—$30—nothing to compare with the danger and illness you'll face. So now's the time to get out if you expect anything more."

Most stayed—including Phillips, Sanders, Yeagley, and Cotter. Then Dr. Boggs, a sandy-haired 41-year-old pathologist who talks softly but quickly, told the inmates what they could expect.

Five years earlier, he said, researchers Wilton Rightsell and I. W. MacLean had isolated virus-like agents from the blood of hepatitis victims. They could only guess that the agents themselves carried hepatitis. If they did, however, could these agents be weakened by growth in tissue culture to provide a vaccination making humans immune to the disease?

The answers couldn't be learned from tests on animals because they do not contract the disease. Only humans could act as "guinea pigs"—and inmates of a model state prison, because of the excellent controls and observation possible, would make ideal volunteers.

Dr. Boggs proposed to inoculate some of the volunteers with distilled water (a control group) and others with virus strains of varying strengths. If theory was correct, those receiving heavy doses would be hospitalized within 30 days, providing added proof that the virus was of hepatitis nature. Those with weakened strains would develop protective antibodies in their blood without suffering the illness. And if all these "ifs" proved correct, Dr. Boggs and his associates would be well on the way to a hepatitis-preventing vaccine. The doctor pulled no punches about another "if"—if something unexpected turned up in the tests, the volunteers might suffer prolonged aftereffects. He reminded them, too, that hepatitis sometimes proves fatal.

"You'll have a week to think this over," Dr. Boggs concluded. "Then, if you volunteer, you'll sign a contract releasing us and the state from any liability. But," he added, "I can guarantee you the best medical care possible. Nobody will leave the hospital until he's completely well."

The following weekend, Will Phillips' girl friend and guardian visited him. In the half-joking, half-serious manner that characterizes him, Phillips explained his "big news." The girl and guardian exchanged worried glances. "It doesn't seem wise to me," the guardian said. "Don't let anybody fool you about a parole. This is a dangerous thing, and it could affect you for a long time."

Phillips shrugged and his voice took on a boyish quality. "Well, what about helping somebody? They said it might help people, kids especially." He looked at his girl friend. "You know about me. Wouldn't you want me to do something that was good like this?"

She didn't answer directly. "I want you free some day—free and healthy and without worrying about some disease coming back."

Nevertheless, a few days later Phillips and about two dozen other inmates waited in the hospital to sign contracts for the experiment. "I'm bull-headed," Phillips explained to a fellow volunteer. "I'm bored," the other replied frankly. "Anything to break the monotony."

A priest and notary public witnessed their signatures. Next, the volunteers would be taken into the doctor's office and injected. "I don't know myself who's getting what," Doctor Boggs told them, "so don't keep asking me."

One by one, the inmates filed into the office. Doctors took a half-pint of blood, then gave the volunteers a hypodermic injection. "I hardly felt it," Phillips said later. "After all the build-up, it was kinda disappointing."

Next came the wait. Who had the distilled water, who the virus? Doctor Boggs had said that the strains he had injected should take effect within 30 days or less. Phillips had the feeling other inmates were staring at him, looking for the telltale signs of yellowing skin and eyes. Secretly, he pressed his side to feel for inflammation of the liver. Nothing.

But after three weeks, the first cases began appearing. Benny Cotter felt the flush of fever while in his cell one night. He reacted as did most of the volunteers who were to fall victim to the disease: he tried to talk himself out of it. "No," he said, "this must be a hangover from the cold I had."

George Sanders, the most matter-of-fact of the group, also tried to ignore the preliminary symptoms, passing them off as "something I ate."

The young hospital barber, who had witnessed and vividly described the illnesses of initial volunteers, had ironically volunteered himself. "I figured I'd been around hospitals so long, I was hardened," he said. "Then I came down with the darn thing, and the idea of going to a hospital was worse than the first sickness. I lazed around three days, thinking I'd shake it. Finally, I knew I had to go on sick call."

In Charlie Yeagley's case, doctors already had discovered hepatitis in his weekly blood sample before he admitted being sick.

"She has a true sound," he said to Mother, "a definite vocal talent. I could teach her to become a great singer."

"It's such a little voice," Mother protested, "and she's too young. Teaching her now would be a complete waste of time."

But Father was determined—and Mother wasn't too surprised.

Father started to give me lessons immediately, and within a year I was studying four or five hours a day with him. By the time I was six years old and gave my first concert, I had, impossible as it may sound, three solid years of training behind me.

AT THE TIME of my first concert, World War II was on and the bombing raids on our island were increasing each week. Father, who was director of the Rhodes Musical Conservatory, appealed to the military governor to allow us to return to Italy.

Once the war ended, we moved to the city of Pesaro, Italy, where Father had been born, and my serious musical studies began again. Father himself taught me (he was suspicious of other voice teachers and would say, "If anybody's going to ruin my children's voices, it's going to be me").

Our family had little money, and Father would often go into debt to hire a hall for my early concerts. Once, all the members of the local orchestra refused to accept money, knowing Father was having trouble meeting his bills. Years later, Father insisted that we return to Pesaro to give a special concert from which all the money was turned over to the musicians.

Even if I was the center of attention on stage, my important role at home was being a member of our family. I tried acting superior once, and my little brother Paul said, "What do you think? That you are important because you can sing? Well, you couldn't without Papa!"

Though I loved Mother, I spent three times as many hours with Father and was much closer to him. Music was our special bond, and I could talk to him as a friend as I could never talk to Mother.

As I became more accomplished, Father began to arrange concerts all over Europe and eventually the United States. Shortly after my 13th birthday, I stepped onto the stage of Carnegie Hall in New York for my first appearance in America. The critics gave me wonderful reviews, and as a result Ed Sullivan invited me to appear on his television show.

FATHER WAS suspicious of movies, so when he was later approached for "Here Comes the Groom," with Bing Crosby and Jane Wyman, he almost turned it down. A studio vice president had to come and argue for days. Father agreed only after he was promised free round-trip tickets to Hollywood for all five Alberghettis.

If Father was demanding when it came to my contracts, he was equally hard in what he expected from me as a performer. Whenever I gave a bad concert, he stopped being a father the moment we were alone. "I wouldn't pay 25 cents to see the concert you gave tonight," he would snap. "You should be ashamed to come out on a stage and sing the way you did!"

These quarrels were mainly professional, and they were healthy. We had the same Italian tempers that boiled over quickly. But we were able to forget the arguments just as quickly.

Never, in those years, did I conceive of a world without my father. When the doctors told me in 1956 that he was seriously ill, I couldn't believe it. But suddenly I discovered new responsibilities were dropping on my shoulders.

The first important decision was whether my father should undergo an operation. Mother felt that because Father and I had such similar temperaments, I would know best what he would want done.

"Talk to the doctors," she said. "Then you decide. I can't."

Unfortunately, however, the operation did not stop the disease, and the doctors said that Father had only six months to live. They tried to say it as gently as possible, but the brutal fact had to be faced.

FATHER DIED in 1957. After the funeral, I wandered around in a daze. Then, one evening, Mother came into my room as I was getting ready for bed.

Mother said, "You know, Anna, when God sends us something as terrible as your father's death, He also sends along with it a great strength to endure the grief and come out of it. If you don't try to keep on living and working, you will make this thing much harder for yourself."

When my manager called a day later to remind me of a contract I had been postponing for months with one of the big Las Vegas hotels, I said I'd try to play the date. That evening, I sat down with Carla, who was just launching her own career as a singer, and said, "You've got to come and work with me. I can't do it alone."

Tears were in Carla's eyes. "If you really need me, of course I'll help," she said.

Opening night in Las Vegas was frightening, yet I felt strangely calm. As we stood off-stage and the master of ceremonies began to introduce us, I felt Carla put her hand in mine. Though I knew Father was no longer with me physically, I realized he would never be completely gone.

Carla and I were a hit in Las Vegas. Now I'm living in New York alone, acting and singing on Broadway in the musical comedy, "Carnival."

Of course, I talk to Mother, Carla, and Paul in California practically every day on the telephone. I realize now that while Father had been giving his strength and wisdom to me he had also been giving to the others in my family.

When I needed help, they had stepped forward to give me strength. In a sense, my father is all about me—in the faces and love of my family.

Phillips heard about the first cases, and, as usual, the rumors about their severity were far worse than the facts. The men were delirious, rumor said. Phillips was glad he hadn't written his girl friend and guardian about his decision. And with each passing day, he was more assured he'd taken only distilled water in his arm.

After four weeks, he was positive enough to begin wry jokes about a subject he had been uncharacteristically serious about before. He kidded quietly about wanting to be a hero for his girl, being a benefactor of humanity, getting a red carpet before the parole board.

When he went to his job in the shoeshop one morning, he felt a sense of relief—and, he admits, a pang of conscience at being so happy that somebody else "had taken the real stuff."

About half those receiving the hepatitis virus were hospitalized, the others evidently having a natural immunity.

Sanders and Cotter were typical in that their worst illness lasted about three days. Both suffered prolonged vomiting spells that left them weak; their temperatures ranged between 100 and 102, and all appetite was lost.

The volunteers had been warned that there is no cure for hepatitis. For at least a week, they would be able to hold only citrus juices, vitamins, and aspirin. Afterward, they would spend three to four weeks in slow, uncomfortable recovery. Each volunteer, however, had undergone extensive physical examination to make sure he could withstand the attack on his liver cells.

escape from boredom, the desire to help people "on the outside," or mostly a combination of all—and found themselves praying only that this was temporary, that they'd get their health back.

However, in all cases the experiment followed the expected pattern. These cases, and the ones before (a total of 40 illnesses in all experiments) positively identified two strains of virus and probably a third.

The two types of virus used on the volunteers seemed to have caused infectious hepatitis, the most prevalent type. It probably is spread by poor sanitation and hygiene. The third isolated virus may cause serum hepatitis, the most deadly type. It is usually transmitted through the blood—by transfusion, for example. Now, with the virus most closely identified, blood donors can be checked more accurately for traces of the virus.

Phillips Loses 16 Pounds

"The more I got hungry, the less I got scared," says Will Phillips in telling about his recovery. But it was 10 days before he could finally keep a meal down. By that time he had lost 16 pounds, and it was almost two weeks before he could walk steadily. Like Sanders, Cotter, Yeagley, and other volunteers, Phillips required four to five weeks of hospitalization, despite the best possible medical care. "Even the boredom of a cell seemed better after that," one told a nurse.

When they were dismissed, each volunteer was assured his system had returned to normal.

The experiments proved that research had isolated the basic ingredients of a successful hepatitis vaccine. The next step for the Boggs team is to test the viruses further in order to determine the safest, most effective composition for a possible vaccine. They also must learn its long-range effects—whether, for example, a vaccinated person could infect an unvaccinated one. But the first step toward an antihepatitis vaccine is in the past.

As for the "human guinea pigs," another test came last July. The first of their number went before the parole board. In his file folder was the promised letter from Dr. Boggs. The 175 men who participated in the over-all experiment waited for word as if each was up for examination. When word came, it was disappointing. Parole denied.

The volunteer, interviewed shortly after, was bitter. "They promised us help, and they didn't come through," he said.

But a sampling of the others indicated a different feeling. "It's like when you're sick," said Phillips, explaining his covolunteer's anger. "You say things that aren't exactly so, and later you know it. Nobody I know says they have regrets. It probably did somebody some good."

shooting pain behind his forehead. He counted the days since his inoculation—29. The meal that noon was steamy and pungent, the kind he usually relished. But not today. Still, he thought, 29 days must be too long for hepatitis.

Typically, the symptoms disappeared that afternoon, and Phillips was convinced he'd just scared himself into feeling ill. But that night he broke into a sweat and felt nauseous.

Wednesday, fever and loss of appetite reappeared and then vanished. On Thursday, the onslaught came again and stayed. I've got it all right, Phillips told himself, but if it's this late it must be a weak case. He remembered that Doctor Boggs had said some volunteers who received the virus might build up protective antibodies in their blood, much as in the case of a smallpox vaccination. That was it—I've got one of those side reactions, Phillips decided.

His cell mate found him Friday morning, lying drenched in his bunk. "Get out of here, Willy," he said. "I don't want a stiff on my hands."

Phillips gave up the pretense and went on sick call. The nurse took his temperature. It was 104.8.

and seeing a form sprawled in the next bed. It was Phillips. As weak as he was, Cotter's interest rose. The jaundice symptoms were marked on Phillips. "You've turned yellow," Cotter said.

"I feel all green," Phillips replied. Attendants had affixed a glucose bottle to him for intravenous feeding the first day. He stared at the contraption and wondered if he should ask a nurse to write his girl. He would doze off for a while, but nausea would awaken him. The vomiting was violent and perspiration steady.

Doctor Boggs and an associate appeared at his side the next morning and ordered him off glucose. "It's just juices for a long time," he said. He examined Phillips' eyes and probed his right side. "You'll come out of it fine."

That seemed hardly possible to Phillips at the time. Whether their attacks were mild or severe, each of the volunteers recalled a common reaction: they could hear Doctor Boggs' initial words to them, warning of the possibility of danger in dealing with relative unknowns. They forgot their motives for volunteering—possible parole help, an

The Doctor Views the Convict-Volunteer

My use of prison volunteers to fight disease is not something new. In the past, numerous medical studies have been aided by these men—studies which have led to new knowledge of cancer, malaria, tuberculosis, and hepatitis. We of the medical profession are deeply indebted to these men for their help and trust. In the future, as in the past, their actions may contribute greatly to the welfare of all mankind. —Joseph D. I was just thinking...®

One of the most flattering, and most terrifying, things that happens to me is when one of you sends me for my verdict something you've written.

I should have realized that it happens to most of us with the temerity to trust our words to print. Immediately we don the mantle of the seer and assume the mien of the sage.

We're in trouble.

You send me poems. You send me essays. You send me short stories. You say:

"I wrote this and sent it to a publisher. What do you think of it?"

Or you ask me to print your poems.

I wish I could. I wish I knew more than you do. But how do I know I do?

I try to answer the letters. I know how you feel. I know how I feel when I set down the words which have been curled around my heart. They are my precious blood, and I submit them to you for your pleasure or indifference. They would be safer with me, but shadowed, and they crave sunlight.

So do you. You want my praise and acceptance. You need to know that this part of you is good and that it must follow you have achieved. It will hurt you if I am cruel or disinterested or brutally unkind.

Some of your words are far better than my own. Some of them are the work of a wondering child who struggles for a latch he cannot reach. I wish none of you saw in me the oracle or the teacher. I am cast into despair by my own illiteracy when you confront me.

I have never yet given a loving lie to the gifts of your thoughts, though I have sometimes had to search for the truth. Sometimes it has not been necessary when the words shine like stars on the page. Yet even those I can only admire, never analyze.

You honor me and I am humble. But do not see me as your guide to glory. I can only walk beside you and hold your hand in mine.

My Private World with My Father

This petite singing star affectionately recalls the special bond which music created between her and her late father

By ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI as told to Marya Saunders and Bob Gaines

"THIS HAS GOT to work. If we fail now, I'll never go on the stage again."

I said these words shortly after my father's death in 1957 as my sister Carla and I were about to appear in a night club in Las Vegas. I was frightened.

For more than 20 years, my father had been the center of my life. He had made every decision for me, and now suddenly I felt alone and terrified.

Two days before our opening, I was so nervous that Carla suggested we climb into the car and go for a drive to relax. We sped across the desert for an hour while I talked. Finally, Carla turned and said, "You're good. Father saw to that. But you can be twice as good if you stop wasting energy worrying. Why don't you put that energy into analyzing what you have and then make the most of it?"

After a long moment I said, "You know, that's the sort of advice Father would have given me."

As far back as I can remember, my father, his advice, his teaching, his love, were the walls of my life, and within these walls we had our own private world. The others in my family were dear to me and I loved them, but my relationship with Father was special.

The first memory I have, for example, is sitting at the piano with him in our home on the island of Rhodes when I was three years old. We were singing together, and Father was trying to discover if I had any kind of voice at all. (Continued on page 13)

Another does the dishes.
And if I want a breeze, one blows

The young man strolled into the living room and immediately his father prepared for the worst. "Well, what do you want to borrow now?" he growled.

"Matter of fact," the son replied, "I'd like to borrow the car this weekend."

"The whole weekend! What are you going to do?"

"I thought I'd go off and get married," the son said nonchalantly.

"Married? Married? Who are you marrying?"

"I don't know yet," the youth replied. "I wanted to make sure I could get the car first."

As the other women looked at one another in surprise, she concluded: "In fact, she has never spoken to me at all since John told her we were getting married."

A little girl forgot the lines she was to speak in the church pageant. Her anguished mother in the front row gestured and silently formed the words with her lips, but to no avail. At last, she whispered the cue: "I am the light of the world."

CAN YOU AFFORD THIS BED?

Statistics show that your chances of becoming disabled from accident or illness this year are 1 in 4.* Pretty grim odds for a man, particularly if he has a wife and children. Pretty expensive odds, too, in view of today's high hospital and surgical costs, and the income loss that may result from a long term disability.

To help guard against such financial hardships, New York Life offers many up-to-date Health Insurance Plans. There are hospital and surgical expense plans for single individuals and for families, and even "senior citizen" plans for persons from 61 to 75 years of age—all providing Lifetime coverage. There are also Major Medical Plans to help protect you against the really big bills. All provide realistic benefits in line with today's higher costs. Yet, because of practical deductible clauses and sensible exclusions, premiums are surprisingly modest.

For the family breadwinner, a New York Life Income Protection Plan is extremely important. Under such a plan if you should become totally disabled, you can receive a regular monthly check—vital income your family will need.

Remember, the odds are 1 in 4. Wouldn't it be wise to have financial protection against accident or sickness and its resulting hardships before the need arises? Call your New York Life Agent soon. Or, for more information, mail the coupon below.

Bannock

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO BAKE: 35 MIN.

- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup yellow corn meal
- 4 egg yolks, well beaten
- ¼ cup butter
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 egg whites

1. Scald milk (heat just until a thin film appears) in double-boiler top over simmering water. Gradually add corn meal, stirring constantly; continue stirring and cook until mixture thickens and becomes smooth.

2. Remove double-boiler top from simmering water and quickly and thoroughly mix in the well-beaten egg yolks, butter, sugar, and salt.

3. Beat egg whites until rounded peaks are formed. Spread egg yolk mixture over the beaten egg whites and gently fold together. Turn into a well-greased 2-qt. casserole.

4. Bake at 375°F 35 min., or until a wooden pick or cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve at once with butter and maple sirup. 6 to 8 servings

Bird's Nest Pudding

The origin of this odd title seems lost in antiquity, but several versions of this pudding flourish in New England. All of them have one thing in common: apples.

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO BAKE: 50-60 MIN.

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup water
- ¼ teaspoon red food coloring
- 6 medium-sized apples, washed, cored, and pared (keep whole)
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups cream, scalded

1. Combine 2 cups sugar and water in a large, deep saucepan; bring to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Stir in the food coloring.

2. Add as many apples as will fit uncrowded in the saucepan; cover and cook slowly until apples are barely tender, about 7 min., turning carefully several times to obtain an even color. With a slotted spoon, remove apples and place in a 1½-qt. baking dish. Repeat with any remaining apples.

3. Meanwhile, blend ¼ cup sugar, extract, and salt into the slightly beaten eggs. Gradually add the hot cream, stirring vigorously and constantly until sugar is dissolved. Strain mixture through a fine sieve over apples in baking dish.

4. Bake in a boiling water bath at 325°F 50 to 60 min., or until a silver knife comes out clean when inserted in custard halfway between center and edge of baking dish.

1. Grease bottoms only of three 8-in. round layer-cake pans. Line bottoms with waxed paper and lightly grease paper.

3. Cream butter until softened. Add brown sugar gradually, beating until fluffy after each addition. Add egg yolks in thirds, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Blend milk and maple sirup together. Alternately add the dry ingredients in fourths and liquid in thirds to the creamed mixture, beating until smooth after each addition. Turn batter into pans.

5. Bake at 350°F 45 to 50 min., or until cake tests done.

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup firmly packed maple sugar
- 1 cup thick sour cream

2. Set saucepan over low heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat and bring to boiling. Set candy thermometer in place and continue cooking without stirring.

3. During cooking, wash sugar crystals from sides of pan occasionally with pastry brush dipped in water. Cook to 238°F (soft ball stage: a few drops of mixture form a soft ball in very cold water).

4. Remove saucepan to a cooling rack and cool to lukewarm (about 110°F) without stirring or moving the pan.

5. Beat vigorously with wooden spoon or electric mixer until mixture begins to lose its gloss and is of spreading consistency.

200 Hear GOP Speaker

'Local Level' Emphasized

In a talk heavily laced with witticisms, Dr. Tennyson Guyer of Findlay Friday night urged Columbiana County Republicans to begin the "march back to national power on the local level."

Speaking to more than 200 at the annual GOP kickoff dinner held by the Wellsville Republican Club at the Riverside United Presbyterian Church in Wellsville, Dr. Guyer said everyone should be concerned about government on the local level because it most directly concerns the people and projects to the national level.

Directing his remarks to candidates seeking office in November, he said "you can't go into the elections impersonally." He urged each candidate to "treat the people right" because "people have long memories and will remember what you have done."

Speaking briefly on national politics, Dr. Guyer, a former Ohio senator, said the "eyes of Washington" are on Ohio, claiming the state Republicans surprised President Kennedy. He said he does not believe there is going to be a war and that the American worker wants a job, not just checks for doing nothing.

Returning to the local level, Dr. Guyer urged the candidates to utilize good communications and get the point across. He said "politics is a messy business, but it is the door through which you must go to enter public service."

"You have to like people. If you don't like people, you shouldn't be in politics. There's no good way to be a heel," he said.

He urged those present to work to get the people to the polls.

Dr. Guyer, who is known as "Ohio's Ambassador of Good Will," is a public relations director with the Cooper Tire & Rubber Co.

Mayor Shoub was toastmaster. He introduced the guests, including Mrs. Guyer, Miss DeBolt, Whitacre, Charles Pike, vice chairman; Robert Bell of Steubenville, 18th Congressional District committeeman, and Atty. James McSweeney, former Wellsville chairman and a member of the Board of Elections.

Shoub also introduced city and county candidates and chairwomen from various cities.

Also recognized was William Pacey, 1728 Maple Ave., who at 95, was appropriately termed "the senior GOP citizen of Wellsville."

Mrs. Louise Brookman Taylor led group singing and Mrs. Jayne Kata sang three solos. Mrs. Louise Lawton was the pianist.

Mayor Bids Spark City's Campaigns

Month Remains For Candidates To Wind Up Appeals

Democrats and Republicans will trot out the two oldest political warhorses in their stables Nov. 7 in the race to win the East Liverpool mayor's office for the two years beginning Jan. 1.

Bert H. Goodballet, the Democratic incumbent, and O. Earl Greenawalt, the Republican contender, each has more than a generation of political experience.

Their battle for votes will highlight a general election in which East Liverpool voters also will name a Council president, treasurer, solicitor, three councilmen-at-large and four ward councilmen.

2 Posts Skipped

Only the offices of municipal judge and city auditor are not at stake. Judge Samuel M. Chertoff was named in 1959 for a six-year term and Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate was chosen at the same time for a four-year term.

Candidates are preparing to unlimber campaigns in earnest, as the election is just a month from today. The men who comprise the fields of the two major parties were chosen from among a total of 37 in the May primaries.

The primaries went a long way toward setting the pattern of Council membership for the new biennium. Six of the eight incumbents in the all-Democratic Council failed in bids for renomination, which means there will be a wholesale change in the membership at the end of 1961 regardless of the outcome of the election.

Mayor Goodballet is running for his second term. He was elected in 1959, defeating Fred P. Lawrence, Republican, who served one term. The mayor's public service dates back to the late 1930's, when he first was elected First Ward councilman. Later, he served several terms as Council president.

Served 5 Terms

Greenawalt, an insurance agent, has served five terms as mayor, leaving office last in 1947. In the early 30's, he served a term as Council president. Greenawalt also served 10 years as bailiff for former Municipal Judge George L. Brokaw.

Greenawalt won the GOP nomination in May in a three - way race. Goodballet won a two-man confest.

Safety-Service Director Robert Owen will wear two hats in the campaign, as he also is his party's

FREIGHT IS 'KNIFE'. Wheels of a tractor-trailer rig drape the front of this Pennsylvania Railroad freight train after it "sliced" the vehicle on the Port Homer crossing of Route 7 during the dense fog this morning. The Conway-bound train cut through the aluminum trailer and spilled hundreds of cases of empty whisky bottles being delivered to a distillery. Neither the driver nor his assistant was hurt. This mishap preceded another in which four trucks and an auto piled up at the Route 213 intersection, also without injury.

Rig 'Sliced' By Train In 2nd Wreck

2 LaCroft Women Injured In Another Accident In 'Mist'

A tractor - trailer truck was sliced by a southbound freight train about 9 this morning at the Port Homer crossing on Route 7 and about 90 minutes later four trucks and an auto piled up in a spectacular crash during the heavy fog at the intersection of Routes 7 and 213 at Yellow Creek. Two LaCroft women were hurt in another mishap blamed on the heavy mist.

The driver of the rig hit by the train and his companion and occupants of the vehicles in the Rt. 213 accident miraculously were uninjured.

Wellsville police dispatched a cruiser to the Yellow Creek scene to lend aid and the patrolman radioed back, asking for more help.

Traffic was literally tied up for miles in both directions on Route 7 and on Route 213 toward Irondale as a result of the crashes and dense fog which was lifting only slightly near noon.

Wellsville police said they radioed the message of both crashes to Jefferson County authorities. The Wintersville State Highway Patrol said extra men were called out to help in the investigation and to clear the traffic congestion. The Jefferson County Sheriff's office also sent men to both places.

A Bedford motorist who witnessed the mishap at Port Homer notified police at Wellsville. He told officers the trailer was completely ripped apart.

He said the impact of the southbound freight easily cut through the aluminum trailer, loaded with empty whisky bottles.

The train-truck crash occurred about 7:43 a. m. The driver was Charles R. McAllister of Barbersville, W. Va., and his passenger, a co-driver, was L. D. Handley of Huntington, who also was unhurt.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Railroad said the engineer was W. M. Reed of Columbus. The train was traveling about 25 to 30 miles per hour and the lights at the crossing were working, the railroad said.

The train was headed from Cincinnati to Conway.

The Route 213 "chain" accident apparently occurred when a truck driven south in the passing lane by George Frederick of Youngstown hit the rear of a flatbed truck of the Wellsville Quality Feed Co., which had pulled out of Rt. 213 into the passing lane.

The other two trucks then collided with a 1947 Ford pinned in between. An East Liverpool man was driving the car.

Mr. K, Mikoyan, Ulbricht Statements On Treaty Cited

BERLIN (AP) — An apparent switch from the hard to the soft sell by Communist leaders boosted hopes today for an easing of tension and possible postponement of an East-West showdown on Berlin.

Statements by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan and East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht all pointedly avoided reference to a signing this year of the Communist bloc's planned peace treaty with East Germany.

The phrase "this year" so often mentioned by Red chieftans in connection with the treaty plans was shelved in favor of vague terminology. All three statements, issued on the 12th anniversary of East Germany's Communist government, also avoided belligerent phrases.

Western sources speculated that the change in tactics of the time element may have been more than coincidental, in view of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's meetings with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Berlin.

Khrushchev had repeatedly warned that a Soviet treaty with East Germany would be signed before the year is out.

Sunny, Warm Seen For Series Today

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Sunny and warm weather was forecast today for the third game of the World Series—the first series game played here in 21 years.

The Weather Bureau, however, said wind of about 8 miles per hour and gusts of up to 15 are expected out of the southwest. At Crosley Field, that would have the wind blowing directly from home plate to the center field fence 387 feet away.

British Plane Missing With 34 Aboard

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — Wreckage of a plane—apparently a British airliner missing with 34 persons aboard—was found today in mountains near Prades, about 30 miles from Perpignan, police at Prades announced.

The wreckage was spotted by residents in the area of the Canigou Peak of the Pyrenees at an altitude of some 6,000 feet.

Weather in the area was reported bad. Mt. Canigou, which is mined for iron ore, rises to 9,137 feet.

The British plane, a Dakota, dropped from sight on a flight from Gatwick Airport near London to Perpignan, a regional commercial center of 65,000 in southern France about 10 miles from the Mediterranean and 20 from the Spanish frontier.

A spokesman for Derby Aviation, owners of the missing plane, said there were 31 passengers and 3 crew members aboard.

The passengers were flying to France to begin a bus tour of the Costa Brava in Spain after landing.

It was believed all aboard were British.

President Will Spend Weekend At Newport

Kennedy planned to fly by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base where he will board a jet for a midmorning flight to Quonset Point Naval Air Station, R.I.

Mrs. Kennedy and the two Kennedy children already are at hhe home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, where they will remain for the weekend. Kennedy will return to Washington Monday.

Friday night, the President attended a state dinner at the embassy of Sudan, given by President Ferik Ibrahim Abboud. Aboud was to end his state visit today and fly to Los Angeles.

Red Boycott Threatened In U.N. Decision

Will Act Against Any Chief Not OKd By Security Unit

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union will boycott any interim U.N. secretary-general who may be chosen without the consent of the Security Council.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin told reporters at a Sudanese reception here Friday night that if the General Assembly picks a successor to the late Dag Hammarskjold without the council's prior recommendation, "Life will go very hard for that man."

He explained that the new man would have the same trouble as Hammarskjold, boycotted by the Russians from last February until his death Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

No serious man, Zorin said, would take the job under those circumstances.

His remarks came after one correspondent had said the United States or its friends would propose that the assembly alone name a temporary secretary-general unless there was U.S.-Soviet agreement that would permit veto-free action first in the council.

Loss Of $218 Listed After Jewelry Theft

Loss totaling $218.90 was reported to police Friday afternoon by the management of the Shaw Jewelry Store as a result of a theft of four wrist watches early yesterday morning from a display window that was smashed with a brick.

The inventory disclosed the "smash-and-grab" thief took two men's watches worth $59.50 each and two women's watches valued at $49.95. All bear the Bulova trademark.

The watches were taken by a burglar who smashed a plate glass display window about 2:18 a.m., then fled on foot. The exact loss could not be listed until store personnel made an inventory.

U.S. Might Send Troops To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is considering sending U.S. troops to help South Viet Nam fight off Communist attacks, expected to grow stronger when the rainy season ends later this month.

U.S. officials consider South Viet Nam the main target of the Communist drive in Southeast Asia. If the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem should fall, they say, Thailand, Malaya, Burma and Cambodia would be dangerously weakened.

High State Department sources revealed privately Friday that sending troops to South Viet Nam was under consideration.

Press officer Joseph Reap, while not specifically confirming this, did not rule it out.

In answer to questions, Reap said: "In view of the serious situation there, due to increasing Communist attacks against government defense units, we are considering various means of assiting the Viet Nam government against Communist efforts to take over the country.

Kennedy, Gromyko Make No Formal Statement On Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a two-hour conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the United States and the Soviet Union were reported still far apart today on ways of negotiating a peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Informed officials here consider the East-West dispute over Berlin still extremely dangerous. At the same time hope persists that a solution short of a military showdown will be found to end the crisis.

Kennedy and the Soviet foreign minister discussed the situation in the Oval Room of the White House late Friday and wound up their talks shortly after 7 o'clock without issuing any kind of formal statement.

As he climed into his limousine to return to the Soviet Embassy on nearby 16th Street, Gromyko told newsmen the conversation had been "useful". Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who sat in on the discussion, merely called it "interesting."

Kennedy was understood to have told Gromyko in calm but very emphatic terms that the United States and its Western Allies are fully determined to defend West Berlin against Communist pressures, to preserve their right to maintain troops in the city, and to keep open the supply lines from West Germany.

Gromyko told reporters that the conversation had touched "several important matters" bearing on U.S.-Soviet relations and added: "Of course, as far as the position of the Soviet government is concerned, we stressed first of all the importance of the question of the peace treaty with Germany."

It appears that the conference at the White House covered much of the same ground that had been covered by Gromyko and Rusk in a series of three meetings in New York in the previous two weeks.

Cancer-Hit Sam Rayburn Takes Food

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cancer-stricken Sam Rayburn took nourishment Friday and a doctor said the House speaker was resting comfortably.

Dr. Ralph Tompsett said Rayburn, 79, much thinner than his colleagues in Washington remember him, had some soup and tea.

Rayburn had not eaten since surgery was performed Thursday to remove a lymph gland from the groin area. Since then he has received blood transfusions and intravenous feedings.

A biopsy, doctors said, showed that the politically powerful and beloved Democrat has an incurable cancer.

Rayburn's administrative aide, John Holton, said Rayburn's family had not disclosed whether the speaker had been told the extent of his illness.

There was still no word when—or if—Rayburn would return to his home in Bonham, Tex., 75 miles northeast of here.

Hancock Tax Deputy Injured In Collision

WEIRTON — John B. Camilli, state tax deputy for Hancock and Brooke Counties, is hospitalized today with injuries received in a traffic mishap Friday night at 10:15.

Camilli's auto was struck in the rear by Fred A. DeEllis, 19, of Steubenville on Pennsylvania Ave police said.

The tax official is in "satisfactory" condition today in Weirton General Hospital and was scheduled to undergo X-rays. He complained of injuries of the neck and chest pains, the hospital reported.

Police cited DeEllis on charges of failure to have his vehicle under control and driving with an expired license. He posted $62 bond for a hearing Monday in Police Court.

Camilli was appointed to a four-year term as state tax deputy for the two counties Aug. 5 by West Virginia Tax Commissioner C. Howard Hardesty.

Razing Offer Seen Snag To Parking Plan

Ceramic Removal Cost Would Exceed $60,000 Available

Plans to convert the Ceramic Theater site into a municipal parking lot ran into at least a temporary snag Friday afternoon because the lone bid of $16,630 for razing the structure submitted to the Board of Control would push the total cost of the project over the $60,000 authorized by Council.

The Cleveland Wrecking Co. of Cincinnati filed the only offer with Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Robert Owen, who comprise the board.

Here's the financial picture in a nutshell:

Council voted a $60,000 self - liquidating bond issue to cover purchase of the building, razing it, preparing and blacktopping the lot and installing meters. The city paid $45,000 Sept. 21 to heirs of the Tallman Estate, acquiring the building for the previously-stipulated price.

The $16,630 bid for razing would push the cost to $61,630 — over the amount provided — and the lot still would not be ready for use.

Asked for an off-the-cuff estimate yesterday, City Engineer George Bloomgren said about $6,000 more would be required — including around $2,500 for blacktop, an estimated $2,000 for meters and $800 for walks between the parking lanes.

Reserving action, the mayor and the director decided the bid would be "received and filed for further study."

Mayor Goodballet pointed out the board could not accept the bid as matters now stand because state law requires the funds to cover the cost in such a case must be "on hand or in the process of collection" before a contract can be signed.

The mayor and director said they will seek a conference with Council, early next week if possi-

Warm Weather May Last Over Weekend

It's not Indian Summer but that fine weather may continue over the weekend with clear skies throughout, according to the Ohio weatherman.

Temperatures will remain mild with today's high range expected to reach 75 to 80 and tonight's low 48 to 55.

The downtown had a foggy low of 47 this morning.

The Stratton Dam reported a high Friday of 74 degrees and an overnight low of 52.

True Indian Summer follows an extended freeze or frosty period and is usually the last warm spell before the unbroken cold of autumn descends with the approach of winter. "The beautiful weather is just a bonus — true Indian Summer still lies ahead of us," the U. S. Weather bureau said.

Months ago, it was reported a wrecking concern had made a $10,000 estimate on the theater razing, but the price included the right to salvage valuable equipment such as the air conditioning and heating installations, the projection machines and the seats — all of which were removed before the city acquired ownership.

The mayor expressed surprise at the amount of the lone bid and said he was disappointed because more concerns did not file offers.

In its bid, the Cincinnati concern said it was to receive title to all salvage. It said it would carry insurance covering liability up to $250,000 and property damage up to $300,000.

The firm enclosed a brochure showing photos of some of the large buildings it has razed from coast-to-coast. It listed 11 branch offices located in cities as far west as San Francisco.

The city's plan calls for establishment of an off-street lot with spaces for about 40 cars. Parking revenue is expected to retire the bond issue over a 10-year period.

Fall Supplies Look Good

Homegrown Vegetables Less Plentiful On Market

Produce counters continue to offer a good variety of fresh vegetables — both Ohio grown and from other areas, reports Richard Skinner, Marketing Agent with the Co-operative Extension Service in Canfield.

Local supplies of sweet corn, tomatoes and most green leafy vegetables are in most cases off the market with the arrival of freezing temperatures.

This means that Southern and Western producing areas will become more important vegetable supply sources in coming weeks, especially for the more tender vegetables. Supply prospects for fall look fairly good.

Commercial production of all fall vegetables in the United States is expected to be only slightly below last year and the 10-year average. Smaller crops of carrots and lettuce are forecast but it is too soon for an accurate estimate.

At present, produce counters continue to offer a good variety of fresh vegetables — both Ohio-grown and from other areas. Much of our supply of green beans, cabbage, beets, carrots, potatoes, squash and cauliflower are from local fields.

The cabbage clan is now "in season" and easy on the food budget, flavorful, nutritious and low in calories. Cabbage, the "head" of the family, is available year'round but the locally grown fall varieties are now in season. Choose cabbage that has a reasonably solid head and is heavy for its size. The leaves should be fresh and crisp and firmly attached at the core.

Cauliflower, the family "aristocrat", will be in good supply during October and November. Choose a head which is white or creamy white and heavy for its size. The flower clusters should be compact. The jacket or outer leaves should be fresh and green. The size has little relation to quality. Large or small heads, equally mature, are equally good.

Broccoli, the "flower of the flock" will increase in supply during October with price reaching the low point near the end of the month. Look for broccoli with dark green or purplish green color with compact, unopened bud clusters. Buds opened enough to show yellow color are past their prime. Since the whole stalk (stem, leaves and flower clusters) is eaten, tenderness is necessary for quality.

Brussel sprouts, the "baby" of the family, will be in good supply from October through January. These miniature cabbages are best when they are compact or firm and fresh appearing with good green color. Puffy brussels sprouts are edible, but are usually of poor quality and flavor.

Chinese cabbage is a member of the mustard family rather than the cabbage family, but you may find it on some area markets. It is cylindrical in shape with heads 18 to 20 inches tall and about 4 inches thick. Chinese cabbage may be labeled celery cabbage. You'll find it has a flavor all its own.

Locally grown potatoes are of excellent quality and in good supply at local markets. Also potatoes sold in larger units usually cost less per pound than those in smaller amounts. The most popular sizes are five and ten pound bags. However during this period of harvest you will also find them for sale in 15- 25- and 50-pound bags.

Store potatoes at about 50 degrees basement temperatures. They will sprout at this temperature, but cooking quality will be at its maximum. Store potatoes on a platform to prevent spoilage.

3 Killed And 5 Others Hurt In Car-Truck Crash

LEWISBURG, W. Va. (AP)—A couple from the Portsmouth, Ohio, area and a Kentucky man were killed Friday when their auto attempted to pass another vehicle at the crest of a hill and collided with a panel truck.

All five persons in the truck, including one Ohioan, were injured in the accident on U.S. 60 about five miles west of here.

Dead are Howard L. Truitt, 54, and his wife, Garnet Louise, 48, both of Rt. 1, Wheelersburg, Ohio, and Cecil Q. Boswell, 51, of York, Ky. The driver of their car was not determined.

The truck was operated by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. Among the five federal employes injured, four were admitted to Greenbrier Valley Hospital at Ronceverte, including Harry Lippincott, 25, of Star Route, Pomeroy, Ohio, and one was treated and released.

Postponement Slated For Pre-Natal Clinic

LISBON—Columbiana County's eighth pre-natal clinic will not begin as scheduled on Thursday, because of the legal holiday and the Courthouse will be closed, according to Mrs. Violet Peterson, county health nurse and instructor of the class.

The class will begin on Oct. 19. At present only five are signed up, and any person wishing to attend these six pre-natal classes should contact the county health department at once, Mrs. Peterson said.

The intersection has been the scene of many spectacular crashes with some fatalities.

The area was very foggy. Motorists coming off Route 213 and heading north must cross the two southbound lanes of the four-lane road.

The dense fog, which blanketed the Tri-State district was blamed for a Lisbon St. collision in which two LaCroft women were hurt, police reported.

The crash involved an eastbound car operated by Linda Rae Evans, 19, of LaCroft Ave. which was hit in the rear by a 1958 sedan driven by Raymond E. Rudibaugh, 42, of Boring Ln., police said.

Miss Evans said she was headed east in the 1900 block of Lisbon St. about 10 to 15 miles an hour when struck in the rear by Rudibaugh.

Both drivers said the fog was so dense they were unable to see taillights on cars ahead. Patrolman Orin C. Smith, who investigated, said he would have driven past the mishap if he hadn't noticed the flashing red light on an ambulance.

Miss Evans' mother, Mrs. Ethel Evans, and the driver's wife, Mrs. Mary Rudibaugh, 36, were taken to City Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Evans suffered neck and head injuries and Mrs. Rudibaugh received injuries of the knee and head.

Rudibaugh was cited into Municipal Court for failing to stop in the assured clear distance.

Negotiators Study Bid In Bus Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Negotiators for the Transport Workers Union and Columbus Transit Co. (CTC) meet again today to mull over a new union wage proposal. If it's accepted, said J. Robert Tipton, Local 208 president, strike-idled buses "could be operating Sunday morning."

Tipton indicated he was optimistic. He called for a meeting tonight of the 550 union bus drivers, mechanics and maintenance men.

candidate for Council president. He is running against Samuel B. Webber, 1730 Idaho Ave., GOP Fourth Ward councilman in 1958-59.

An East End hardware proprietor, Owen was named director after the death of Lee Copenhaver in mid-August. Owen won the Democratic nomination in May over Charles N. Edwards, the incumbent.

2nd Terms Sought

Two Democratic councilmen who survived the primaries are seeking second terms.

In the Second Ward, the incumbent is John F. Kelly, 1029 Vine St., employed 20 years at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. His GOP opponent is Kenneth C. Berg, 730 Bradshaw Ave., an employe of the Homer Laughlin China Co. who is making his first political bid.

In the Third Ward, Councilman Donald E. Smith also is seeking a new term. A Crucible employe, he resides on Woodbine Ave., Gardendale. Smith's GOP opponent is S. James Welch, 1008 St. John St., an employe of the Edwin M. Knowles China Co. Welch served as Third Ward councilman in 1938-39.

In the races for the five other Council seats, it's a case of Republican veterans running against Democratic newcomers. Virtually all the GOP nominees served on the 1958-59 Council, which was unseated in a clean sweep by the Democrats.

GOP Veterans In Field

GOP veterans comprise the field for three Council-at-large seats. They are Robert W. Sample Jr. of McKinnon Ave., finishing mill employe at Crucible, who previously served four terms; William Y. Orr of Princeton Ave., a Moore Furniture Co. employe who served six years in the Second Ward seat, and George E. Willshaw of Idaho Ave., a Standard Oil Co. employe who served three terms.

The Democratic candidates for the at-large seats are Frank Duffy of Holliday St., a Harker Pottery Co. employe and a leader in the Trades and Labor Council fight against city income taxes; James Moore of Lisbon St., a Crucible electrician and diner operator who ran for mayor in 1959, and Albert R. Sayre of Sophia St., a Crucible employe.

The winners in the six-way race will take the seats now occupied by Councilmen Norman Bucher, Donald S. Hancock and John Melvin.

Candidates for the First Ward seat are Floyd L. Murray of Etruria St., an expediter at the Crucible finishing mill, the Democratic nominatte, and Howard A. Tullis of Michigan Ave., the GOP aspirant. Tullis, also a Crucible employe, served as First Ward councilman in 1958-59, losing a bid for Council president in the 1959 primary.

Incumbent Is Candidate

In the Fourth Ward, the race will be between Edward B. Massey of W. Fourth St., Democrat, and Robert G. Duncan of Williams Ave., Republican. Massey is a millwright at Crucible, where he has been employed 19 years. Duncan, also a Crucible employe, served two terms in the Fourth Ward and was defeated in the 1957 primary in a bid for an at-large seat.

The two veteran members of the City Hall official family also have opposition. They are Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, Democrat, asking his sixth term, and Treasurer Bert A. Dawson, Republican, running for a 10th term.

UAW Local 600 Key To Ford Truce

DETROIT Mich. (AP) — Local 600 of the United Auto Workers Union—often called the biggest union local in the country—appeared today to hold the key to settlement of the UAW's strike against Ford Motor Co.

The strike began Tuesday and has idled 120,000 production workers at 88 plants in 26 states.

Local 600 represents more than 30,000 of the strikers at the Rouge industrial complex in Dearborn, Mich. It contains 17 of the 85 bargaining units are among 36 as yet not settled.

"Without the Rouge, nobody works," said one union man. "We have to wrap it up there."

The union reported what it called substantial progress within Local 600 Friday when it reached agreements with three units at Ford's steel division—the blast furnaces and coke ovens, the open hearth and the rolling mill.

Among other vital locations still unsettled are the Cleveland, Ohio, foundry and engine plants and the Canton, Ohio, forge plant. A strike at Canton once forced a virtually complete shutdown of all Ford assembly.

Negotiations resumed on a national level Friday, with a three-hour session, the first extended get-together since the strike began.

Talks continue today.

Both sides have indicated they will seek final settlement at both national and local levels before trying to resume production. Agreement was reached on an economic package just prior to the walkout Tuesday.

Agreement On Attitudes

Not even the most sincere booster of Chester can honestly state that the community attitude toward slot machines and liquor violations has been unrelenting condemnation.

Nor can the harshest critic of the city administration honestly claim that the task of halting these practices is made easy by the nature of state laws.

The appearance of a delegation at Chester Council's meeting this week to question the stand on gambling shows there is positive concern about the matter.

Such concern over increased gambling operations and illegal liquor sales and the accompanying decline of community standards in the Panhandle, as stricter Ohio laws drive operations across the river, is justified.

More than a few people in Hancock County feel strongly that West Virginia must act to curb such illegal activities before its growing reputation as a semi-haven for unsavory "expatriates" outbalances what progressive strides have been made culturally and economically.

State police already have said action will be taken to curb gambling in the Northern Panhandle, where more than a third of the 1,259 West Virginia gambling stamps located. Thursday night's raid in Newell shows Hancock County authorities are becoming sensitive on the matter.

But growing gambling and increased liquor by the drink sales call for a whole reappraisal of state standards and laws, by the legislature, by state and county leaders and by the citizens.

In Chester itself, there can be a crackdown on whatever activities are regarded as illegal and offensive — when the mayor, council, police and the community in general all agree on just what is offensive and illegal.

Sam Rayburn Played His Part

Partisanship fades away at the news from Texas that Sam Rayburn, who would have been 79 next Jan. 6, is gravely ill.

Most of us knew him only as a face in the news and as one of the personalities that flit across the country's television screens. Yet all of us who have wondered how representative democracy works have looked for the answer in the personality and know-how of men like Sam Rayburn.

In actual fact, he represents a district in Texas with less than a quarter of a million people — the Fourth District. But the influence he had earned by integrity, experience and comprehension of practical politics in one of the federal government's most sensitive spots, made Rep. Rayburn as speaker of the House of Representatives one of the strongest men in the nation.

If there were to be a disaster affecting both the president of the United States and the vice, the speaker of the House would become chief executive—and while Sam Rayburn was in Washington that made sense to everybody who knew first-hand about his devotion to the government. It was his life.

HE LEARNED the legislative trade first under Speaker Champ Clark when Texas sent him to Washington in 1913. That redoubtable leader of the House was to give way to Frederick H. Gillett, then to Nicholas Longworth, John Garner, Henry T. Rainey, Joseph W. Byrns and William B. Bankhead before Sam Rayburn and Joseph W. Martin, his bachelor counterpart on the Republican side, took over.

What has been their secret?

How do such men make representative democracy work?

They have single-minded devotion to the principle that civilization is a good relationship of individuals—an agreement among men to abide by rules that have been tested and judged satisfactory. Only with good reason are the rules ever changed, because they embody practices that have made it possible for honorable men to make honorable commitments. And they are never changed without notice.

SUCH MEN attract followers in spirit. They become rallying points for men who think as they think, who believe as they believe. And so they accede to leadership, not because they aspired to have power but because, being strong, power is bestowed on them in recognition of their right to hold leadership.

Rep. Rayburn has been that kind of a man. He has made representative democracy work in the only way it can be made to work—through faith in men who seek dignity under its banner and whose natural dignity gives dignity to the nation.

Gunplay At The Barricades

When does a cold war turn hot?

How many bullets can whizz back and forth across that line marked in the soil of Berlin before someone gives an order to step up the pace?

Who is going to be held responsible if a trigger-happy kid in the East German "police force" draws a bead on an American G.I. and shoots to kill?

What would restrain an infuriated mob of West Berliners from storming the wall with enough weapons to wipe out the East German guards?

This is not a potential skirmish between residents of a divided city—a municipal civil war. The Kremlin has declared that violation of the sovereignty of its satellite state in East Germany will be construed as an attack on the Soviet Union.

This is solidly established in the circumstances that have grown out of tension in Berlin as solidly as the policy of the United States, which has given notice that any violation of the sovereignty of West Berlin or of the access route to the city will be construed as an overt military move.

Would-be negotiators have that the United States and its allies could veer off this collision course with the Soviet Union and that Premier Khrushchev, in turn, would avoid a collision. But when bullets whizz across the Berlin barricades, the most hopeful negotiators must get shaky.

The matter is being taken out of the negotiators' hands by men with the guns and mobs with stones.

It is close to the point at which one full clip of bullets in an automatic pistol might speak louder than diplomacy.

Boys are holding in their careless hands the potential fate of nations. Some of them may be trigger-happy. All of them are subject to the terrible tensions they have been put under by the decisions of their governments.

May they find more wisdom than has been found so far by their elders.

Willingness To Pay The Price

College officials say they don't know why half the young men and women who start to college drop out along the way.

"We have been writing and talking about this for 40 years," said Blanchard L. Rideout of Cornell University in a speech to the American Council on Education, when it held its annual meeting in Washington last week," and we still do not have the answer."

The obvious reasons for dropping out of college cannot account for the high rate of falling by the wayside. Some students can't hold the academic pace. Some run into money difficulties they can't surmount. Some lose their health.

But what about all the others? What accounts for the ones who say they are bored, the students who decide to ditch it because they get married, the ones who never give college an honest try and finally are asked to leave?

In an era when there is universal agreement on the importance of a college education in terms of lifetime earning power and lifetime satisfaction, why do half of the young men and women lucky enough to start to college fail to finish?

That proportion, incidentally, does not hold true in all colleges and universities. Institutions that screen students closely before they are allowed to enter college have relatively few dropouts. Usually, they are caused by health or money. It is chiefly in institutions which do not practice advance screening that mass dropouts occur.

And that is where the answer is to be found.

Students screened in advance must show they possess a strong sense of purpose. They must prove by their own previous performance that they are willing to pay the price of being educated; that they are willing to put education first and other things second. It's that simple.

An applicant who never has done anything of note in high school doesn't have a chance to make the grade in a college or university that aims to graduate all but a handful of the freshmen students it accepted.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

A "Children's Hour" TV program as suggested by Newton Minow will be tried out by a major network. Longfellow's famous poem may have to be rewritten:

Between the school and the sunset
When the night is beginning to lower
Comes a switch in TV programming
Introducing The Children's Hour.

II

A short look and then a silence—
I'm filled with a certain dread:
The moppets will be unhappy
When no one is left for dead.

III

The TV is soon deserted —
The kiddies have fled for sure;
A show with the cast unbattered
Is something they can't endure.

IV

They chase me around the household
And stir up a fearful fuss;
Grave Alice and Dick start screaming,

V

The others show great displeasure—
They jeer and they boo and hiss,
And cry loudly "Down with Minow!
He can't get away with THIS."

VI

I flee to my bombproof shelter
And hide in a spot well picked;
(A protest I'll make to TV . . .
LICKED.)

Maris home run total will be worth about $300,000 for extra commercials and appearances, it is estimated. His indorsements should include one for a wax to polish off pitchers and a vitamin that provides "that extra bang."

'All Ashore That's Going Ashore!

Logan Tree Still Stands

By Gunner Mussleman

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio Unofficial estimates indicate that the famous Logan Elm was visited during the past summer season by more persons than ever before.

Oh, yes, that historic old tree still lives in a small state park south of Circleville.

This is true in spite of headlines last spring which reported: "Raging storm claims famed Logan Elm" and "historic Logan Elm is felled by vicious winds." And it is true despite the mantle of authority given a highway department handyman who was quoted as saying the old tree was "destroyed" and that "There is nothing left to do but cut it up for souvenirs."

True, the mighty elm is a far cry from being a perfect specimen of plant life. But, like a gnarled and stooped old man, it revels in its remaining life and is anxious to stand witness to its colorful past.

And, like the old man, Logan Elm has left progeny which, in a sense, will cause it to live forever.

Mac E. Noggle, historian for Pickaway County, scoffs at "death reports" of Logan Elm. He points out that many of the smaller elms in the state park built around Logan Elm, sprang from the great tree's own seed. A state nursery near Columbus raises thousands of elms from Logan Elm seedlings.

ONE GROWS on the statehouse lawn in Columbus and another in Washington, D. C. And an entire New Orleans city preserve is covered with trees which originated in Logan Elm.

And an official of the Ohio historical society declared that as Logan Elm leafs out in spring, the venerated shrine will be spared from the woodsman's ax. Richard Fatig of Columbus, superintendent of properties for the historical society, inspected the great old tree and decreed that "it shall remain standing."

But when the time comes that this natural shrine no longer is able to withstand the force of the storm and fails some spring to send out that life—revealing sprig of green, there will still remain an enduring monument to the man whose name the great tree bears: the eloquent speech of the Mingo Indian chief, Logan.

That speech, which Thomas Jefferson said invited comparison with anything from Cicero or Demosthenes, still is recited by school children and has been translated into several languages.

STUDENTS of Mingo lore contend Logan's oratorical masterpiece was more than a speech—it was the passionate, immortal cry straight as an arrow from the heart of a noble savage.

Torn with anguish, Logan cried:

"I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him not meat; If ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not. During the course of the last, long and bloody war, Logan remained idle in his cabin, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed as they passed and said, 'Logan is the friend of the white men.' I had even thought to live with you but for the injuries of one man. Last spring Captain Cresap, in cold blood and unprovoked, murdered all the relatives of Logan, not sparing even his women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many, I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country, I rejoice at the beams of peace. Yet do not harbor the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

The speech was recorded by a British army colonel, John Gibson, an aide to Lord Dunmore, governor of Virginia. And Gibson had more than a sympathetic ear to Logan's anguished appeal — his squaw was Logan's only sister and a victim of the massacre attributed by the Mingo chief to Captain Cresap.

It had been Gibson's assignment to seek out Logan to join other Indian chiefs in a final peace treaty with the whites. Following a decisive battle at Point Pleasant on the Ohio River, the Indians—with the exception of the Mingo—were ready to call a halt to hostilities.

THE INDIANS had been summoned together on the Pickaway plains by the Shawnee chieftan, Cornstalk. They included the Delawares, Miamis, Ottawas, Wyandottes, Cayugas. Their great war chieftains included Red Hawk, Black Hoof, Blue Jacket, Red Eagle, Cheeskau, Chiywee, Scrappathus and Cornstalk's son, Elenipsico.

While they were reluctant to lay down their tomahawks despite the whipping at Point Pleasant, the Indian chieftains agreed with Cornstalk that peace should be made with the whites.

But Lord Dunmore had great respect for the missing chieftain, Logan, and was convinced no treaty would be of value unless the Mingo's signature was present.

For that reason, Gibson was dispatched to confer with Logan. And their meeting 187 years ago next Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1774, was under a large elm tree on the banks of Scippo Creek in the heart of the Pickaway Plains. It is this tree which now appears to be slowly losing its battle against time.

When that last sprig of green fails to appear, and when only a withering stump remains — only a stump remains?—why, no, there still will remain that enduring monument — Logan's immortal speech.

No Argument

By Truman Twill

I do not want to get mixed up in the argument over whether a man who has built a bomb shelter for his family's security should share it with others in the event of nuclear attack.

The proposition is too iffy.

I think anyone who lets himself be trapped into saying he wouldn't share his bomb shelter under any circumstances is a fool. He is asking for trouble, because if word ever got out that he feels that way he might as well move out of the neighborhood as far as ever borrowing another lawn mower is concerned.

But the debate brings up a point about the possibility of nuclear attack that intrigues all of us who live outside the closely built-up areas of cities.

We know what would happen. Everybody in town would have the same thought — get out of town. There would be a rush to the country by all people still alive to make the move. Even if it were no more than a rumor of nuclear attack, people would get out of target areas.

That's what intrigues all of us with homes in the country.

We'd be swamped with uninvited guests. Some would not ask for what they wanted. They would take it. They would have brought along firearms to aid them in a dog-eat-dog operation.

We would have the wells, the houses and the food supply. We'd have the medicine and the creature comforts. They would size up our livestock, including cats and dogs, with hungry eyes.

They would show the same consideration for our property rights that they show each year when they go hunting.

We are not talking about all of them, only about the plug-uglies and terrorists who would take over if civil discipline broke down. We have them here the same as they have them everywhere else. They believe might makes right and they're in no mood to argue.

They would take over, because that is the way they think. Taking over is their predictable reaction. There would be a time of terror, and they would be the terrorists, pending oblivion for all of us or restoration of civil discipline.

The terrorists would know exactly what they intended to do, you see, and we wouldn't. They'd have the drop on us, because their plan would include knocking us off without compunction and we can't knock off anything without compunction, not even a chicken.

And that is what the big international issue's all about—people without compunction threatening to knock off everybody with compunction and it doesn't matter what particular name you give the terrorists, Communists or otherwise.

Come the blast and welcome to everything I have in RFD. I'll just be one of the dispossessed.

Seminars And Politics

By Duane Croft

Gov. DiSalle's Briefing Given Analysis

Looking back on Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's recent seminars for newsmen on state financing, one conclusion stands out above all others from the mass of facts and figures, charts and diagrams:

And it comes from their constituents who, as individuals, flounder in seas of confusion over which side is telling the truth or, as members of organized pressure groups, find themselves allied against the side that happens to be in the political majority at the time.

But it is doubtful that any discussion, study or report on state financing could be really "nonpolitical." That's so whether the research took the form of a concentrated briefing—like the governor's seminars—or a protracted investigation directed by the Legislative Service Commission—as has been proposed by Republican leaders of the Ohio General Assembly.

THE REASON is that 15 people (or any other number) looking at the same set of facts and figures can come up with 15 different ideas on what they mean in terms of desirable political action.

It's a fact that while the dollar cost of the state school subsidy program climbed phenomenally, the state's share of the total cost of public education dropped from 46.4 per cent in 1948 to 33.3 per cent in 1960. This means local taxpayers have been picking up a bigger part of the tab through their votes on levies.

Is that bad? Many people—the governor and educators included—think so. They argue that many Ohio boys and girls still are not getting good enough training to serve them or their society in the future, that local taxpayers are burdened enough and that the state has an obligation to raise its ante.

But many other people believe it's a good trend, reflecting stronger local control of public programs and an increasing awareness by the citizenry of its collective responsibilities.

It's a fact that the state universities derive only about one-third of their income from taxes. The rest is supplied by student fees, gifts and relatively small federal grants.

Is that bad? Many people—the governor and university officials included—believe so. They contend students are tapped for more than they should be in an "equal opportunity" program and that the universities are nearing the limit of the burden they can carry by their own devices.

But many other people see nothing derelict in a political philosophy that demands a two-thirds contribution from the individual who wants to enjoy the benefits of a college education. And they challenge the wisdom of making it physically and financially possible for every child to go to college whether he's equipped for it or not.

THE SAME SORT of divergence between fact and conclusion can be found in virtually every phase of Ohio's $1 billion-a-year government.

The figures may be cold and unchallengeable (even that is not always true in government financing), but opinions on what they mean are always subject to challenge and the challenging process can get mighty heated.

That's politics. It's the process of making decisions through the political medium of the ballot box.

The governor's seminars were valuable as "background" because he and his top administrators did a highly creditable job of presenting the facts and figures.

But the seminars did not solve the political argument that has been raging in Ohio for these last several years and will range for many more to come.

It would have been impossible for the governor to keep attempts at political persuasion out of his seminars. It's equally impossible for his opponents to avoid attem at counteracting his persuasive efforts.

That's the way they strive for the "truth" in the argument—the majority decision of the electorate on which side is right.

Sherman's Ghost

By Raymond Moley

The minds of most politicians are eerie attics haunted by illogical and nonsensical superstitions. I illustrate by portraying the horns of a dilemma presented to Richard Nixon by some of his friends and numerous enemies. Find consistency in them, if you can: "He must run for governor to make himself available for a presidential nomination in 1964." And: "A governor elected in 1962 must serve as such for four years."

The first of these propositions has been and is questionable in Nixon's case. The second is a superstition largely created and believed in by politicians.

This question arose in 1942 when Thomas E. Dewey said, in accepting the nomination for governor of New York: "For my part, let me say right now that I shall devote the next four years to the service of the people of New York."

That has a large escape hatch through which the governor emerged without a scratch and without meeting criticism.

In January 1944, when the Dewey bandwagon was rolling along, I asked Gov. Dewey to explain the "inconsistency."

He called attention to the words "for my part" and then approved the following explanation, which I wrote in a magazine article:

"Even if he has pledged his service to the state of New York, as Dewey has done, the greater authority of the nation can break such a pledge. In short, the nation overrules the state and it also overrules Mr. Dewey, the servant of the state."

DEWEY SOUGHT the nomination openly and won it over opposition. I don't believe his course lost him a single vote in New York.

Gov. Rockefeller has said, with respect to the bearing of his own candidacy for governor on the presidential nomination in 1964: "I fundamentally don't believe in that kind of pledge." That makes a lot of sense. And I believe most voters also believe it makes sense.

After all, John F. Kennedy in 1960 had four more years to serve Massachusetts as its senator. But the people of his state voted for him as a presidential candidate.

Nixon's statement differed materially from that of Dewey in 1942. He made it perfectly clear that he would not in any way seek the 1964 nomination.

Dewey did not say that, and he did seek the nomination.

Nixon's statement should be accepted by the people of California without further qualification.

In 1884 Gen. Sherman was 65 years old and retired from the Army. James G. Blaine, the logical candidate, was reluctant to run because he believed he could not carry New York. He asked Sherman to take the nomination. Sherman replied as follows:

"I will not, in any event, entertain or accept a nomination. . . . I would account myself a fool, a madman, an ass, to embark anew, at 65 years of age, in a career that at any moment may be tempest tossed by the perfidy, the defalcation, the dishonesty or neglect of one of a hundred thou-unknown to the president of the United States, not to say the eternal worriment of a vast horde of impecunious friends and old military subordinates."

Later Sherman nailed the issue by a telegram to the convention saying: "If I am nominated I will not accept, and will not serve if elected."

THE DECISIVE differences are that Sherman was 65, he had no experience in civil government, and the time was the eve of the convention and not three years before. And he had only a few years to live.

The nation's interests would be poorly served to limit the choice of a presidential candidate to those in office whose terms expire in 1964 or to fellows named Joe who have no office at all.

The issue in California is Nixon or Brown, not Gen. Sherman. That should be enough to concern the people of that fine, big, and highly literate state.

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH
Dr. Franklin Clark Fry

"The Lord, Church, his family and the N. Y. Yankees," are, in that order, the great loves of Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, leader of more than 50 million of the world's Lutherans.

The son of a minister, who always knew he would be a minister, nevertheless, inwardly struggled during his seminary days to face and think through for himself questions of faith.

His resultant spiritual strengthening speaks for itself: Aside from his Lutheran positions and activities, his interest in overseas relief, he is Chairman of the Policy and Strategy Committee of the National Council of Churches and Chairman of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches.

"We do Remember You"

As if in shame, nature soon covers the unmarked grave. Have you forgotten someone? Yes, our loved ones want to be remembered with a true Memorial, not simpy labeled. It is possible for any family to express its sentiment adequately, eloquently, and yet, economically with a Graham and Wagner Monument, which says, "We Do Remember You."
If your family cemetery lot still lacks a Monument, why not consult us today, you still have time to erect a Memorial this year.

This is the best bubble he has ever blown, big and shiny and full of rainbow lights that shimmer gaily as he blows . . . and blows . . . and blows . . .

Inevitably, there will come the moment, when he will blow too hard and the bubble will burst. And then what was a thing of bewitching beauty will have vanished into air.

Some of the brightest-appearing things in life are no more stable than bubbles. They can shatter in an instant. But there are values that endure . . . the kind of values we learn in Church. The Church can help us achieve something solid and real, and the faith it teaches us is in no danger of disappearing today . . . tomorrow . . . or ever.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Canton Central Grinds Out 34-0 Victory Over Potters

Wellsville Surprised By New Philly In 14-6 Reversal

Victor's Ground Game Nets 379 Yards; EL Drops 3rd

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Canton Central's crushing Crusaders netted 379 yards on the ground to pile up a 34-0 shutout over the East Liverpool Potters before some 4,000 fans Friday at Patterson Field.

You have to have the ball to score and Central saw to it that the East Liverpool Potters didn't get their hands on the pigskin too much last night.

East Liverpool ran only 26 plays from scrimmage as Canton Central controlled the ball and the clock in recording its fourth victory in five starts.

Coach John McVay brought a big husky Crusaders eleven to Patterson Field and with an offensive and defensive line going close to the 200-mark, any East Liverpool effort became futile.

Besides opening gaping holes for their "grinding machine" backfield, the Central defensive forces held the Potters to a net of 66 yards rushing and four first downs. Central moved the chains 22 times.

EAST LIVERPOOL didn't get inside the Central 40-yard line all night in dropping its third game in four starts.

Quarterback Tom Becherer triggered the Central attack. The 155-pounder scored two touchdowns and threw for two other six-pointers.

Halfback Paul Penny was on the receiving end of one of Becherer's touchdown passes which came from the one-yard line and end Jim Proebstle, a 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, took a 43-yard scoring pass in the fourth period.

IT TOOK Central 11 plays to cover 64 yards after taking the opening kickoff. The big gainer in the drive was a 24-yard sprint by Blubaugh.

Becherer climaxed the march with 6:55 remaining in the first quarter when he plunged over from the two and Blubaugh tacked on the conversion.

The Potters gained a first down on their initial play from scrimmage when Tom Kraft smashed through a tackle slot for 10 yards. The drive was short-lived, however, and Kraft punted.

CANTON moved to its own 49 where Becherer, faking to his fullback, decided to keep the ball and rambled 51 yards for the TD with 3:37 still showing in the first quarter. A run for the conversion was stopped.

East Liverpool's deepest penetration of the evening came early in the second period when John Sparks, back in action after being sidelined with an injury, recovered a Canton fumble on the Potter 46.

On the first play Chuck Baker, the most outstanding performer for the Potters Friday night with his all-around play, scooted 16 yards to the Central 43. Len Oliver picked up three to the 40, but then Baker's long pass was intercepted on the one-yard line by Penny to end the threat.

In fact, the Potter line led by Captain Jim Ferello and big Jeff Hayes, did such a good job that the Crusaders were forced to throw a fourth down pass from the one yard line to score.

That went from Becherer to Penny on the right side with only four seconds to go in the half.

CANTON completely dominated the third quarter. Starting a drive on their own 34, the Crusaders chewed up the yardage and held on to the ball for 16 plays with Blubaugh hitting over the left side from one yard out with 1:44 remaining in the third quarter.

After the Potters successfully got a quick kick away in the fourth period, Central came marching back and scored with 6:13 remaining in the game on the 43-yard pass play from Becherer to Proebstle.

East Liverpool's Ferello, the senior tackle, turned in a strong performance against the big Central line and battled until he had to be taken out of the game in the last few minutes with cuts around the eyes. Stitches probably will have to be taken to close the wounds.

San Diego Faces Boston In Bid For 5th Victory

By The Associated Press

San Diego makes its second straight trip into the East Saturday to get the American Football shortened schedule on the way.

The Chargers, only unbeaten club in the league, will be after their fifth victory, with Boston the proposed victim.

There are only three games on the schedule this weekend, with New York, secure on top of the Eastern Division, and Oakland, in a tie for last in the Western Division, taking a rest.

Dallas journeys to Denver, and Buffalo Invades Houston for Sunday afternoon games.

San Diego went into the East last week and ran into a hornet's next at Buffalo. The Chargers, slowed to a walk by Buffalo's tenacious defense, had to rely on defense and kicking to win 19-11.

Boston may offer about the same problem. The Patriots haven't been winning much more than Buffalo, but they have been giving the opposition plenty of trouble. New York edged Boston 21-20 and 37-30, and the Patriots crushed Denver 45-17 and nosed out Buffalo 23-21.

Clay Faces Miteff In TV Bout Tonight

That question will be answered tonight when the 19-year-old Louisvillian meets Argentina's rugged Alex Miteff in a scheduled 10-round nationally televised (ABC TV, 10 p.m. EDT) boxing match at Freedom Hall. Clay is rated the 2-1 favorite.

Both heavyweights are expected to be in peak condition for the bout. Clay, who won the Olympic light heavyweight title last summer at Rome, will weigh in at about 192 against Miteff's 205 pounds.

Clay has an 8-0 record as a professional. The 26-year-old Miteff has compiled a 24-10-1 mark. He has kayoed 14 of his victims.

'Pressure' Now On Yanks

The Review Sports

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1961 EAST LIVERPOOL REVIEW PAGE 8

Reds Scent Victory In Third Game

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The World Series plunged into its third game today with the New York Yankees fretting over the landscaping of compact Crosley Field and the steamed-up Cincinnati Reds scenting a second successive series victory.

Despite their 2-1 betting edge, the pressure definitely was on the aching Yankees as the series, after a one-day layoff, resumed in perfect weather before an overflow crowd of 32,000 mainly wild-eyed Redleg partisans.

Starting time is 2 p.m. EDT, with the game to be telecast and broadcast nationally by NBC.

Compared with New York where neither of the first two games drew capacity, the series fever is burning at terrific pitch in this Ohio River metropolis.

Gaudy and giant signs everywhere exhort a Redleg victory, and the man in the street is a red-hot baseball fan. Tickets are going at scalpers' prices, one businessman being arrested for exacting $600—$50 a ticket—for a dozen $7.50 seats.

Both clubs were down to their No. 3 first-line pitchers—Cincinnati's Bob Purkey, 32, a knuckleballer, facing New York's Bill Stafford, who just completed his first full major-league season. Purkey had a 16-12 regular season mark, and Stafford, also a right-hander, had 14-9.

In Friday's workout in freshly, all-white painted Crosley Park, the Yankees were obviously concerned over the lush infield grass and the sharply-terraced outfield perimeter which, it is said, is mounded over utility pies.

It was reported the quite high infield grass, which would slow down rollers considerably, would be trimmed before game time. Consensus is that the Yankees have a better defensive infield than the Reds and would profit less from any grassy assistance.

This is a game in which the benched Mickey Mantle could turn the tide for the Yankees, who have had absolutely no help from their famed and fabled M&M home-run combination. Roger Maris, who set the all-time season homer mark of 61, has yet to hit the ball out of the infield in this series.

Maris failed to reach the Crosley Field 360-foot right-field bleacher mark in Friday's batting drill. But Mantle, who missed the two New York games because of an infected hip, swung an explosive bat in practice. He boomed four balls into the right-field stands, two into the center-field stands—batting left handed—and lofted two over the left-field wall at the 340-foot mark hitting right-handed.

Yankee Mgr. Ralph Houk said he would not decide on whether Mantle could start until today's pregame batting drill, but added: "Although I'm not ready to say he'll play, it looks less doubtful now."

Quakers Net 1st Win; Ours Injured In Second Half

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Underdog New Philadelphia turned the tables on the odds-makers to stun Wellsville High, 14-6, for its first victory of the season Friday night at Nicholson Stadium.

A crowd of 1,400 looked on in cool, foggy weather to see Wellsville's football fortunes tumble with costly fumbles and an offensive attack that sputtered throughout.

A two - touchdown underdog, New Philly turned two Wellsville fumbles into touchdowns, then tack as the Tigers commenced to play some ragged football.

However, Wellsville guard Mike Thompson, rugged 190-pounder, never let up for a moment and was the game's standout on defense.

Wellsville stuck to a strict diet of end sweeps and tackle slants and gained no yardage through the air.

Fullback John Euill led the Tiger ball carriers with 50 yards in 11 cracks at the quick-hitting New Philly line. Halfback Alvin Thompson gained 46 yards in 14 carries, while Ours picked up 43 in nine attempts.

Edwards accounted for 73 yards in rushing in 13 carries for New Philly. Snyder gained 50 yards in 17 carries.

The Quakers also used punting to their advantage when Wellsville failed to drop receivers deep enough in the secondary on two occasions. With no runbacks, the Tigers had to struggle a little harder to get out of their own territory.

Luckino made two dandy runs for Wellsville, but his longest of 27 yards was nullified by a penalty. He also intercepted a New Philly aerial when Euill rushed hard on the Philly quarterback.

Besides the well - conditioned Thompson, end Jack Culp helped out on the Tiger forward wall with numerous tackles. Tackle Alvin Jackson boomed one kickoff a yard inside the New Philly end zone.

Wellsville surprised the Philly defense for a 19-yard gain in the first half when Ours broke loose on a fake punt maneuver handled flawlessly by Dan Corbisello.

snuffed out the Tiger attack after regular quarterback Roger Ours was shelved by an injury a little more than a minute after the second half kickoff.

Ours was cut down by a downfield blocker at 11:28 of the third period and watched the remainder of the action from the bench.

His absence weakened the Tiger offense considerably and they were never able to get back into contention to overcome New Philly's 14-6 third quarter lead.

Coach Ken Woods' Tigers returned to the losing side of the ledger with a 2-3 mark after impressive wins over Toronto and Ashland.

Wellsville drove 64 yards on the opening kickoff for a touchdown, but was turned into a fumbling opponent shortly thereafter.

The Quakers pushed 25 yards in eight plays with 8:56 left in the second period to score after taking possession on a fumbled pitchout by a Wellsville halfback.

A fumbled punt deep in Wellsville territory presented another opportunity late in the third quarter, and the Quakers also made good on this one for a touchdown.

Christopher had lots of praise for his defensive unit which he declared was much - improved over the last game.

"Our defense was a lot better, and Jerry Holtzworth, 157-pound senior linebacker, did an especially nice job for us," the young coach said. "Also, this was the first time that our offense really got moving," he added.

Philly's defensive unit held Wellsville to only two first downs in the second half.

Wellsville started off the game by driving 64 yards and scoring at 5:58 of the opening quarter on halfback Alvin Thompson's eight-yard skirt of right end. A pass by Ours to end Andy Dash was unsuccessful for the conversion.

Philly recovered a badly-tossed pitchout by Ours near the end of the first period and marched 25 yards spanning the quarter break to score on fullback Bob Snyder's one - yard crash over center. Halfback Harold Edwards swept end for the two - points conversion.

Early in the third period, Wellsville halfback Frank Luckino fumbled a New Philly punt at the Wellsville 10, and the visitors needed only three plays to score on Miller's buck over the center. A run failed for the conversion.

Sub quarterback Jim Reed, 140-pound sophomore, took over the Wellsville controls for Ours but couldn't whip up an effective attack as the Tigers commenced to play some ragged football.

Palestine Scores In 4th Period

Stubborn Lisbon Finally Falls To Bulldogs, 14-6

East Palestine High continued unbeaten in the Tri-County League Friday night in squeezing by stubborn Lisbon, 14-6, with a final quarter touchdown.

Palestine turned a blocked punt into a touchdown to break a 6-6 final quarter deadlock and gain its fourth victory in five games.

The winners recovered the blocked punt at the Lisbon 44 and drove the distance for the deciding score. Bob Chaplow registered the decider on a three-yard buck, and Dave Smith plunged for the conversion.

Coach Bud Bucher's Blue Devils drew first blood in the second quarter after a long punt return to midfield. A penalty moved the Devils 15 yards to the Palestine 35. Gary Perchutti capped the series of plays with a three - yard buck. A run for the conversion failed.

East Palestine tied the score at 6-6 on Dave Smith's three - yard run in the second quarter. A pass operation covering 40 yards gave Palestine the scoring opportunity. Guy passed to Gary Norton for 14 yards, and Dave Smith broke loose to the Lisbon three, scoring from there moments later. A placement failed on the conversion try.

Then the Bulldogs blocked the Lisbon punt and wrapped up the game on Chaplow's short run.

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A shoeless quarterback, a major upset, a disabled referee, and an odd injury served to introduce the season's third big college football weekend Friday night.

Navy's hard-charging Middies not only ripped Miami's offensive patterns at key moments en route to a 17-6 upset but also piled up a referee so badly he had to leave the game.

Penn State quarterback Pete Liske, who inherited the No. 1 job only this week, ably directed the Nittany Lions to a first-half lead and capped his effort by literally running out of a shoe on a 33-yard touchdown that capped State's 32-0 conquest of hapless Boston University.

Florida used the old sleeper play and a second-string quarterback to engineer a second-half comeback and a 14-3 victory over winless Tulane.

Fired-up Navy gave halfback Jim Stewart beautiful downfield blocking as he swept 83 yards on a swing-pass play that accounted for a 7-0 second-quarter lead over two - touchdown favorite Miami. Navy defenders made the lead stand up, charging so hard they not only rocked the Miami runners but also put Referee John Lynch out of the game after he had got in the way of a Navy back.

Bobby Dodd Jr., son of the Georgia Tech football coach, directed Florida's second-half rally that overcame Tulane's 3-0 lead.

In major games today Iowa, top-ranked in the current Associated Press poll, may face a threat against Southern California. The Hawkeyes will play without the services of Larry Ferguson, a regular starting halfback who is out for injuries in the nationally televised game.

Panthers Drop 3rd Tilt

Chester's homecoming was dampened when Warwood came to town and walked off with a 30-6 victory Friday night at City Park.

The visitors grabbed a 30-0 lead at the end of three quarters and didn't allow Chester to cross the goal until the last 11 seconds of the contest.

Warwood received a break early by recovering a fumble on the Chester 28. Annett went 14 yards for the TD with 4:36 remaining in the first quarter.

The second TD came on a 63-yard drive climaxed by a pass from Kota to Ruthers with 1:53 left in the half. But before the half ended, only three seconds showed on the clock when Annett hit Dunlevy on a pass play covering 41 yards.

The final TD was set up on Ruthers' 38-yard punt return with Plummer smacking over from one yard away.

Chester marched 81 yards for its lone touchdown and just got in under the wire. With 11 seconds to go, Don Reese took a 15-yard pass from Gary Mayhew for the score. The touchdown had been set up on a Reese-to-Bob Myers aerial good for 22 yards.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt as the Leopards hopped on a Monaca fumble on the Monaca 43 and proceeded to score in six plays.

Midland moved for one first down and had a third down situation on the Monaca 30, when Trbovich faded back and hit halfback Rich Lake with a TD pass. Epley's placement was good, but Midland was offside and guard Mike Swager blocked Epley's second try.

Midland came right back after taking a Monaca punt and moved from the Monaca 38 to paydirt in four plays. On the first play, Trbovich hit Vaughn with a screen pass for 22 yards and moved the ball to the 16. Epley went over from the one three plays later. His try for placement was wide and Midland led, 12-0, with 5:25 remaining in the first quarter.

Midland scored its third TD of the game as the first quarter ended. It was set up when center Paul Anthony fell on Jerry McIntosh's fumble on the Monaca 37.

With a second and 12 situation on the Monaca 39, Trbovich was spilled for a nine-yard loss to the 48. Here Trbovich again hit Lake with a pass, this one covering 47 yards, moving the ball to the one. Vaughn scored his first TD of the night on the next play. Epley's kick was wide and Midland led, 18-0, at the end of the first quarter.

Midland wasted no time in scoring its fourth TD of the night. After stopping a Monaca drive at the Monaca 37, the Leopards went 63 yards in six plays, the clincher being Vaughn's 25-yard jaunt off tackle. Trbovich's pass for the extra point fell incomplete.

Monaca had its most-serious drive of the night stopped by an interception. Monaca had a fourth and goal on the Midland 14 when end John Girting intercepted Bergiel's aerial on the four, and lateraled to Rich Spanik who brought it out to the 25.

Midland's last TD was a real crowd pleaser. The Leopards took the second half kick-off and looked as if they were on their way for another score. Trbovich hit end Paul Cacic for a 13-yard pass play to the Monaca 38, but Cacic fumbled when he was hit and Monaca recovered.

Monaca could not move the sticks and punted. Spanik took the punt on his 27 and returned it to the 30. On the first play, Vaughn scampered up the middle, bouncing off would - be - tacklers, and went 70 yards for his third TD and Midland's final one. Epley converted and Midland led, 31-0, with 8:15 left in the third stanza.

Coach Charles Polce substituted freely the rest of the game and the Midland reserves threw back Monaca's last two attempts to score.

Midland ran up 201 yards rushing and 119 passing for a total of 320 yards. Helping Vaughn with the ball carrying chores was Lake, who ran up 60 yards in eight carries. He also was Trbovich's main target gathering in two passes for 77 yards.

Monaca managed 91 yards on the ground and 58 in the air.

Highly - impressive was the play of Midland's front line, led by Anthony, Bob love, Girting, and Ted Vaughn.

Regulars Henry Tookes, Lou Kruel and Tom Flasco dressed but did not see any action due to injuries.

Next Friday night the Leopards wil entertain the Rochester Rams.

CAPTIVATING CASSIE WELLS, a green-eyed blonde, flashes a broad smile after being named Newell's homecoming queen Friday night. Daughter of Mrs. Madeline M. Wells, 501 Jefferson St., she was crowned at halftime ceremonies of the Wells High-South Side football game. The 16-year-old senior was selected by the football team. Other queen candidates were Sue Robinson and Karen Simmons, while attendants were Susan Ward and Jennifer Allison. A dance in the high school followed the football game which Newell lost, 27-7.

South Side's three touchdowns in the second half broke wide open what had been a close contest Friday night as the Rams spoiled Newell's homecoming with a 27-7 victory at Memorial Stadium.

Coach Dave Nichol's squad came out for the second half and pushed across 13 points in the third quarter and seven more in the fourth.

The loss sent Newell falling to its fifth straight setback while South Side now stands at 2-2 on the season.

Fullback Wilbur King ran 15 yards for South Side's first touchdown after Chuck Schmidt had set up the TD on a 20-yard runback of a Newell punt. King also added the extra point.

Newell came back when Dave Bell intercepted a pass in South Side territory and halfback Keith Wilson raced 10 yards for the TD. Tom LeMasters' placement was good and the game was deadlocked, 7-7.

Opening the second half, nifty quarterback Chuck Schmidt threw a 17 - yard scoring pass to end Bob Malone to climax a 70-yard drive. The same combination hooked up for the conversion.

Late in the same period Curt Clay bulled over from four yards out to end a 75 - yard march.

The Rams were on the move again in the fourth quarter when a 70-yard drive ended with Kenny Rosak plunging over from the one - yard line then kicked the extra point.

LEETONIA — The Leetonia Bears drew first blood here Friday night, but Minerva had the last word in a 40-13 victory.

Minerva, undefeated in three Tri-County League starts, spotted Leetonia a first period touchdown and then came roaring back to tally 20 points in both the second and third quarters.

College Grid Deaths Exceed 1960 Total With 4th Claimed

By The Associated Press

College football deaths this year already have exceeded the total for the entire 1960 season with William Foster, 20-year-old guard for Johnson C. Smith University, the fourth player to die due to injuries attributed to the sport.

In addition, 11 high school players have died of injuries suffered on the football field, or from indirect causes. Two deaths on the semi-pro level also have been recorded during the early part of the 1961 season.

Foster, a native of Indianola, Pa., who was a third-stringer for the Golden Bulls, died Thursday, 10 days after he was kicked in the stomach while making a tackle during a practice session at the Charlotte, N.C., school.

Monday, John Zola, 20, Lebanon Valley College player, died after undergoing an emergency operation for removal of a blood clot in the brain. Zola collapsed after a game against Drexel Tech, but the cause of death was never determined officially.

The other two collegians who died, both after sustaining injuries in practice sessions, were Donald G. Foley, 19, of Pasadena, Tex., a member of Navy's junior varsity, and Howard Kauwe, a 17-year-old freshman from Hilo, Hawaii, who played for Iowa Wesleyan.

Titan Missile Fired Successfully Again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force sent its Titan intercontinental range missile winging to its eighth straight success on a 5,000-mile test flight down the Atlantic range Friday night.

The flight further confirmed reliability of the Titan and edged it nearer combat readiness. The first nine-missile squadron is slated for deployment at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., late this year.

The success was the third this week for a long - range U.S. missile. Earlier, two Atlases hit targets 5,000 and 9,000 miles away.

The Titan was steered by a self-contained inertial guidance system designed for use in later, more powerful Titan I missiles.

2 More Cards Crippled For Giants Game

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals, known as "the incredible cripples," will have two more players watching from the sidelines Sunday when the Redbirds play the New York Giants in a game that should help to unscramble the five-way tie for first in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

The game will open the Cardinals' home schedule. The latest injured Cardinals are offensive end Hugh McInnis and a flashy punt return specialist, rookie Pat Fischer.

McInnis injured his left knee, and Fischer suffered a shoulder separation in last weekend's 30-27 upset of the world champion Philadelphia Eagles.

Two other Cardinals, fullback Frank Mestnik and defensive end Joe Robb, may see only limited action. Mestnik has a sprained arch and Robb a sore foot.

The Cardinals and the Giants both have 2-1 records along with the Dallas Cowboys, the Eagles and the Cleveland Browns.

Autoist Hurt On Route 170

An area motorist was hospitalized with injuries suffered in one of three accidents on Route 170 Friday night and early today.

Joseph Jack Reese, 31, of the Fredericktown Rd. is in "fairly good" condition at City Hospital with injuries received when his car overturned on Route 170 about two miles north of Route 30 this morning at 3:35.

Officers at the Lisbon barracks of the Ohio State Highway Patrol said Reese was headed north when his car went off the right side of the highway, struck a fence and then upset.

Cars driven by Don S. Sowards, 39, of R. D. 2 and Cleason Woodford, 61, of R. D. 2 collided on Route 170 about a mile north of Route 30 Friday at 6:45 p. m.

Woodford drove onto Route 170 from County Rd. 43 and into the path of Sowards, the patrol said. Moderate damage resulted to both vehicles. Woodford was arrested for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Arthur L. Felger, 24, of East Palestine escaped injury when his car overturned on Route 170 just south of Route 14 at 3:20 a. m. today, officers said.

Felger apparently fell asleep at the wheel. The car went off the left side and then rolled over. Felger was cited for driving left of center, the patrol said.

Dinsmore said claims totaled 479 with 348 being filed under the regular program and 131 under the federal extension plan.

The breakdown shows 56 new and 292 continuing under the regular benefits and 11 new and 120 under the extended program. The 11 new claims would be filed by those who have exhausted their regular benefits.

Library Has Film On 'White House' In Travel Series

A 15-minute color feature on the "White House, Past and Present" leads the list of a dozen new travel films at the Carnegie Public Library.

The camera takes its audience into famous rooms and offices seldom seen by the public. From the original plans to the expanded and remodeled mansion of today, the film traces the story of the famous building and the residents for whom it has served as home and office.

Other American subjects among the travelogues are a 13-minute color study of the "St. Lawrence Seaway," and a 19-minute portrayal of the splendor of "Yosemite."

A free trip around the world is possible through the fine array of foreign travel subjects: "Report on Puerto Rico," "Serenal" (a West Indian idyll), "The Amazon," "Germany," "The Middle East," "People of the Netherlands" and "India-Pakistan."

A fine basis for scout programs and the entertainment of young children is found in the excellent selection of nature films:

"In the Forest," a new short in which animals play "Drop the Kerchief;" "Grass Blade Jungle," "Kangaroos," "Monkey Who Would Be King," "Animals of the Indian Jungle" and an outstanding 15-minute study of "Reptiles."

Curiosity about early man can be solved by viewing the "Cave Dwellers of the Stone Age." Their weapons and tools exhibited in a museum can make an informative program.

For the space age fans, there is "Understanding Our Universe," concerning the solar system, the Milky Way and countless galaxies.

Rayburn Had No Rival Faction

Majority Leader Looms As Next House Speaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sam Rayburn's long, unchallenged reign as speaker of the House of Representatives apparently has cleared the way for an orderly succession by Majority Leader John W. McCormack to Rayburn's seat of power—at least temporarily.

The grip of the strong-willed, but kindly Texan on the speakership has been so strong no rival faction ever developed. And his tenure has been so long the ambitions of any potential rivals have cooled with age.

So, it would seem almost certain at this point that McCormack, a Bostonian, would follow the traditional upward path and ascend to the speaker's chair when Congress convenes Jan. 10 for the second half of its current session.

McCormack, 69, is already speaker pro tem by formal vote of the House. He was elected late last month when Rayburn was forced by illness to return to his home at Bonham, Tex. Rayburn is gravely ill with cancer and aides say his days may be sharply limited.

No predictions of harmony and order would be valid beyond the next session, however. McCormack, despite 21 years as Rayburn's lieutenant in the House Democratic leadership, has nothing like the solid support that made Rayburn speaker more than twice as long as any other man.

The dreams of power so long suppressed by strong and capable members of the House while Rayburn ruled the roost seemed bound to burst into reality. And a many-sided struggle for the job whose holder is third in line for the presidency should soon develop.

A possible obstacle to McCormack may be supplied by the White House. But, the possibility of President Kennedy intervening is considered a long-shot possibility at this point.

Kennedy and McCormack have been at political odds in the past in Boston, their home city. And, in the last session, McCormack antagonized the administration by insisting that parochial schools have some share in proposed federal aid to schools.

McCormack's view, shared by some other congressmen, was a key factor in helping cut the heart from Kennedy's ambitious school aid legislative program.

McCormack's chief challengers at the moment would appear to be the handful of men who help run the House—the chairmen of the important committees: the party whip, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla.; his assistant, Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La.; the astute and greatly liked Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., who has indicated he may retire; Rep. Albert Rains, D-Ala., a Southerner with strong Northern backing, and Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., widely regarded as Rayburn's choice for a successor. One of the committee chairmen considered a possibility is Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

Whether McCormack can be toppled, however, is another matter. To his basic training in the tough school of Boston politics he has added 33 years in the House, two-thirds of them as his party's floor leader, and whatever happens he won't be taken by surprise.

Most Eligible Ohio Counties Slow To Take Economic Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the 20 Ohio counties eligible for economic aid from the Area Redevelopment Administration have been slow to take advantage of the new federal program.

Only Scioto County has submitted an over-all economic development plan. This is the first step in seeking low interest loans, grants and technical assistance from the administration.

"The thing that's been tough is to get the communities to plan their future," one agency spokesman said.

Redevelopment officials indicated the action of the Ohio Legislature in slashing the budget of its state industrial development department was partly responsible for the slow response to the federal program.

Federal spokesmen emphasize the importance of community and state cooperation to develop a blueprint of economic recovery for the designated areas of low income and high unemployment.

The Ohio Industrial Development Department was given only $200,000, compared with more than $3 million that similar departments in Pennsylvania and New York received from their legislatures, federal spokesmen said.

Redevelopment officials also attribute the slow response in most of the Ohio counties to early misconceptions that the program "is a quick way out of their problems." Some apparently lost interest when they discovered it is not.

"This is no quick deal," one spokesman said. "Area leaders must first come to grips with community problems before obtaining federal funds."

McCloy Quits Disarm Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — John J. McCloy has turned in his final report as presidential disarmament adviser.

He quit Friday and received President Kennedy's thanks for the work he had done.

"You have made a notable contribution to the country and to the world in this most important area," Kennedy told him in a letter.

The White House said McCloy's advice in the disarmament field will continue to be available, perhaps in some formal position.

A new law created an arms control and disarmament agency, and Kennedy named William C. Foster to head it.

McCloy, Kennedy's special adviser on disarmament since Jan. 27, had a hand in formulating the legislation that established the new agency.

In a letter to Kennedy, he said that with the passage of the legislation, the conclusion of some negotiations with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin regarding a forum for disarmament talks, and the presentation of a U.S. disarmament plan to the United Nations, he considered his mission completed.

Lions Will Take Orders On Bulbs

Although the house-to-house sale of light bulbs has been completed, orders for bulbs still will be filled, it was announced at the Lions Club meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

Charles Herman, president, reported the club disposed of its entire supply in the three-day sale which ended Thursday night.

A 24-hour broom sale is planned tentatively in April or early May, he announced.

Others Stand By Nasser

70% Of Syrians Happy To Be Out Of UAR Rule

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—About 70 per cent of Syria's people are glad to be out from the oppressive rule of President Nasser and his United Arab Republic, informed sources say.

The people were sick of the stiff import restrictions, crippling economic decrees, the secret police, terror and unheard-of income taxes imposed by Cairo.

The remainder of the population still stands by Nasser, these informants say. A small but vocal segment of Syria's 4½ million people, it consists of rabid Arab nationalists and Nasser-worshiping students.

Composed of known rightists and professional men, the revolutionary cabinet may prove not revolutionary enough for some Syrians, possibly even for some segments of the army that installed it.

Despite the regime's neutral policy, 11 of Kuzbari's 12 ministers lean clearly to the West. Syrians are sensitive to accusations of imperialism or capitalism.

Kuzbari's cabinet faces troubles from Egypt, its partner in the U.A.R. until last week's military uprising dissolved those ties.

Nasser is expected to pour in money and agents to whip up dissent and work on Syrian feeling for Arab unity. Damascus once was the capital of Islam and these feelings may be even deeper in Syria than in the rest of the Arab world.

Nasser's powerful propaganda has lost some of its effectiveness in the last three years, however, and closer Syrian ties with neighboring Iraq and Jordan might be enough to offset it.

Man Who Threatened Leap Coaxed Down

CINCINNATI (AP)—No charge was placed immediately against Joseph Watson, 22, who was taken to General Hospital for observation Friday after threatening to jump from the roof of Crosley Field.

Two patrolmen coaxed Watson down after he took off his clothes and waved his arms while the New York Yankees worked out after arriving at Cincinnati for the third World Series game. Police said a friend of Watson's told them the young man was an outpatient at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

CONCRETE JUNGLE GYM

The facial expressions appear more menacing than the guns as a cop and a robber argue about who outgunned other.

Aiming as if his life depended on it, sidewalk sportsman prepares to "erase" a competitor who has landed in a high scoring box. Boys also use bottlecaps.

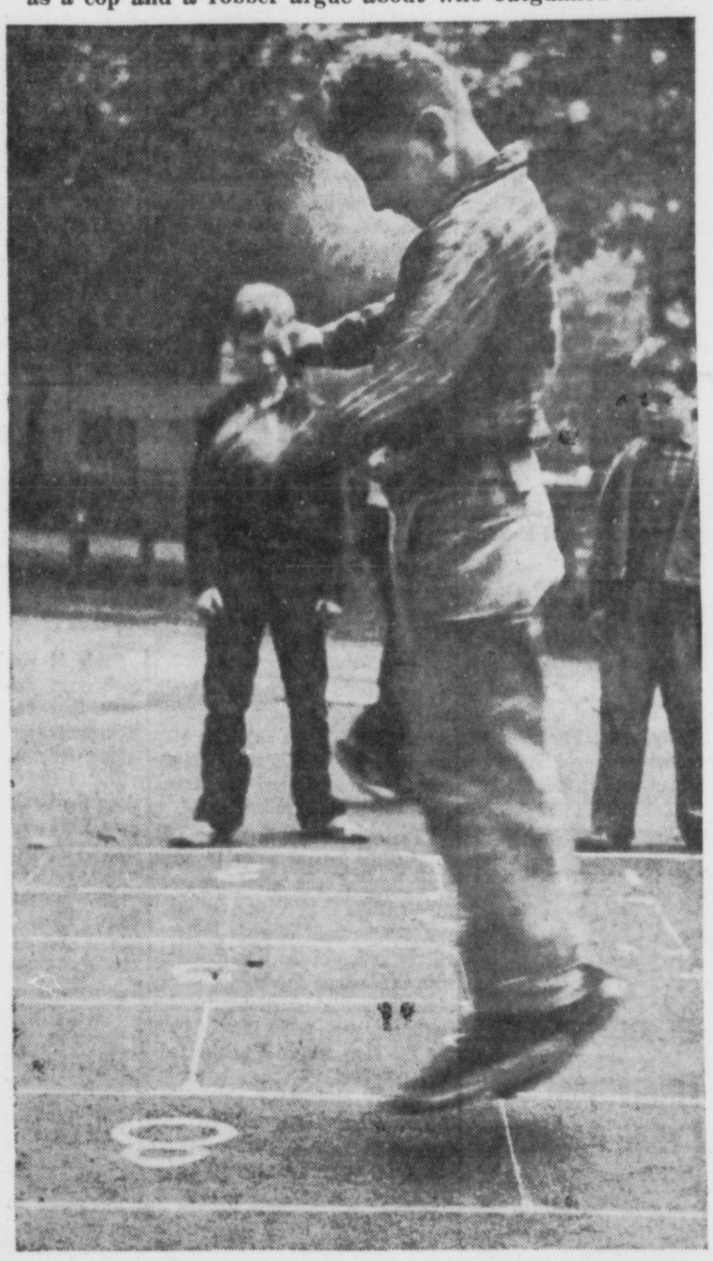
On the Surface It's All Fun Even If It Is Really Cement

TO A CITY youngster the world is the block on which he lives. His playground is a concrete jungle gym that can offer much for those whose lives are governed by the rules of "Potsie," cops and robbers, stickball and bottle caps.

The local playground, with its swings, overhead ladders, slides and seesaws, permits young Tarzans to give vent to their inexhaustible energies. The city boy's playworld is built of concrete. Grass to him is only a place to put signs reading "Keep Off."

The sidewalk is still the favorite playground for most. Here he can frighten unwary pedestrians as he careens by in a makeshift wagon whose wheels never have been formally introduced. Its power is solely dependent on the frayed clothesline of a neighbor who still believes it to be holding the day's wash.

Lost completely in the pursuit of fun, city children love the block on which they live. While most will agree that living on a farm would be nice, cows and horses can't replace the gang when it comes to making a soapbox wagon or a scooter from discarded roller skates. Besides, who ever heard of playing cops and robbers in a cornfield?



Under the critical eye of two non-blinking playmates, "Potsie" expert shows skill. Each playground has a champion.

Two daring young ladies on the flying trapeze. Soaring higher and higher, the girls find the swing never loses its magic.

Student Governing Plan South Side High Adopts

Establishment of a student government system at South Side High School near Hookstown has been launched with an election of a Student Council and class officers.

With a school philosophy that student activities are best left to student management, the council has started handling of social activities, class elections and establishment of a club program, Charles P. Henderson, principal, said.

Clubs being formed this year include Future Nurses of America, Art, Junior High Dramatic, Varsity, Hunting and Fishing, Future Homemakers of America, service, audio-visual, mathematics, music and Senior High Dramatics.

To make students aware of career opportunities in numerous fields, a series of programs featuring speakers on various occupations will be held, Henderson said.

The first was held Wednesday when some 156 high school girls heard Mrs. Jane McMillon, R.N., explain various phases of the nursing profession and materials from the Western Pennsylvania Hospital Council were distributed.

Crew Asks $300 For 'Spray Job' On Newell Home

The Chamber of Commerce today repeated its standard warning to householders, "Investigate before you invest," after an elderly Newell woman complained she was charged $300 by an itinerant crew that sprayed aluminum paint on the roof of her home.

The woman complained to the Chamber she was approached a few days ago by a man who said his Pennsylvania crew "just happened to be passing by from another job and noticed your roof was in bad shape."

He offered to "fix it up" by spraying the roofing with aluminum paint and assured the woman that it "won't cost you very much," she said.

When the job was finished, the crew presented a bill for $300. The bill is unpaid. The woman referred the crew to her son, explaining that he takes care of all her large accounts.

The Chamber reiterated its warning that householders approached by itinerant workmen and vendors should consult reputable local tradesmen and obtain estimates of the needed work.

Hearing Due Monday For Boy In $15 Theft

A 15-year-old Railroad St. boy accused of stealing a piggy bank with $15 from an East End home is scheduled for a hearing Monday at 10 a. m. before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin.

The court appearance was set Friday afternoon when the youth appeared at City Hall before Probation Officer Chris Pusey. The boy's parents were instructed to attend the hearing before Judge Tobin.

The youth was taken into custody Wednesday, accused of stealing the bank Saturday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Charles Bayer, 1009 Monaca St. The housewife said a thief entered via an unlocked door and took the bank from the diningroom table.

Householders Report Pranks On Telephone

Householders in the Minerva St.-Avondale St. district complained today they have been bothered for a week by a series of mysterious telephone calls apparently placed by thoughtless pranksters.

Women particularly have been subject to quizzing by the unidentified callers, who ask: "Are you alone?" or "Is your husband at home?"

Householders said the calls generally are placed after nightfall, leading some to suspect would-be burglars are checking to find unoccupied houses.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Child Must Be Taught Table Manners

It's wonderful when, as a rule, in a family of several children over four or five, all remain leisurely at the table in companionable conversation until the last person has finished eating. Such desirable ways may not be easily attained. One or more children may be eager to hurry off to play. They may even prefer to pass up dessert. Of course, if they leave the table before dessert is served, they might well be told they can't come back for it later. While I was discussing this matter with a certain father, he referred to a daughter, 14, who lately has been working hard to reduce her excessive weight.

"IT SEEMS easier for her to cut down on food if she leaves the table rather early," he said.

I conceded that he had a good point.

Then, too, the tot three or four may get pretty tired waiting at the table after he has finished. But there comes a time, say at eight or ten, certainly at 12 or 14, when he should learn to wait for a reasonable time after he has finished eating.

The desirability of his doing so becomes apparent when the family eats out together or when there are dinner guests. When, for example, you parents and your children eat at a public place and the child older than six or eight, or as old as 14, insists on leaving the table and roaming about, he seems pretty immature. There's value in some wholesome self - discipline here.

You might well consider announcing to the children over three or four that they shall remain at the table until a certain time you will state — at the end, say, of 20 minutes. In the home, a clock may be set to ring at this time in the interest of certainty.

FOR THE CHILD over six or eight who inclines to bolt his food so he can hurry out to play, a definite time limit adhered to may have desirable effect. This is far better than nagging at him constantly to eat more slowly.

Seeing that he must wait till a certain time to leave the table anyway, he will naturally come to the conclusion that he might as well not hurry.

The foregoing does not take account of the child commanded to remain at the table until he has finished the food served him. There's hardly a justifiable excuse for such a case.

This problem may be avoided as follows:

Don't serve the child of any age an unreasonable amount of food. Let him decide how much of any food he is served. Even let him serve as small a portion as he chooses, so long as the amount is visible.

My bulletins, "Eating Problems II" and "The Very Selfish Child," may be had by sending a self - addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Port Homer Group To Discuss New PTA

Plans for organizing a new Parent-Teacher Association unit will be discussed at a meeting of parents from Empire, Stratton and Port Homer Monday night at 7:30 in the new Edison Elementary School.

Previously, Port Homer was the only community of the three riverfront towns in the Stanton Local School District with a PTA unit.

The new consolidated Edison school serves the three communities. It opened Sept. 15.

Mrs. Eleanor Hartford of Toronto will speak on PTA activities and organization. Darrell Furbee, president of the Port Homer PTA, will act as chairman.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Happy Dieter Finds Life 'Fun'

Stretch your mind with a habit-changing idea. Instead of looking upon your favorite fattening foods as adding to your pleasure in life, regard the excess pounds as standing in your way of feeling young and having fun. This shift in emphasis can be unexpectedly energizing. Enthusiasm is contagious, so read on!

Ida Jean Kain

"I can't believe it is me riding a bike, or swimming or playing ball and badminton. I'm havnig fun again!"

This line was included in a triumphant report from a young woman who, in the summer of 1960, couldn't get into a size 52 bathing suit. She weighed 250 pounds. As she struggled with the suit, she sensed that the summer ahead would be no fun at all, for she had allowed eating to crowd out all other pleasures.

SUDDENLY a new resolve was born in her heart. Out came the calorie chart from its hiding place and she began. Here is her mid-summer report of 1961.

"On July 4th we had a party, not only to celebrate our country's independence, but my independence from 100 excess pounds. I feel like a new person. People do not even recognize me this summer. Who can blame them? Last summer I wore size 52 and now I am wearing size 18. I'm getting closer to that prize size 16 all the time.

"When I see someone who is fat, as I was, I don't tell them to diet because that won't help. Every one would tell me, 'You're an R.N., you should know the danger of overweight.' It's true, I knew. My 10-year old daughter didn't want me to visit her school and I knew why...even though she didn't say.

"I really feel like a crusader and wish I could help others. I realize, however, that the incentive must come from within. But this I can promise...when you finally decide to slim down, and keep your mind on your goal, you can do it.

"Even my doctor is surprised at my will power. I no longer look 50 years old. Now I look more like my 36 years. I still want to shed 20 pounds but I am no longer anxious. By next summer I should be the size 16 I want to be and I will stay there forever.

"Now that I have lost all this weight I am able to exercise to improve my figure.

"I feel so wonderful. One hundred excess pounds seems almost impossible to lose. But if I could do it, I know every overweight can. I was just a sucker for chocolate cake and pudding and all the fatteners. I know now that nothing is better than having enough energy to live life fully

"I HAVE GONE back to nursing again now, for R.N.'s are scarce. I had planned to report earlier, but this summer I have been so busy having fun and trying to make up for the lost years.

"One day soon I will send you some before and after pictures. They really tell more than words can ever say."

Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for "Revised Calorie Chart." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this newspaper. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

Mainz, Germany, the cradle of modern printing, will celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of its founding in 1962.

Midland NAACP Plans Trip For President

The Midland branch of the NAACP decided Wednesday evening it will send Will T. Leavell, president, to the Pennsylvania State convention Nov. 3-5 at Easton.

Plans were also made for a "Halloween Folly" for members and guests, Tuesday, Oct. 31, at the Masonic Hall on Ohio Ave. There will be dancing, games and refreshments. Mrs. Martha Gray is chairman.

Wandering Girls' Parents Hearing Set

LISBON — The hearing for parents of two Salem girls found playing alone in a downtown department store in Youngstown last Saturday was continued until Oct. 16, at 1:30 p. m. by Judge Louis Tobin Thursday afternoon.

Atty. R. E. Coe requested the continuance so that the grandmother where the girls were supposed to stay, can appear to testify.

Authorities said the girls, one 5 and other 8, were sent unaccompanied to Youngstown last Friday by bus to visit their grandmother. They were not met at the bus station but they found the grandmother's home. They spent Friday night there and when they awoke Saturday morning they found they were alone. They got their own breakfast as their grandmother had gone to work. They then wandered downtown and were found playing with dolls in the store after police were called by the store owner.

Meet Miss Somebody from Iowa

Photos and Text by OZZIE SWEET

An artist needs a model, and Jo Ann, 18, finds Mary Jean a wonderful one—"so patient" (beautiful, too).

BIG SISTERS don't always come highly recommended by little sisters. An exception is the Miss Somebody I found in Davenport, Iowa. Mary Jean Bartosch is just as nice as she looks, say her four sisters—Jo Ann, 18, Inga, 15, Kris, 12, and Gretchen, 9. Each can give reasons for saying so.

"She's a wonderful model for my art work—so patient," explains Jo Ann, the "talent" of the family. Mary Jean, who is 19, hopes she can save enough money from her job as head cashier at an apparel shop to help Jo Ann through art school.

Inga is outgrowing that sloppy teen-age stage, and her older sister's clothes-sense and popularity among boys give her valuable tips on growing up. Mary Jean, she says, doesn't give the "nagging" kind of advice, but the "suggesting" kind.

Kris' favorite occupation is making dresses—for herself and her dolls. Mary Jean, an accomplished seamstress, lends a hand whenever she has time. "We learn a lot from each other," Kris says.

Gretchen is something of a tomboy, and Big Sister knows what that's like, too. In her "youth" at Davenport High School, Mary Jean played basketball and was a softball star as well.

There are some natural frictions, of course. Mary Jean and Jo Ann are the same size and often wear each other's clothes. "The fastest dresser is the best dresser," Jo Ann says.

Mary Jean also is "first sergeant" in the household of Ernest and Edith Bartosch. Hers is the thankless job of making sure each girl does her chores. "She does more than her share," Mrs. Bartosch says, "so there aren't any resentments."

Mary Jean's family lives in an old, comfortable frame house which Mr. and Mrs. Bartosch, both handy with tools and ideas, have remodeled from kitchen to staircase. Mr. Bartosch, an electrician, also has fixed up the basement for the girls, and it serves as a romantic spot for entertaining beaus one night and a raucous playroom for Gretchen's tribe the next.

Mary Jean's dreams include traveling ("An airline stewardess' job would be wonderful!") and, afterward, marriage and a home life like her parents'. She enjoys swimming and golf; in the evenings, good music and dancing—"no, not with anybody special, not yet."

MYSTERY

The Case of the Doomed Innocent

ILLUSTRATION BY NORMAN BAER

By WILLIAM T. BRANNON

Before Mrs. Drake could phone the police, the killer pulled out the wires and fled.

ON A BALMY NIGHT in June, 1956, Charles Drake, an elderly merchant, was watching television when a man broke into his home near Jefferson, Ga. Drake resisted the intruder and was fatally shot. The killer searched his victim's pockets but found only $10, which he took.

The telephone wires were then pulled out of the wall so Mrs. Drake was unable to notify the police immediately. By the time the sheriff arrived, the killer had vanished.

Tearfully, Mrs. Drake described the robber as a man in his 40s, short and stocky, with dark curly hair and dark piercing eyes. The sheriff ordered the description broadcast and roadblocks set up on all roads leading out of the county. Several suspects were picked up and cleared. A few hours after the murder, a man named James Foster, 40, was stopped at a roadblock. Though he was not stocky, his hair was dark and his eyes were dark and fiery.

Mrs. Drake positively identified him as the killer. Foster went on trial for murder. Three friends testified that they had been with him throughout the evening and that they had never been closer than seven miles to Jefferson. But Mrs. Drake pointed out Foster as the killer. He was convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

His lawyers, James H. Wood and Floyd Hoard, believed him. So did many other Jefferson people, who raised a defense fund. The attorneys requestioned Foster's three companions, who insisted they had told the truth. The attorneys retraced the steps Foster and his friends said they had taken; several people thought they had seen the four, but were unwilling to swear they had.

Months passed while Wood and Hoard questioned thousands of people. They tried, unsuccessfully, to find the .38 caliber revolver that had fired the fatal shots. The date of execution was postponed several times as the lawyers filed more appeals.

Then, as their efforts began to appear hopeless, they were called to a South Carolina prison, where a convict told them he knew the identity of the Drake killer. He said a man named Charles P. Rothschild, who owned a .38 caliber revolver, had been tipped off that Drake regularly carried $5,000 in cash; that was why he had shot the elderly man.

The attorneys knew about the money. It had been sewed into Drake's shirt pocket, where it was found intact after he was killed.

Charles P. "Rocky" Rothschild had been convicted on a burglary charge and was in prison in Columbia, S. C. The lawyers questioned him, but he denied any knowledge of the murder of Drake. Then they arranged to have Mrs. Carmina Drake look at him.

"That's not the man who killed Charlie," she said.

WHAT COULD the lawyers do against the positive testimony of Mrs. Drake? They didn't question her integrity, but they were convinced she was mistaken. More than two years had passed and their last appeal had been denied. Foster again was in the shadow of the chair; a new date for the execution was only a few weeks away.

Then, on July 4, 1958, Rocky Rothschild confessed that he had killed Charles Drake. He had gone to the merchant's home looking for the $5,000.

Foster was freed, and at a brief trial Rothschild was convicted of murder. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

In a public statement, Rothschild revealed why he had confessed, even after Mrs. Drake had mistakenly vindicated him:

"The killing has been constantly on my mind, and I have read the Bible. One verse from the Bible convinced me I should tell the truth: 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.'

"Foster was definitely persecuted. May he have a long and happy life."

Pass the Peanut

By Ida M. Pardue

Give each player a paper or plastic picnic spoon.

Make up two teams. Teams line up in two rows. The first player in each line has a peanut, and at the word GO puts it into the spoon and passes it to the next player.

No fair using hands. If the nut is dropped, it must be picked up with the spoon only.

"We Were Human Guinea Pigs"

A young doctor was on the threshold of a vaccine for hepatitis, one of our fastest-spreading diseases, but only these convicts could prove his experiment —at danger to themselves

By JACK RYAN

WILL PHILLIPS tossed restlessly on his cell bunk in the Illinois State Penitentiary in Joliet last winter. Unable to sleep, he fitted earphones over his blond, wavy hair and turned on the prison radio. He caught the last strains of some music and a prison "commercial."

"Inmates interested in participating in a medical experiment in hepatitis report to the blood-donor bank tomorrow."

Phillips didn't know what hepatitis was. He didn't know that it is one of the few infectious diseases on the rise in this country; that more than 41,000 cases were reported last year; that an estimated 60,000 will be reported this year; that while the vast majority recover from the inflammation of the liver, some die and others suffer permanent damage to the body's most important chemical factory; that until recently it was difficult to diagnose because nobody was quite sure what viruses cause hepatitis.

"Hear that announcement?" Phillips asked his cell mate. "I'm going over there tomorrow just to see what they got to say."

His cell mate gave the 22-year-old the sour look of an older, wiser man. "Better ask the prison barber about it, too. He shaved the guys that volunteered for the first tests. Says they were a mess—yellow and always sick."

At first Phillips was only curious. Inmate George Sanders' motive for attending the morning briefing session on the experiment was more positive. "I have two kids on the outside," he said. "One got real sick, and the doctors thought it was hepatitis. Instead, it was polio. So I figure if the doctors get to know more about hepatitis, they won't make this mistake and maybe, like polio, they'll even find something to keep kids from getting it."

No Special Promises to Volunteers

About 50 inmates showed up in the oppressive, hand-hewn brownstone hospital the next morning. Like most, laconic Charlie Yeagley and intense Benny Cotter were interested because "human guinea pigs" allegedly got a "good word" with the parole board. Dr. Joseph Boggs, director of laboratories at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago and chief of the experiment, set the record straight:

"I will write a letter to your parole board saying you cooperated in a potentially dangerous medical experiment. The letter will say nothing else. It may help you; it may not. You'll get a nominal sum of money, too—$30—nothing to compare with the danger and illness you'll face. So now's the time to get out if you expect anything more."

Most stayed—including Phillips, Sanders, Yeagley, and Cotter. Then Dr. Boggs, a sandy-haired 41-year-old pathologist who talks softly but quickly, told the inmates what they could expect.

Five years earlier, he said, researchers Wilton Rightsell and I. W. MacLean had isolated virus-like agents from the blood of hepatitis victims. They could only guess that the agents themselves carried hepatitis. If they did, however, could these agents be weakened by growth in tissue culture to provide a vaccination making humans immune to the disease?

The answers couldn't be learned from tests on animals because they do not contract the disease. Only humans could act as "guinea pigs"—and inmates of a model state prison, because of the excellent controls and observation possible, would make ideal volunteers.

Dr. Boggs proposed to inoculate some of the volunteers with distilled water (a control group) and others with virus strains of varying strengths. If theory was correct, those receiving heavy doses would be hospitalized within 30 days, providing added proof that the virus was of hepatitis nature. Those with weakened strains would develop protective antibodies in their blood without suffering the illness. And if all these "ifs" proved correct, Dr. Boggs and his associates would be well on the way to a hepatitis-preventing vaccine. The doctor pulled no punches about another "if"—if something unexpected turned up in the tests, the volunteers might suffer prolonged aftereffects. He reminded them, too, that hepatitis sometimes proves fatal.

"You'll have a week to think this over," Dr. Boggs concluded. "Then, if you volunteer, you'll sign a contract releasing us and the state from any liability. But," he added, "I can guarantee you the best medical care possible. Nobody will leave the hospital until he's completely well."

The following weekend, Will Phillips' girl friend and guardian visited him. In the half-joking, half-serious manner that characterizes him, Phillips explained his "big news." The girl and guardian exchanged worried glances. "It doesn't seem wise to me," the guardian said. "Don't let anybody fool you about a parole. This is a dangerous thing, and it could affect you for a long time."

Phillips shrugged and his voice took on a boyish quality. "Well, what about helping somebody? They said it might help people, kids especially." He looked at his girl friend. "You know about me. Wouldn't you want me to do something that was good like this?"

She didn't answer directly. "I want you free some day—free and healthy and without worrying about some disease coming back."

Nevertheless, a few days later Phillips and about two dozen other inmates waited in the hospital to sign contracts for the experiment. "I'm bull-headed," Phillips explained to a fellow volunteer. "I'm bored," the other replied frankly. "Anything to break the monotony."

A priest and notary public witnessed their signatures. Next, the volunteers would be taken into the doctor's office and injected. "I don't know myself who's getting what," Doctor Boggs told them, "so don't keep asking me."

One by one, the inmates filed into the office. Doctors took a half-pint of blood, then gave the volunteers a hypodermic injection. "I hardly felt it," Phillips said later. "After all the build-up, it was kinda disappointing."

Next came the wait. Who had the distilled water, who the virus? Doctor Boggs had said that the strains he had injected should take effect within 30 days or less. Phillips had the feeling other inmates were staring at him, looking for the telltale signs of yellowing skin and eyes. Secretly, he pressed his side to feel for inflammation of the liver. Nothing.

But after three weeks, the first cases began appearing. Benny Cotter felt the flush of fever while in his cell one night. He reacted as did most of the volunteers who were to fall victim to the disease: he tried to talk himself out of it. "No," he said, "this must be a hangover from the cold I had."

George Sanders, the most matter-of-fact of the group, also tried to ignore the preliminary symptoms, passing them off as "something I ate."

The young hospital barber, who had witnessed and vividly described the illnesses of initial volunteers, had ironically volunteered himself. "I figured I'd been around hospitals so long, I was hardened," he said. "Then I came down with the darn thing, and the idea of going to a hospital was worse than the first sickness. I lazed around three days, thinking I'd shake it. Finally, I knew I had to go on sick call."

In Charlie Yeagley's case, doctors already had discovered hepatitis in his weekly blood sample before he admitted being sick.

"She has a true sound," he said to Mother, "a definite vocal talent. I could teach her to become a great singer."

"It's such a little voice," Mother protested, "and she's too young. Teaching her now would be a complete waste of time."

But Father was determined—and Mother wasn't too surprised.

Father started to give me lessons immediately, and within a year I was studying four or five hours a day with him. By the time I was six years old and gave my first concert, I had, impossible as it may sound, three solid years of training behind me.

AT THE TIME of my first concert, World War II was on and the bombing raids on our island were increasing each week. Father, who was director of the Rhodes Musical Conservatory, appealed to the military governor to allow us to return to Italy.

Once the war ended, we moved to the city of Pesaro, Italy, where Father had been born, and my serious musical studies began again. Father himself taught me (he was suspicious of other voice teachers and would say, "If anybody's going to ruin my children's voices, it's going to be me").

Our family had little money, and Father would often go into debt to hire a hall for my early concerts. Once, all the members of the local orchestra refused to accept money, knowing Father was having trouble meeting his bills. Years later, Father insisted that we return to Pesaro to give a special concert from which all the money was turned over to the musicians.

Even if I was the center of attention on stage, my important role at home was being a member of our family. I tried acting superior once, and my little brother Paul said, "What do you think? That you are important because you can sing? Well, you couldn't without Papa!"

Though I loved Mother, I spent three times as many hours with Father and was much closer to him. Music was our special bond, and I could talk to him as a friend as I could never talk to Mother.

As I became more accomplished, Father began to arrange concerts all over Europe and eventually the United States. Shortly after my 13th birthday, I stepped onto the stage of Carnegie Hall in New York for my first appearance in America. The critics gave me wonderful reviews, and as a result Ed Sullivan invited me to appear on his television show.

FATHER WAS suspicious of movies, so when he was later approached for "Here Comes the Groom," with Bing Crosby and Jane Wyman, he almost turned it down. A studio vice president had to come and argue for days. Father agreed only after he was promised free round-trip tickets to Hollywood for all five Alberghettis.

If Father was demanding when it came to my contracts, he was equally hard in what he expected from me as a performer. Whenever I gave a bad concert, he stopped being a father the moment we were alone. "I wouldn't pay 25 cents to see the concert you gave tonight," he would snap. "You should be ashamed to come out on a stage and sing the way you did!"

These quarrels were mainly professional, and they were healthy. We had the same Italian tempers that boiled over quickly. But we were able to forget the arguments just as quickly.

Never, in those years, did I conceive of a world without my father. When the doctors told me in 1956 that he was seriously ill, I couldn't believe it. But suddenly I discovered new responsibilities were dropping on my shoulders.

The first important decision was whether my father should undergo an operation. Mother felt that because Father and I had such similar temperaments, I would know best what he would want done.

"Talk to the doctors," she said. "Then you decide. I can't."

Unfortunately, however, the operation did not stop the disease, and the doctors said that Father had only six months to live. They tried to say it as gently as possible, but the brutal fact had to be faced.

FATHER DIED in 1957. After the funeral, I wandered around in a daze. Then, one evening, Mother came into my room as I was getting ready for bed.

Mother said, "You know, Anna, when God sends us something as terrible as your father's death, He also sends along with it a great strength to endure the grief and come out of it. If you don't try to keep on living and working, you will make this thing much harder for yourself."

When my manager called a day later to remind me of a contract I had been postponing for months with one of the big Las Vegas hotels, I said I'd try to play the date. That evening, I sat down with Carla, who was just launching her own career as a singer, and said, "You've got to come and work with me. I can't do it alone."

Tears were in Carla's eyes. "If you really need me, of course I'll help," she said.

Opening night in Las Vegas was frightening, yet I felt strangely calm. As we stood off-stage and the master of ceremonies began to introduce us, I felt Carla put her hand in mine. Though I knew Father was no longer with me physically, I realized he would never be completely gone.

Carla and I were a hit in Las Vegas. Now I'm living in New York alone, acting and singing on Broadway in the musical comedy, "Carnival."

Of course, I talk to Mother, Carla, and Paul in California practically every day on the telephone. I realize now that while Father had been giving his strength and wisdom to me he had also been giving to the others in my family.

When I needed help, they had stepped forward to give me strength. In a sense, my father is all about me—in the faces and love of my family.

STATE FARM/THE CAREFUL DRIVER'S CAR INSURANCE

State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company. Home Office: Bloomington, Illinois

Phillips heard about the first cases, and, as usual, the rumors about their severity were far worse than the facts. The men were delirious, rumor said. Phillips was glad he hadn't written his girl friend and guardian about his decision. And with each passing day, he was more assured he'd taken only distilled water in his arm.

After four weeks, he was positive enough to begin wry jokes about a subject he had been uncharacteristically serious about before. He kidded quietly about wanting to be a hero for his girl, being a benefactor of humanity, getting a red carpet before the parole board.

When he went to his job in the shoeshop one morning, he felt a sense of relief—and, he admits, a pang of conscience at being so happy that somebody else "had taken the real stuff."

Before the noon break, Phillips felt a sharp shooting pain behind his forehead. He counted the days since his inoculation—29. The meal that noon was steamy and pungent, the kind he usually relished. But not today. Still, he thought, 29 days must be too long for hepatitis.

Typically, the symptoms disappeared that afternoon, and Phillips was convinced he'd just scared himself into feeling ill. But that night he broke into a sweat and felt nauseous.

Wednesday, fever and loss of appetite reappeared and then vanished. On Thursday, the onslaught came again and stayed. I've got it all right, Phillips told himself, but if it's this late it must be a weak case. He remembered that Doctor Boggs had said some volunteers who received the virus might build up protective antibodies in their blood, much as in the case of a smallpox vaccination. That was it—I've got one of those side reactions, Phillips decided.

His cell mate found him Friday morning, lying drenched in his bunk. "Get out of here, Willy," he said. "I don't want a stiff on my hands."

Phillips gave up the pretense and went on sick call. The nurse took his temperature. It was 104.8.

About half those receiving the hepatitis virus were hospitalized, the others evidently having a natural immunity.

Sanders and Cotter were typical in that their worst illness lasted about three days. Both suffered prolonged vomiting spells that left them weak; their temperatures ranged between 100 and 102, and all appetite was lost.

The volunteers had been warned that there is no cure for hepatitis. For at least a week, they would be able to hold only citrus juices, vitamins, and aspirin. Afterward, they would spend three to four weeks in slow, uncomfortable recovery. Each volunteer, however, had undergone extensive physical examination to make sure he could withstand the attack on his liver cells.

Cotter, just coming out of the worst part of his illness, remembers looking around rather hazily and seeing a form sprawled in the next bed. It was Phillips. As weak as he was, Cotter's interest rose. The jaundice symptoms were marked on Phillips. "You've turned yellow," Cotter said.

"I feel all green," Phillips replied. Attendants had affixed a glucose bottle to him for intravenous feeding the first day. He stared at the contraption and wondered if he should ask a nurse to write his girl. He would doze off for a while, but nausea would awaken him. The vomiting was violent and perspiration steady.

Doctor Boggs and an associate appeared at his side the next morning and ordered him off glucose. "It's just juices for a long time," he said. He examined Phillips' eyes and probed his right side. "You'll come out of it fine."

That seemed hardly possible to Phillips at the time. Whether their attacks were mild or severe, each of the volunteers recalled a common reaction: they could hear Doctor Boggs' initial words to them, warning of the possibility of danger in dealing with relative unknowns. They forgot their motives for volunteering—possible parole help, an escape from boredom, the desire to help people "on the outside," or mostly a combination of all—and found themselves praying only that this was temporary, that they'd get their health back.

However, in all cases the experiment followed the expected pattern. These cases, and the ones before (a total of 40 illnesses in all experiments) positively identified two strains of virus and probably a third.

The two types of virus used on the volunteers seemed to have caused infectious hepatitis, the most prevalent type. It probably is spread by poor sanitation and hygiene. The third isolated virus may cause serum hepatitis, the most deadly type. It is usually transmitted through the blood—by transfusion, for example. Now, with the virus most closely identified, blood donors can be checked more accurately for traces of the virus.

Phillips Loses 16 Pounds

"The more I got hungry, the less I got scared," says Will Phillips in telling about his recovery. But it was 10 days before he could finally keep a meal down. By that time he had lost 16 pounds, and it was almost two weeks before he could walk steadily. Like Sanders, Cotter, Yeagley, and other volunteers, Phillips required four to five weeks of hospitalization, despite the best possible medical care. "Even the boredom of a cell seemed better after that," one told a nurse.

When they were dismissed, each volunteer was assured his system had returned to normal.

The experiments proved that research had isolated the basic ingredients of a successful hepatitis vaccine. The next step for the Boggs team is to test the viruses further in order to determine the safest, most effective composition for a possible vaccine. They also must learn its long-range effects—whether, for example, a vaccinated person could infect an unvaccinated one. But the first step toward an antihepatitis vaccine is in the past.

As for the "human guinea pigs," another test came last July. The first of their number went before the parole board. In his file folder was the promised letter from Dr. Boggs. The 175 men who participated in the over-all experiment waited for word as if each was up for examination. When word came, it was disappointing. Parole denied.

The volunteer, interviewed shortly after, was bitter. "They promised us help, and they didn't come through," he said.

But a sampling of the others indicated a different feeling. "It's like when you're sick," said Phillips, explaining his covolunteer's anger. "You say things that aren't exactly so, and later you know it. Nobody I know says they have regrets. It probably did somebody some good."

The Doctor Views the Convict-Volunteer

My use of prison volunteers to fight disease is not something new. In the past, numerous medical studies have been aided by these men—studies which have led to new knowledge of cancer, malaria, tuberculosis, and hepatitis. We of the medical profession are deeply indebted to these men for their help and trust. In the future, as in the past, their actions may contribute greatly to the welfare of all mankind. —Joseph D. Boggs, M. D.

I was just thinking...®

ONE OF THE most flattering, and most terrifying, things that happens to me is when one of you sends me for my verdict something you've written.

I should have realized that it happens to most of us with the temerity to trust our words to print. Immediately we don the mantle of the seer and assume the mien of the sage.

We're in trouble.

You send me poems. You send me essays. You send me short stories. You say:

"I wrote this and sent it to a publisher. What do you think of it?"

Or you ask me to print your poems.

I wish I could. I wish I knew more than you do. But how do I know I do?

I try to answer the letters. I know how you feel. I know how I feel when I set down the words which have been curled around my heart. They are my precious blood, and I submit them to you for your pleasure or indifference. They would be safer with me, but shadowed, and they crave sunlight.

So do you. You want my praise and acceptance. You need to know that this part of you is good and that it must follow you have achieved. It will hurt you if I am cruel or disinterested or brutally unkind.

SOME OF YOUR words are far better than my own. Some of them are the work of a wondering child who struggles for a latch he cannot reach. I wish none of you saw in me the oracle or the teacher. I am cast into despair by my own illiteracy when you confront me.

I have never yet given a loving lie to the gifts of your thoughts, though I have sometimes had to search for the truth. Sometimes it has not been necessary when the words shine like stars on the page. Yet even those I can only admire, never analyze.

You honor me and I am humble. But do not see me as your guide to glory. I can only walk beside you and hold your hand in mine.

My Private World with My Father

This petite singing star affectionately recalls the special bond which music created between her and her late father

By ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI as told to Marya Saunders and Bob Gaines

"THIS HAS GOT to work. If we fail now, I'll never go on the stage again."

I said these words shortly after my father's death in 1957 as my sister Carla and I were about to appear in a night club in Las Vegas. I was frightened.

For more than 20 years, my father had been the center of my life. He had made every decision for me, and now suddenly I felt alone and terrified.

Two days before our opening, I was so nervous that Carla suggested we climb into the car and go for a drive to relax. We sped across the desert for an hour while I talked. Finally, Carla turned and said, "You're good. Father saw to that. But you can be twice as good if you stop wasting energy worrying. Why don't you put that energy into analyzing what you have and then make the most of it?"

After a long moment I said, "You know, that's the sort of advice Father would have given me."

As far back as I can remember, my father, his advice, his teaching, his love, were the walls of my life, and within these walls we had our own private world. The others in my family were dear to me and I loved them, but my relationship with Father was special.

The first memory I have, for example, is sitting at the piano with him in our home on the island of Rhodes when I was three years old. We were singing together, and Father was trying to discover if I had any kind of voice at all. (Continued on page 13)

Don't Stop Now!

Machines now wash and dry our clothes,
Another does the dishes.
And if I want a breeze, one blows
The air right where one wishes.
Machinery grinds my garbage up
And also mows my lawn.
It cooks the food on which I sup,
The list goes on and on.
Yet I can see one last need which
I'm hoping science fills:
A gismo that, at flick of switch,
Will quietly pay my bills.

The young man strolled into the living room and immediately his father prepared for the worst. "Well, what do you want to borrow now?" he growled.

"Matter of fact," the son replied, "I'd like to borrow the car this weekend."

"The whole weekend! What are you going to do?"

"I thought I'd go off and get married," the son said nonchalantly.

"Married? Married? Who are you marrying?"

"I don't know yet," the youth replied. "I wanted to make sure I could get the car first."

". . . and this is Barbara Jean's room!"

The ladies were discussing their mothers-in-law. "I've never had any trouble," said a young woman. "My mother-in-law has never told me how to raise the children, prepare meals, or do house cleaning."

As the other women looked at one another in surprise, she concluded: "In fact, she has never spoken to me at all since John told her we were getting married."

A little girl forgot the lines she was to speak in the church pageant. Her anguished mother in the front row gestured and silently formed the words with her lips, but to no avail. At last, she whispered the cue: "I am the light of the world."

Instantly the child relaxed. With supreme confidence she began in a loud voice: "My mother is the light of the world."

CAN YOU AFFORD THIS BED?

Statistics show that your chances of becoming disabled from accident or illness this year are 1 in 4.* Pretty grim odds for a man, particularly if he has a wife and children. Pretty expensive odds, too, in view of today's high hospital and surgical costs, and the income loss that may result from a long term disability.

To help guard against such financial hardships, New York Life offers many up-to-date Health Insurance Plans. There are hospital and surgical expense plans for single individuals and for families, and even "senior citizen" plans for persons from 61 to 75 years of age—all providing Lifetime coverage. There are also Major Medical Plans to help protect you against the really big bills. All provide realistic benefits in line with today's higher costs. Yet, because of practical deductible clauses and sensible exclusions, premiums are surprisingly modest.

For the family breadwinner, a New York Life Income Protection Plan is extremely important. Under such a plan if you should become totally disabled, you can receive a regular monthly check—vital income your family will need.

Remember, the odds are 1 in 4. Wouldn't it be wise to have financial protection against accident or sickness and its resulting hardships before the need arises? Call your New York Life Agent soon. Or, for more information, mail the coupon below.

Bannock

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO BAKE: 35 MIN.

- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup yellow corn meal
- 4 egg yolks, well beaten
- ¼ cup butter
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 egg whites

1. Scald milk (heat just until a thin film appears) in double-boiler top over simmering water. Gradually add corn meal, stirring constantly; continue stirring and cook until mixture thickens and becomes smooth.

2. Remove double-boiler top from simmering water and quickly and thoroughly mix in the well-beaten egg yolks, butter, sugar, and salt.

3. Beat egg whites until rounded peaks are formed. Spread egg yolk mixture over the beaten egg whites and gently fold together. Turn into a well-greased 2-qt. casserole.

4. Bake at 375°F 35 min., or until a wooden pick or cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve at once with butter and maple sirup. 6 to 8 servings

Bird's Nest Pudding

The origin of this odd title seems lost in antiquity, but several versions of this pudding flourish in New England. All of them have one thing in common: apples.

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN. TO BAKE: 50-60 MIN.

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup water
- ¼ teaspoon red food coloring
- 6 medium-sized apples, washed, cored, and pared (keep whole)
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups cream, scalded

1. Combine 2 cups sugar and water in a large, deep saucepan; bring to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Stir in the food coloring.

2. Add as many apples as will fit uncrowded in the saucepan; cover and cook slowly until apples are barely tender, about 7 min., turning carefully several times to obtain an even color. With a slotted spoon, remove apples and place in a 1½-qt. baking dish. Repeat with any remaining apples.

3. Meanwhile, blend ¼ cup sugar, extract, and salt into the slightly beaten eggs. Gradually add the hot cream, stirring vigorously and constantly until sugar is dissolved. Strain mixture through a fine sieve over apples in baking dish.

4. Bake in a boiling water bath at 325°F 50 to 60 min., or until a silver knife comes out clean when inserted in custard halfway between center and edge of baking dish.

Maple Sirup Cake

This rich maple sirup cake is the kind that Vermonters are especially partial to.

TO PREPARE: 35 MIN. TO BAKE: 45-50 MIN.

- 2⅔ cups sifted cake flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup butter
- ⅔ cup firmly packed light brown sugar

- ⅔ cup milk
- ⅔ cup maple sirup

1. Grease bottoms only of three 8-in. round layer-cake pans. Line bottoms with waxed paper and lightly grease paper.

2. Sift the first three ingredients together; set aside.

3. Cream butter until softened. Add brown sugar gradually, beating until fluffy after each addition. Add egg yolks in thirds, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Blend milk and maple sirup together. Alternately add the dry ingredients in fourths and liquid in thirds to the creamed mixture, beating until smooth after each addition. Turn batter into pans.

5. Bake at 350°F 45 to 50 min., or until cake tests done.

6. Cool 10 min. on cooling racks. Remove from pans; peel off paper; cool completely.

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup firmly packed maple sugar
- 1 cup thick sour cream

1. Combine all ingredients in a medium-sized, heavy saucepan. (If maple sugar is available only in solid form, grate, using a fine grater, before using. Or heat over simmering water until sugar is softened, then force through a fine sieve.)

2. Set saucepan over low heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat and bring to boiling. Set candy thermometer in place and continue cooking without stirring.

3. During cooking, wash sugar crystals from sides of pan occasionally with pastry brush dipped in water. Cook to 238°F (soft ball stage: a few drops of mixture form a soft ball in very cold water).

4. Remove saucepan to a cooling rack and cool to lukewarm (about 110°F) without stirring or moving the pan.

5. Beat vigorously with wooden spoon or electric mixer until mixture begins to lose its gloss and is of spreading consistency.

6. Spread on cake immediately. If frosting becomes too thick to spread, beat in a few drops of cream or milk.

Enough to frost sides and tops of three 8-in. round cake layers

Brown Sugar Frosting

Follow recipe for Maple Sugar Frosting substituting 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar for the maple sugar. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla extract just before beating.

Red Flannel Hash

TO PREPARE AND COOK: ABOUT 45 MIN.

- 3 cups finely chopped, cooked potatoes
- 1 cup finely chopped, cooked beets
- 1 cup finely chopped, cooked corned beef
- ⅓ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon black pepper
- Milk or cream (about 6 tablespoons)
- ¼ cup butter

1. Toss first four ingredients together. Blend in next three ingredients and enough milk or cream to hold mixture together.

2. Heat butter in a large, heavy skillet. Add the hash mixture; press into an even layer. Cook over low heat until a brown crust is formed on bottom. While hash is browning, loosen edges and bottom of hash and shake skillet back and forth occasionally to prevent burning. When hash is done, lightly fold in half and serve. 6 servings
